INDICATIONS GERMANS WILL BEGIN ACTIVE RESISTANCE

French Believe Bombing of Headquarters at Essen and Sinking of Barges Mean Passive Plan Has Failed—Secret Meetings in Occupied Area.

GILSENKIRCHEN AGAIN OCCUPIED

Population Told by French They Will Remain Until 100,000,000-Mark Fine Is Paid—Situation in Essen Tense.

By the Associated Press.

ESSEN, Feb. 17.—The French military authorities in the Ruhr believe that the passive resistance of the Germans is at an end and that the work of obstruction is entering an active phase.

They reached this conviction as a result of the bombing of the Kaiserhof Hotel here, the sinking of barges in the Rhine-Herne Canal and the activity of the nationalists, communists and other political parties during the last few days.

The French intelligence service has information to the effect that the populist party held a large secret meeting in Essen on Wednesday, the gathering being addressed by numerous speakers who urged active opposition to the French and Belgian measures. The speakers are said to have admitted that the policy of passive resistance inaugurated at the instigation of the Berlin Government had failed.

Meeting at Muenster.

The center party held a meeting at Muenster last night at which, according to the French intelligence agents, it was admitted that passive resistance had been unsuccessful and that the time for active resistance had come. One of the speakers is said to have been a well-known agitator from Upper Silesia.

The secret visit to the Ruhr of Herr Stingl, German Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, in defiance of the French orders against the entry of Cabinet members, has had a bracing effect on the strikers throughout the district, particularly those under his ministry.

The French say they are ready for any emergency that may arise from the changed attitude of the Germans.

53 Officials Expelled.

Meanwhile the work of eliminating the trouble makers continues and 53 officials were expelled from the Ruhr Thursday and yesterday for disregarding French instructions. The Ober-Burgomaster of Dortmund and his assistant, the chief of the railway station there and the district supervisor, were among those arrested for disobedience.

The Ober-Burgomaster of Duisburg, arrested by the Belgians on a similar charge, was tried by a Belgian court-martial at Aix-La-Chapelle and sentenced to one month in prison and to pay the costs of the trial.

The situation in Essen is tense. The city now is policed by French troops, as the Germany security police all went on strike when their barracks was occupied. Many of them now are walking the streets in civilian clothes, supposedly trying to maintain order, but this only complicates the situation, since the French are unable to recognize them out of uniform.

HARRIMAN INTEREST IN DEAL TO HELP THE MARK IS REPORTED

BERLIN, Feb. 17.—The Prague Tageblatt today declares Chancellor Cuno made an agreement with the London City and Midlands Bank and the Harriman financial interests to support the mark at a definite time.

The paper says that under this agreement the German Government through the Reichsbank agents dumped English pounds on the market here while New York bankers were dumping francs on the market. The Tageblatt adds that it was agreed to bring the mark back to 18,000 to the dollar, at which point the Government agreed to hold it for two months.

The Government undertook to pass new laws for handling foreign monies and limiting Bourse transactions.

MRS. DE BOUCHEL SUES A. G. CANDLER FOR $500,000

New Orleans Society Leader Alleges Coca Cola Millionaire Broke Promise of Marriage.

SHE SAYS HIS FAMILY HALTED WEDDING

Woman Also Declares She Had Made All Arrangements for Ceremony, and Had Invited Friends.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 17.—Suit for $500,000, alleging breach of promise to marry and claiming aggravated damages, was filed in the Federal court here late today by attorneys representing Mrs. Onezima de Bouchel of New Orleans well known in social circles throughout the South, against Asa G. Candler of Atlanta, millionaire founder of the Coca Cola company.

Mrs. De Bouchel's suit declared that Candler broke their engagement on the eve of what was to have been their wedding day, telling her in a letter that he had reports "from sources he was bound to believe" that she had received improper visits from two men while attending the Confederate reunion in Atlanta in Oct., 1919. These charges, the petition said, "are false."

"Refused to Divulge Names."

"Defendant has persisted," the petition said, "in his refusal to divulge even to plaintiff, in response to her urgent requests and demands, the names of the author of said charges or of those by whom said charges were conveyed to him. Your petitioner, therefore, brings this action for damages, in order that the matters herein set out, may be freely inquired into and determined by a jury of said district."

Accompanying the petition was a supporting affidavit by Mrs. De Bouchel signed in Cook County, Ill., and dated Feb. 13. In her petition the plaintiff says she is a citizen and resident of Nevada.

Candler's answer is returnable at the March term and the case is expected to come to trial at the September session.

The petition sets forth that Mrs. De Bouchel and Candler met during the Confederate reunion in Atlanta in 1919, at which time she was chaperon general for the Daughters of the Confederacy. At that time she was the receipent of many favors and attentions from Candler, the petition asserted.

Their acquaintance ripened into friendship and an intimate correspondence ensued, the petition said and "ultimately, in his letters to plaintiff after acquainting her fully with many circumstances of his private life and the vissitudes of his public career, the defendant commented on the loneliness of his home as a widower and urged plaintiff to become his bride."

"Won Her Affection."

Mrs. de Bouchel's petition said that Candler so conducted himself of courtship "as to win the respect and esteem of petitioner; that his protestations of affection were so earnest, and his attention so thoughtful, and so promising of future care and protection, that she was inspired with an honest affection for him. She believed that a marriage with defendant would enable her to render material assistance in making the remaining years of defendant's life as happyy as they had ever been, and happier than his lonely condition of widower could be. Plaintiff, thereupon in good faith accepted defendant's offer of marriage."

In subsequent correspondence, the petition continued, Candler told Mrs. de Bouchel that certain members of his family opposed their marriage, making it clear, however, that the opposition was "not based upon his plan to marry plaintiff, but based upon expressed opposition of several members of his family to his purpose to marry at all."

She promptly informed Candler, the petition said, that she was unwilling to marry him in the face of such opposition, but that he persuaded her he would be able to convince the family "that his only hope for lasting peace, comfort and happiness was based upon marriage to your petitioner and repeatedly assured her that whatever opposition they had manifested would be removed by his marriage. She said she "accepted his protestations and assurances and again agreed to become his wife."

Family Investigated.

Mrs. de Bouchel, in her petition, said certain members of the Candler family visited New Orleans to investigate her, and that Candler, in informing her of this, said: "That the thorough investigation which had been made had served to confirm

MEN WHO ROBBED BANK OF $265,000 SAID TO BE KNOWN

Capture of Members of Crook "Syndicate" Expected Through Recovery of $73,000 of Cincinnati Loot.

BANK PRESIDENT SET TRAP FOR BAND

Posed as Man Trying to Buy Stolen Securities to Cover a Shortage; Got Part of Bonds for $28,000.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 17.—Apprehension of the six men who last September held up and robbed the Hamilton County Bank of this city, and the arrest of other members of a "syndicate" of crooks who disposed of stolen securities awaits the gradual building up of evidence as a result of the recovery of $73,000 worth of bonds stolen from the Cincinnati bank, postal authorities asserted here today.

The postal authorities who have been working in collaboration with private and city detectives on the Cincinnati robbery, which netted the bandits $265,000, and the robbery of $200,000 in unused Federal reserve bank currency of the Denver mint said members of the band were known to them. They refused, however, to make known their identity or their present location.

It was said that recovery of the $73,000 worth of securities was made possible by the most delicate negotiations between E. H. Matthews, who was president of the Hamilton County Bank at the time of the robbery, and an agent of the robber band at Minneapolis. Approximately $28,000 was paid for the securities.

HOW HEAD OF BANK RECOVERED BONDS THROUGH A RUSE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 17.—Recovery of $73,000 worth of bonds, part of the $265,000 stolen by bandits from the former Hamilton County Bank on Woodburn avenue, last September, and $80,000 in unused Federal Reserve Bank currency, stolen in the holdup of the Denver mint, was revealed today by federal officers and private detectives here.

The recovery was the result of the matching of wits by E. H. Matthews, who was president of the Hamilton County Bank, with a band of crooks who were trying to dispose of stolen securities of many kinds, the total face value of which is believed to be about a million dollars.

The story of how the securities were recovered is one of long and delicate negotiations with an agent of the band of crooks, in which suspicion had to be avoided and utmost secrecy observed. The final "negotiations" for the stolen bonds were consummated in Minneapolis. Mr. Matthews, in his telephone conversations, used a code so that no "leak" of what was transpiring would be possible. When Matthews left for Minneapolis he told his office associates he was going East. Then he went to a Middle Western city and doubled back part of the way to get to Minneapolis.

Recovering Cost $28,000.

The $73,000 recovered by him was at a cost of $28,000. Under the terms of the sale of the Hamilton County Bank to the Union Savings Bank and Trust Co., it was agreed that any stolen property which might be recovered should be sold and the proceeds added to the original $70 a share the stockholders of the former bank received from the Union Savings Bank for their stock. The recovery of the bonds will net the stockholders about $27 a share additional.

It was said, Saturday, that arrests of several members of the "syndicate" that has been trying to sell securities that were the plunder of half a dozen sensational robberies in various parts of the country would be made soon.

The clew which resulted in the revelations regarding the band came through the discovery that an effort was being made to sell in Minneapolis 10 $1000 Philippine Government bonds, which were a part of the loot stolen from the Hamilton County Bank, but which were purposely not included in the published list of stolen bonds. It was thought that the robbers would first try to sell those bonds, thinking they had been overlooked by the bank officials in checking up. This theory was correct.

Negotiated for Stolen Bonds.

Mr. Matthews went to Minneapolis, conferred with Postoffice inspectors and private detectives, and a plan to negotiate for the stolen bonds was arranged. A man, designated only as Mr. "X," was intro-

It was assumed that the new regulations were directed at the movement of French or other nationals or other than Americans entering Germany.

RIGHT OF SUPREME COURT TO NULLIFY LAWS ATTACKED

Senator Owen Declares It Has No Right to Declare Acts of Congress Unconstitutional.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Right of the Supreme Court to declare acts of Congress unconstitutional was denied in the Senate today by Senator Owen, Democrat, Oklahoma, an assertion which drew sharp replies from Senator Kellogg, Republican, Minnesota, Shields, Democrat, Tennessee, Colt, Republican, Rhode Island and Poindexter, Republican, Washington, who supported such action by the court.

Senator Owen, in an extended address denied that the high court was co-equal in power with Congress, under the Constitution, and argued that it had arrogated to itself the practice of declaring laws unconstitutional. Congress, being elective, he declared, could be better trusted against mistakes and to carry out the wishes of the people than "the few life members of the court."

Senator Kellogg said that Senator Owen's address was "an assault upon the judiciary" of the United States and one that caused him "surprise and regret." The court, Senator Kellogg and others declared, had unquestioned right to construe and sustain the Constitution and was a bulwark of individual liberty.

IRISH FREE STATE ISSUES A WARNING TO IRREGULARS

President Cosgrave of Dail States Intention to Put Down Revolt and Not to Negotiate Further.

STATEMENT ON EVE OF AMNESTY EXPIRATION

Dublin-Galway Mail Train Wrecked by Being Sent Into Ditch After Passengers Are Ordered Out.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Feb. 17.—The Dublin to Galway Mail train was wrecked today after the passengers had been ordered out by armed men at Streamstown Station. The train was sent headlong toward a bridge that had been blown up and crashed into the gap. It was destroyed. Two freight trains were similarly wrecked at the same place. It is announced from Carrick-On-Shannon that the insurgents in the Arigna Mountains are splitting into roving bands to get through the cordon of Free State troops. Several of their leaders are reported to have been captured near Brumshando.

Sixteen prominent irregulars have surrendered in Northwest Cork.

Dublin's walls today presented a striking exhibit of placards addressed to the irregulars and their sympathizers, urging a cessation of the conflict before the amnesty period allowed by the Government expires.

Peace Rumors Dissipated.

The pronouncement by William T. Cosgrave, president of the Dail Cabinet, that the Free State Government would put down the revolt at any cost and that there would be no negotiation with Eamonn De Valera or the other irregular leaders, dissipated all peace rumors. His statement was indorsed by Kevin O'Higgins as the last word of the United Cabinet on the eve of the expiration of the amnesty.

The suggestion by the neutral members of the old republican army for a month's truce, during which the irregulars would retain their arms but remain quiescent, attracted tentative approval from a section of the press on the ground that it would afford a breaking spell in which to repair the damage wrought throughout the country but it is recognized that eventually the fundamental conditions must be faced.

No details are yet available as to the result of the amnesty offer. There have been some few surrenders of arms, accompanied by guarantees of withdrawal from the fight, but more numerous are the cases in which irregulars have buried or abandoned their arms and slipped home.

Rank and File "Crumbling."

The main effect is believed to be the disintregration of the republican rank and file, described by the Minister of Home Affairs as "crumbling away." He declares those irregulars held prisoner are practically lined up in favor of the amnesty, pointing out as the reason for this that they are freer to express their real sentiments than the men outside who, he alleges, are held to the irregular cause by coercion.

The Government had advertised its willingness to release such prisoners as would sign an undertaking to abandon armed resistance, provided they could obtain trustworthy sponsors for their good behavior.

Reconsideration of their position by the republicans generally is expected from the publication of Eamonn De Valera's reversion from undiluted republicanism to his document number two, containing alternative proposals to the Anglo-Irish treaty, and to the evidence of divided republican counsels afforded by Mary MacSwiney's sharp disagreement with De Valera, which became known through captured correspondence.

Cosgrave's Statement.

President Cosgrave's statement follows:

"At this moment when the grave decision upon the Government's offer of amnesty must be taken for weal or woe by those in arms against the people, the culpable leaders of the policy of exterminating the Irish nation, we are adding to their heinous offenses against the land that bore them, the crime of circulating deliberate falsehoods in order to blind their unfortunate followers to the fateful issue before them for the next 48 hours.

"I feel it my duty to expose this shameless and most cruel deception.

"The statement is being circulated by the irregular leaders that the Government has made or caused to be made overtures for peace; that we have learned from correspondence recently captured. This statement is deliberately false. No such overtures have been made by the

Says Change of Climate Would Be Very Bad for Tutankhamen's Mummy

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Feb. 17.

A CHANGE of climate would be very bad for King Tutankhamen's mummy and therefore he should not be removed to Cairo, says Flinders Petrie, one of the best known Egyptologists.

He points to the sad case of Amenhotep II, who was taken to Cairo and then ordered back, and "did not benefit by his double journey."

Petrie suggests that a new museum for the mummy and other treasures be provided at Thebes, or that they be placed in one of the empty tombs under strong guard. But, he adds, "Egyptians themselves have smashed up every tomb they got into, so the question of the sacredness of kings' bodies is a matter of opinion. Even the old Egyptian undertakers who buried the Pharaohs were not without guilt."

POLICE HAVE CEASED TO AID GUS NATIONS

Split Occurred After Hotel Chase Raid, City Officers Concentrating on Own Cases.

City detectives no longer co-operate with Gus O. Nations, chief Federal prohibition agent here, in liquor raids. This developed yesterday, when Detective Sergt. Glassco, who has been with Nations in several of his raids, was asked about recent activities in that line.

Sergt. Glassco said that the turn of events, following the Hotel Chase raid of New Year's eve, had indicated that the police would better make their own prohibition enforcement cases, and leave Nations with his regular force of assistants, to make his Federal cases.

In the Chase raid, Edward Sullivan, who was one of the city detectives accompanying Nations, fired a bullet, which slightly wounded John Pazdera. When Pazdera filed suit against Nations, Sullivan and Supt. Shupp of the Anti-Saloon League, Nations moved to transfer the proceeding to the Federal Court. Judge Faris indicated that he would order the transfer, and Pazdera's counsel, in order to keep the case in the State courts, dropped the suit as to Nations.

Judge Faris said Detective Sullivan's part in the case would not call for a transfer to the Federal court, as, in his view, Sullivan did not lose his identity as a member of the city Police Department, when he accompanied a Federal officer on a raid. Sullivan, he held, still was acting as a city policeman. This left Sullivan and Shupp as defendants, and their counsel now are fighting the case.

The police feel that this ruling left them "holding the sack," and that if they do not receive some measure of Federal protection, they would prefer not to work under the Federal enforcement officer's direction.

Chief of Detectives Hoagland said that, following Judge Faris' ruling, and because of the suggestion recently made by Prosecuting Attorney Schweitzer, the police would hereafter work toward liquor prosecutions in the State courts rather than in the Federal Court. Schweitzer has outlined to the police a plan for prosecuting these cases within State jurisdiction.

Hoagland said he had received no request from Nations recently for co-operation. He said he would not feel like refusing a request from any Federal officer for co-operation, but that if city detectives go with Nations in future, they will reserve the right to proceed in the State courts against persons whom they arrest.

MUMMY CASE OF PHARAOH REVEALED IN HUGE CANOPY

Two Outer Caskets Within Shrine Opened, but Third Resists Efforts of Archeologists to Discover Whether Body of Monarch Has Been Disturbed.

SCENE SUGGESTIVE OF ROBBER DEN

Another Vast Array of Treasures in Inner Chamber — Archeologists Believe Body Will Be Found Wrapped in Gold.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1923, by the New York Herald.)

LUXOR, Feb. 17.—Now that the inner chamber of the tomb of Tutankhamen has been entered, it is believed that the Pharaoh's mummy is in the immense imposing canopy or shrine of wood instead of in the pink granite one as was generally supposed.

The shrine contains two caskets, the second with frontal doors like the first, within which is a richly painted mummy case. Here, it is believed, will be found the annointed clay of Tutankhamen wrapped from head to foot in sheets of thin gold, and with hands crossed, one shut and one open symbolic of upper and lower Egypt over which he held sway.

Every stage of the proceedings is being photographed and there is little chance of the mummy case being opened for some time to come.

When Tutankhamen lived his official title was Lord of Two Lands, plus several lines of hieroglyphics about his relation to the divinities who have now fled. He seems to have been a fairly influential monarch and his fame spread around the world of that period, but even in the heyday of his glory he did not achieve the renown that has been thrust upon him today.

Is Now Enthroned Again.

Telegrams from all parts of the world testify that Tutankhamen is enthroned again in all his splendor and magnificence, while Egypt, his own domain, pays a cosmopolitan homage, probably more sincere than any he ever exacted when he reigned hereabouts.

It is impossible to escape him. Wherever one turns he rules everybody with the magic force of his personality. It predominates at hotels, cafes and shops.

The select band which saw the ravishing sight in the inner chamber of the tomb yesterday were too much overcome last night to talk about it coherently.

But the intervening hours have seen the flood gates of enthusiasm opened. Amid the swirling torrent of superlatives two facts stand out. One is the tomb of the Pharaoh who ruled over Upper and Lower Egypt and their dependent states at the time of Egypt's greatest splendor, has been found intact. The second is that there is an unimaginable aggregation of treasure.

Perhaps there will be an interesting third fact that the inner chambers contain Papyri and objects ultimately will tell clearly the story of a period which hitherto has been but dimly discernible. But this is speculation.

The inscriptions on the walls, though marked by an exquisite interplay of colors worthy of the master artists who designed the magnificent pieces found in the antechamber of the tomb, never were quite finished. It appears as though Tutankhamen in the pride of his life had suddenly died and the artists had to retire and leave the Pharaoh to the privacy of his sepulchre.

That would be an eternal pity because the decorative art such was achieved by the Eighteenth Dynasty of the Ancient Egyptians has never been approached in any other age and it would be in keeping with Tutankhamen's material greatness if his mortuary chapel had outshone them all in every way. Its setting is incomparable archeologically, scientifically and artistically in certain aspects but in the matter of decorative art it seems to have fallen down.

Official Opening Today.

The inner chamber will be officially opened tomorrow in the presence of royalty, vice royalty, politicians and numerous distinguished visitors. All these will go to the desolate Valley of the Kings whose sepulchral peace has been temporarily destroyed. They will ascend a slight incline past the Government's barrier into the Theban Necropolis and

FINISH FIGHT ON SHIPPING BILL BEGUN IN SENATE

Chairman Presents Modified Measure and Plans to Hold Night Sessions Until It Is Disposed of.

FATE TO BE DECIDED IN NEXT TWO WEEKS

Chief Among Alterations Is Inclusion of a Section Designed to Lessen Aid Payments by $3,500,000.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Inauguration of a fight to the finish in the Senate today on the administration shipping bill was marked by the presentation by Chairman Jones of the Commerce Committee of the print of a modified measure and by the announcement by the chairman that he expected to hold the Senate in night session Monday night and every night thereafter until the bill is disposed of or an agreement reached for a final vote.

With sine die adjournment of the session due at noon two weeks from tomorrow, leaders of the forces supporting and opposing the shipping bill recognized that in these weeks the fate of the measure, which has been the principal legislation considered during the session, would be definitely decided. President Harding has let it be known that should a vote not be reached before adjournment he would under no circumstances call Congress in special session for further consideration of the bill.

The modifications shown in the new print of the bill presented by Chairman Jones represent compromises reached by the champions of the measure and those Senators who have been only lukewarm toward it. They will be offered by Senator Jones with recommendations that they be adopted, and are understood to have received the approval of President Harding and of Chairman Lasker of the Shipping Board. Those in charge of the legislation in the Senate said they were hopeful that the proposed alterations would draw support to the measure.

Foremost among the alterations is the inclusion of a section providing Government aid shall not be paid ship operators with respect to any vessel other than a vessel purchased from the board after enactment of the pending act until after the board shall have sold vessels now in its possession amounting to a gross tonnage of 1,500,000 tons, or approximately one-half its present holdings. A proviso to this section provides that the board may contract to pay Government aid to any owner for operation of an otherwise qualified vessel "if the owner of such vessel shall, subsequent to the enactment of this act, purchase from the board a vessel or vessels of a gross tonnage equal to or greater than the gross tonnage of the vessel with respect to which the contract for compensation is made."

Senator Jones estimated that during the first two years of the operation of the bill this section would lessen the Government aid payments by three to three and one-half million dollars. It is designed, it was said, to bring about a speedy disposal of the Shipping Board's fleet.

Alteration of Rates.

A second important change to be proposed by Chairman Jones alters the rates at which Government compensation shall be paid and fixing a maximum payment of 1 6-10 cents for power-driven vessels of 19 knots and over as against payments ranging from 1 1-10 cents to 2 1-10 cents on vessels of 19 to 23 knots and over in the measure, as passed by the House and reported to the Senate.

This alteration, it was explained, is designed to center Government aid on the slow cargo-carrying craft rather than speedy passenger liners, and is in line with ideas advanced by Senator McNary, Republican, Oregon, and other Republican Senators only lukewarm toward the bill.

The change also embodies an increase in the basic rate from one-half of 1 cent to 7-10 of 1 cent for each gross ton for each 100 nautical miles covered by the vessel. The rates based on speed up to 19 knots are changed so as to keep the increasing ratio the same.

Another change is the inclusion of a section providing that any vessel of 20,000 gross tons or over shall be considered as if it were a vessel of 20,000 gross tons in computing the rate of Government aid. This likewise is designed to favor the smaller and slower cargo carriers. Provisions against discrimination by the Shipping Board in administering the act in favor of one port and against another also has been inserted, such action having been advocated by some Senators from the Pacific Coast.

Proposals by McNary Included.

Proposals advanced by Senator McNary relating to the duties of the joint board to be created by the Shipping Board and the Interstate Commerce Commission also are included. These provide that the joint board shall make an investigation as to the causes of and remedies for congestion in certain American ports and the control, improvement and extension of water terminals, advise with communities on harbor, river and port improvement in connection with foreign and coastwise trade, and study generally the inter-relations of rail and water traffic.

Senator Jones, in giving notice of night sessions in an attempt to drive the bill through, said he expected "to stand up to it as long as the majority of the Senate will stand behind me," and in reply to an inquiry from Senator Swanson, Democrat, Virginia, as to how long each night session would last, said, "We may remain in session all night, depending on the progress we make on the bill."

Contrary to anticipation, there was no effort made today by supporters of other measures to get their bills up and displace the ship bill, but proponents of the commonly termed filled milk bill said they would move to take it up Monday, while those backing the Capper truth-in-fabric measure asserted they would endeavor to get that legislation up for Senate consideration Tuesday. Both of those bills have opponents who, although not favorable to the ship bill, may not vote to displace it.

American Artist Who Refused to Be Discouraged Was Actual Finder of Tutankhamen Tomb

Howard Carter Supplied Energy and Enthusiasm, Lord Carnarvon the Money, That Led to Discovery.

THE actual discoverer of the tomb of the Pharaoh Tutankhamen is an American, Howard Carter. The Earl of Carnarvon, a British peer, is the financial "angel" back of the enterprise. Lord Carnarvon, now in his fifty-seventh year, supplied the necessary funds and a portion of the no less necesasry enthusiasm. For years he had been interested in Egyptology and had made some excavations along the Nile. Carter, who was a young artist when he went to Egypt about 33 years ago, has been in direct personal charge of the searching and the digging from the first. He supplied the patient persistence necessary to success. An important part of the capital contributed by Carter was his knowledge of the science of Egyptology, developed through more than 30 years of archeological research in Egypt.

Lord Carnarvon and Howard Carter first same together about 16 years ago. Already, for at least 15 years, Carter had been engaged in archeological work in the valley of the Nile. Being a talented painter and a skilled draughtsman, he found employment early in his career in Egypt in making accurate sketches of the "finds" of older archeologists. As an expert draughtsman he first won recognition. Presently he became so deeply interested in Egyptology —otherwise the intimate study of the customs, habits and history of the past through relics found in tombs and other ancient memorials along the Nile—that he determined to make archeological investigation in that region his life work. From being a draughtsman he became a digger.

Carter Wins Recognition.

Carter worked for years as an excavator, making a number of important discoveries. Usually he found difficulty in financing his excavations. But when, in 1907, his diligence and his genius for the work attracted the attention of Lord Carnarvon, his financial handicap was removed.

The English Earl, owner of 36,000 acres of land in rural England and Scotland, including several castles, had plenty of money to spend in Egypt. Like Carter, he became an enthusiast in excavational efforts. Working together, Carnarvon furnishing the cash, the two men made discoveries prior to the finding of the Tutankhamen bonanza which gave them quite a respectable standing among Egyptologists. Lord and Lady Carnarvon have spent each season in Egypt for 16 years. Carter has remained there virtually all the time. When not engaged in actual excavating, he has found plenty of work in attending to the "treating" of his discoveries for purposes of preservation, and in making deeper studies in Egyptian lore with the purpose of using his knowledge in further discoveries.

For about a century the work of excavation has been going on in the region known for many years as "the Valley of the Kings," which is on the western bank of the Nile in the vicinity of the site of the ancient city of Thebes, near the present city of Luxor. Thebes was the capital of the Pharaohs of the eighteenth dynasty, of which dynasty Tutankhamen, or Tut-Ankh-Amen, was the last King but one. It is called the Valley of the Kings because the archeologists long ago learned that the Kings, or Pharaohs, of ancient Egypt used the region for burial places.

Key to Hieroglyphics Found.

Archeological investigation in that valley was given a forward impetus a century ago when Jean Francois Champollion, a young Frenchman, finally discovered the key to the reading of ancient Egyptian hieroglyphic inscriptions on stone and wood writings on papyrus. Prior to Champollion's time such inscriptions had been, for the most part, sealed mysteries. Since he learned the alphabet of the hieroglyphics, men have been able to read thereby the records of the ancient Egyptians.

It was the famous Rosetta stone, now in the British Museum, that first gave clue to the meaning of hieroglyphic writing. This piece of black basalt was found in 1799 by a young French officer under Napoleon Bonaparte, at Rosetta, near one of the mouths of the Nile. Inscriptions on it were in Greek, in the Egyptian writing and in characters known as demotic. By comparing the Greek wtih the other writings, linguists made certain deductions of importance, but it was not until 1822 that Champollion, using these data and pursuing independent lines of research, published a work which has been accepted as the real beginning of the art of reading ancient Egyptian hieroglyphic records.

Many years ago it was the belief of Egyptologists that virtually all important discoveries possible had been made in the Valley of the Kings. The ground had been worked over, so it was believed, quite thoroughly. Tombs of many Pharaohs, all of which had been entered by the Jesse Jameses of ancient days and robbed of many of their treasures of gold and jewels, had been opened by the scientific investigators.

Refund to Be Discouraged.

Most of the archeologists felt that there was nothing more of any great human interest to be found there. Howard Carter did not concur in that opinion. To the contrary, six or seven years ago he expressed to Lord Carnarvon his belief that patience and persistence yet would turn up such discoveries as might make the world pause, momentarily at least, in its career of commercialism, and take a look back into the remote past, recognizing the fact that there were giants of industry and of art in those days as well as in these. The Earl coincided with the American artist and archeologist. He continued to supply the cash, Carter continuing to furnish the courage.

Carter had learned from certain ancient papyri more or less about a Pharaoh named Tut-Ankh-Amen. It was known that this King after a reign of a few years died about 1367 years before the beginning of the Christian era or approximately 3300 years ago. Tutankhamen was buried in the Valley of the Kings. His tomb had not been found. Where was it? Somewhere there Carter knew. Why had it not been found, since the ground had been worked so thoroughly, according to the other wise men of this era?

Howard Carter kept his diggers digging, here, there, yonder. Just how he happened at last to hit the right spot has not been explained satisfactorily. It has been stated that many months before he finally found the entrance to the tomb another party of excavators had missed it by only about 20 feet. It was on the 5th of last November that Carter's workmen found what the experienced Egyptologists knew to be the entrance to a tomb of more than ordinary importance. Carter immediately wired for Lord Carnarvon, who was in England. The Earl proceeded to Egypt.

Important Records Found.

Little was made public with regard to the discovery until, in December, the antechamber was opened and certain records therein made it certain that the objects found inside were a part of the effects of the Pharaoh Tutankhamen, with the strong probability that the room thus opened was an antechamber to the tomb of the Pharaoh.

Many years ago the tomb of Rameses VI, a Pharaoh who reigned a century or more after Tutankhamen, was opened. This tomb was cut into the solid limestone rock, as was also that of Tutankhamen. The Rameses tomb was up the slope, directly beyond and partly above the Tutankhamen tomb. Much of the sand, earth and rock excavated in the search for the Rameses tomb had been thrown down the slope, thus burying the tomb of Tutankhamen much deeper than the sand-drift of centuries had buried it. Possibly for this reason the discovery of the latter tomb has been delayed for so many years.

Carter's force of workmen removed approximately 200,000 tons of sand, earth and rock, according to dispatches from Luxor, before they struck the masonry protecting the tomb of Tutankhamen.

America May Get Relics.

Will America ever see any of the treasures taken from this tomb? That question remains to be answered. Under a strict construction of the Egyption laws all such relics are held to belong to Egypt. The museum at Cairo is the logical depository. Yet, in former instances, some of the recovered treasures have been given to museums in the countries of the men to whom credit was due for the excavtaion. The British Museum in London and the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York have shared in these rewards.

Because Howard Carter, an American, personally made the discovery of this tomb, and Lord Carnarvon, an Englishman, co-operated financially and otherwise as official head of the enterprise, it is the belief of Egyptologists that the Egyptian Government will be generous in division of the relics. This belief, however, is based chiefly on hope for the present.

SENATE PASSES SALARY BILL

Measure Would Fix Pay of U. S. District Attorneys.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17. — The Senate today passed and sent to the House a bill recommended by the Department of Justice giving it power to fix salaries of United States District Attorneys and marshals the former from $3000 to $7500 a year, and the latter from $3000 to $6500, according to business in each judicial district. Similar powers are now held over salaries of clerks of district courts.

ELECTRIC MAGNET UNDER THE BAR IN GUMBERTS' PLACE

Young Man Said to Have Lost Two Automobiles at Dice Over the Bar Recently.

Twice within the last few months State and county authorities have gone to Mark Gumberts' Fauna Flora, on the Manchester road west of Collier avenue, upon report that there was gambling and general high jinks.

Both times they found a deserted establishment and were checkmated, when they came upon an assortment of liquors in Gumberts' adjoining living rooms, by the display by Gumberts of a permit for removal of liquor from one place of residence to another.

Last night Fred M. Tate, special investigator for the Attorney-General, and County Prosecutor Adam Henry Jones presented themselves again at Gumberts' door. He held them at bay for several minutes before admitting them.

They found a roulette table for which, an employe said, Gumberts had paid $700. There was no wheel but a crater in the table indicated that one had reposed there. There were approximately 1000 chips on the table and signs about the room announced odds that would be paid on various combinations.

Beneath a bar in another room was a solitary bottle of champagne. As on other visits, there was an assortment of liquors from champagne down, in Gumberts' living quarters, and he drew forth his thumb-worn certificate. Jones was of the opinion that the bottle of champagne in the barroom had forfeited whatever possession rights Gumberts had had, but he refrained from seizing the stock, pending a report to Federal enforcement agents.

Electric Magnet Under Bar.

Beneath the bar also the raiders found an electric magnet operated by a foot button from behind the bar. They tested its effect on the surface of the bar. A knife was shot along the bar and when the button was pressed it was brought to an abrupt stop. A bunch of keys were put similarly under control. The officers surmised that the effect would be the same upon certain kinds of dice and Jones said that he had been informed that a well-known St. Louis young man recently had lost two automobiles at dice over the bar.

Gumberts Harangues Jones.

Gumberts subjected Jones to a lengthy harangue. "I'm an all-right guy," he said, "and will kick in at the right time, but I am about ready to squawk," he said. "When I do a lot of fellows in the county will be knocked loose from their base."

While the raid was in progress, Jess Rubeling, who operated a gambling establishment at the old Suburban Garden, dropped in. He greeted Tate, who once raided his establishment, warmly, but said: "Guess my visit is inopportune," and departed.

A rack, in the barroom, about three feet from the spot where the electro-magnet was found under the bar, contained blank checks from 20 St. Louis banks.

POSTAL INSPECTOR FOUND SLAIN IN SAVANNAH, GA.

Fort Scott (Kan.) Man Evidently Shot to Death 48 Hours Before in Office.

By the Associated Press.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 17.—The body of L. C. Chance of Fort Scott, Kan., Postoffice Inspector, was found dead in his office here tonight. He had been shot to death, and had been dead probably 48 hours. Chance was a veteran in the postal service. He was formerly attached to the New York division.

The body was found upright in an office chair, the right leg over the corner of a desk. A bullet from a .45-caliber automatic revolver had entered the right side and penetrated to within a short distance of the heart.

The revolver was found on the drawleaf of the desk, with one shell in the barrel, the cylinder lying nearby.

A search for him had been instituted at the request of his family.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise —no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, D. G. Johnson, 609 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

3 MEN ACQUITTED IN CASE OF WOMAN KILLED IN AUTO

Mrs. Ada Tuthill of Marissa, Ill., Was Shot When Three Peace Officers Fired on Machine.

A verdict of not guilty was reached yesterday on the first ballot by the jury which heard the two-day trial in Belleville of former City Marshal James Robertson, former Constable William Crosby and Edward Lang, all of Marissa, Ill., for the murder of Mrs. Ada Tuthill of Marissa, on Sept. 4 last.

Mrs. Tuthill was killed when the automobile in which she was returning from a Labor day picnic with her husband and three other persons was fired on, near Marissa, by Robertson and Lang, testimony showed. All three defendants, who were on the lookout for a stolen automobile at the time, asserted the car sped past them in the dark when its driver was ordered to halt. Occupants of the machine declared no such commands were heard by them.

The State contended in its arguments before the jury Friday that the defendants exceeded their authority in firing on the car. Attorneys for the defense insisted that Crosby be found not guilty because no evidence had shown him to have fired a shot, and that Lang be acquitted because his weapon contained steel-jacketed bullets, instead of lead ones similar to those taken from Mrs. Tuthill's head.

No mention was made of Robertson in the defense arguments. Lang had testified that only he and Robertson fired after the automobile and that Robertson, who opened fire, shot the most times. Robertson was not placed on the stand.

After their release, all the defendants shook hands with the jurors, who said they had postponed the taking of a ballot overnight, after talking the case over for three hours upon being locked up at 6 p. m. Friday.

State's Attorney H. C. Lindauer of St. Clair County expressed strong dissatisfaction with the verdict and announced he was considering filing four charges of assault with intent to commit murder, against each of the acquitted men. He had grounds for these charges, he declared, because the four other occupants of the car, as well as Mrs. Tuthill, were fired upon.

Feeling at Marissa at the time of the shooting was so strong against Robertson, Crosby and Lang that the Mayor advised them to hurry to Belleville and give themselves up for their own protection. Crosby and Lang remained in jail for several weeks before obtaining their liberty on $10,000 bonds each, while Robertson, who stayed in jail until the trial, is said to have made no effort to obtain bail. The police positions of Robertson and Crosby at Marissa were given to other men shortly after the shooting.

MEN WHO ROBBED BANK OF $265,000 SAID TO BE KNOWN

duced to the agent of the robbers as a North Dakota banker who desired to make a large purchase of stolen securities to cover his shortage in his bank. After careful negotiations, "Mr. X" paid $5000 to the robbers' agent and the 10 Philippine bonds were delivered to him. Then negotiations for other securities began. A second deal resulted in the purchase of other bonds, valued at $63,000, for which "Mr. X" paid $23,000.

In the second lot of stolen securities delivered to "Mr. X" were Canadian thrift stamps to the value of $405 which were not part of the plunder in the bank robbery in this city. The stamps were sent to the Federal authorities, who now are trying to ascertain from what place they were stolen.

Robbers Became Suspicious.

A third "deal" with the robbers' agent resulted in the recovery of $80,000 of unused money that was stolen from the Denver mint, but "Mr. X" had to pay $48,000 for it. During the several conferences it was discovered that the band of thieves had $973,000 of stolen bonds and other securities which they wanted to dispose of. But negotiations suddenly ceased, something having happened which caused the band of robbers to become suspicious. Mr. Matthews has received word that $7500 of bonds stolen from the bank have been found in legitimate trade channels in Oregon, the present holders being ignorant of the fact that the bonds were stolen.

ISMET SAYS TRADE ISSUES HINDER TURK SETTLEMENT

Reiterating Wish for Peace, Leader Stresses Need for Agreement Before Spring.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Ismet Pasha, in conversing with Lieutenant-General Harrington, the allied commander, reiterated, according to Reuter's Constantinople correspondent, his sincere desire for peace. He emphasized the necessity of reaching a settlement before spring, and expressed satisfaction at "having virtually reached an agreement with Great Britain."

Ismet added that the obstacles were economic questions, which were of primary importance to Turkey, a poor country economically, but far less essential to the allies.

will pass through rows of special Egyptian guards of honor detailed for the purpose.

Barrier of Loose Stones.

Emerging from the southern end of the stalwart ranks, they will come against a wall made of huge loose stones that will be the barrier to Tutankhamen's tomb, and will descend a few steps into a sort of miniature courtyard between the barrier and the centuries-old steps leading to a steep, smooth, descending passage. Then they will pass through a forbidding iron door and step across the threshold of the ante-chamber whither last November Lord Carnarvon, Howard Carter and a few friends first glimpsed the assorted treasures stored there by the priests for Tutankhamen.

In one corner they will see two sentry boxes containing two life-sized statues of Tutankhamen which for thousands of years have guarded the death chamber. The ante-chamber has been swept and where the priceless antiquities were an ugly gallery of rough boards has been constructed. On this the visitors will be accommodated while they gaze on the sacred scene beyond the gaping rent in the southern wall of the room.

The sepulchre will glow vividly with electric lights, and if Tutankhamen is awake he will see what must appear to him to be the spirit of the sun god whom once he worshiped.

There will be three huge 3000-candlepower electric orbs staring at him in unblinking intensity. Beyond the jagged hole in what until yesterday was Tutankhamen's screen the visitors will see a small mortuary chapel, its sides aglow with inscriptions. Filling the small room they will see a canopy four feet high, five and a half feet long and four feet wide exquisitely decorated with figures of Nephthis and Isis at one end and with four underworld deities on the longer sides. They will see several square yards of thick pure gold coating on the canopy and, if they could look inside they would see another canopy of smaller proportions gleam like an orange tree in full yield.

Collection of Crown Jewels.

Between the outer and inner canopies is a glorious collection of crown jewels, including magnificent scarabs of red, blue and green, such as modern man has neither seen nor conceived. Adjacent to the jewels is a heap of priceless amulets and among the gems an appealingly beautiful alabaster vase chalice shaped, its marvelous network transparent yet gleaming, and on either side at the top, two cups holding superb figures of Nephthis and Isis. They would also see a small, lovely statue of the god Horns with its hawk head of a perfect shape.

There is a coffin wonderfully decorated, but closed hermetically and locked in such a manner that it will be a heavy task to open it. And inside, if one can believe the cartouches on the seals on the sacophagus, are the mortal remains of the monarch who once held imperial sway over a great part of the Near East.

Unfortunately, the visitors will be unable to see the side room at the right of the mortuary chapel with its precious, glittering stock as yet untold and unlisted. There are funerary boats, four great, rich chariots resting on wheels whose yellow gleam betokens golden decoration; sealed ebony and ivory boxes, numerous chests and smaller boxes, fine vases of alabaster, unguent jars and two magnificent alabaster caskets of Nephthys and Isis, one containing an unusual quartette of canopic jars and the other, it is assumed, contains papyri or jewels.

Heap of Other Treasures.

A heap of other treasures submerged by those above them are still to be discovered. But it probably will be many months before the exact details of what is there will be known as it is understood that no attempts will be made to clear the chambers until the blazing heat of the coming summer has cooled into autumnal mildness.

When the visitors are sitting in that gallery if they will look carefully they will see another great and magnificent piece of art—a huge statue of a cat with a canopic jar set near it. That in brief is the program of the official opening of the world's most interesting exhibition as it is expected to happen tomorrow.

The scene that met the eyes of the discoverers when they first peered through the aperture of the sealed door into the inner chamber resembled nothing so much as a dimly lit stage set for a scene in a robber's den. Howard Carter was almost overcome for a moment, then he bent over and crept through the opening in the doorway into a small antechamber about 14 feet square. This was the mortuary chapel. Lord Carnarvon and Lady Evelyn Herbert followed Carter and then a number of experts, but the opening in the door was not large enough to admit those with generous waist lines.

Great Gilded Canopy.

In the center of this mortuary chapel was a great gilded wooden canopy, or other sarcophagus and one at corner was a huge statue of a cat exquisitely wrought. There also was a canopic jar outside the canopy resting on the floor. The walls are delicately, but magnificently decorated in the highest art of the Eighteenth Dynasty.

At the right of this mortuary chapel the discoverers found a larger room filled with a confused array of treasures. These were not examined closely for the time being, but there are four marvelous chariots decorated in the most costly manner.

The discoverers believe that robbers have been in the chamber because of the gold and precious ornaments which are scattered everywhere, but for the moment those who entered disregarded the material treasures while burning to have answered the question whether the Pharaoh's sleep had been disturbed.

Door of Canopy Opened.

A hasty examination of the first of the doors of the great canopy, decorated with figures designed to appease the gods before whom the soul must come for judgment, was reassuring, but inconclusive as it yielded with but little effort. Then came a second door which also yielded, only to disclose what appeared to be a door in the coffin itself. This door would not yield, and so force was needed to open it. This will means long and tedious work before the secret is torn from the coffin.

However, the discoverers say, enough has been revealed in the first day to prove to them that this is the tomb of the Pharaoh who ruled Upper and Lower Egypt and their tributary states. The sepulchre is set vividly with bright gems in the floor and on the chariots and other unimagined treasures. Among the royal hoard in the second chamber is an exquisite ebony and ivory box. There are also an alabaster vase with figures, another vase shaped like a cup with lotus flowers superbly wrought all around it. What are believed to be the jewels of the King were found beneath the canopy. No papyri were found, but it is believed that some may be in the coffin.

Flashlight photographs were taken during the investigation and then, suddenly, after the excitement had subsided a bit, members of the party realized that they were in the presence of the royal dead and they subdued their voices in reverence to whosoever's mortal remains lie embalmed beneath the great canopy.

By the Associated Press.

LUXOR, Feb. 17.—Pending the formal opening of Pharaoh Tutankhamen's tomb tomorrow, the experts were busily engaged today examing the marvels of antiquity which were unearthed yesterday when a preliminary view was taken of the hitherto unrevealed inner chamber. Albert M. Lythgoe, curator of Egyptian art of the Metropolitan Museum, New York, and H. E. Winlock, in charge of active excavation for the museum in Egypt, were among those who examined these treasures, which in addition to those inspected yesterday include two trays containing the royal seals.

Every stage of the proceeding of opening the tomb and inspecting the treasures is being photographed and recorded.

ON page 3 of Section Five (The True Life Story Section) of today's edition of the Post-Dispatch will be found an illuminating story of Pharaoh Tutankhamen and his times, containing a review of what is known of the history of his reign and an explanation by a famous Egyptologist of the possible reason for the deposit 3000 years ago of such an extraordinary collection of treasures in his tomb.

FIND OF MORE VALUE TO ART THAN TO HISTORY

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The discoveries in King Tutankhamen's tomb are of little historical significance, but their value to the more complete knowledge of ancient art is incalculable, officials of the British Museum say.

In explanation of their pessimism, the museum's experts point out that few objects differing materially from those already found have been discovered in the tomb. Furthermore, it does not contain the historical papyri and hieroglyphic inscriptions which it was hoped would throw light upon dark places in the world's knowledge of the period.

But the experts believe the contents of the tomb will tell a complete story of Egyptian art, a story that hitherto has only been fragmentary. They think the tomb will prove Tutankhamen's reign was marked by a veritable renaissance.

New Field for Artists.

Museum officials think a new field may be opened to modern artists as the excavators bring to light the strange original colors and entirely new expression of mural decoration. Just what the discovery contributes to the world's knowledge was explained as fololws by a museum expert:

"There may be a few new objects of art, but substantially identical things have long since been dug up by other expeditions. An American, Theodore Davis of Newport, discovered many things similar to those which are now being found in the tomb. This was in 1905. Davis even found several of Tutankhamen's personal belongings, but never located the tomb itself.

"The real importance of the discovery lies in the fact that its contents will now complete the picture of Egyptian art. For this reason it is the most valuable discovery made in Egypt.

"We are deeply disappointed, however, that certain documents clearing up uncertainties in the history of the period have not been found. It was thought they were in the tomb and that with them the present histories could be rewritten and made absolutely complete.

"The discoveeries in the Valley of the Tombs of the Kings will make many things clear in the Egyptian art of that time which heretofore have been incompletely understood. It is an interesting fact that Tutankhamen's reign saw a veritable renaissance of Egyptian art such as the Italian renaissance.

Revival of Interest in Art.

"This accounts for the extreme beauty and artistic perfection of the objects found. We are sure the discovery will revive deep interest in Egyptian art and give a great deal of inspiration to young artists anxious to explore unknown paths. Art had reached an extraordinarily high plane in those days, and I think things will gradually come to light which have been a closed book to artists of the Christian era.

"This is especially true in mural art, wherein the ancient Egyptians were highly skilled. The discoveries will make possible the writing of a clear, complete art history of Egypt."

There is much speculation as to whether any of the treasures of the tomb will find their way to England and the United States. The law requires that all royal objects shall be turned over to the Egyptian Government. However, the discoverers are usually allowed to keep a number of less important objects, and if this custom is followed now, it is probable that several objects will reach the Metropolitan Museum in New York.

MURCHISON WINS TWO A. A. U. CHAMPIONSHIPS

Concordia Is Defeated by De Pauw Five

Whirlwind Finish Wins for Visitors, 32 to 30—Local Team Leads by 9 Points at Half Time.

DE PAUW STIFFENED BY LONG JOURNEY

Greatly Rejuvenated in the Second Half, Hoosiers Overcome Concordia's Advantage at 28 to 27.

A whirlwind finish in the last 10 minutes of play enabled De Pauw University basketball team of Greencastle, Ind., to defeat the Concordia Seminary quintet at Francis Gymnasium last night by a score of 32 to 30.

The train carrying the De Pauw players was an hour late and as a result the game started at 10:15 o'clock. The visitors showed the effect of their long ride all through the first half, which ended with Concordia leading 20 to 11.

The visitors' playing was disorganized, while Concordia was running smoothly, and apparently bound for victory. Hartner, Concordia center, and Scheussler, forward, did most of the scoring.

The De Pauw players looked like an entirely rejuvenated outfit when they took the floor for the second half. Their play was fierce and in a surprisingly short time they were on the heels of the locals. Both teams scored, but De Pauw's tally advanced at the rate of 2 to 1, mainly because of the shooting of Mark Bills, De Pauw's left forward.

Concordia was still leading at 27-26 when Young threw a field goal giving De Pau the lead at 28-27. While Harger was throwing 3 foul goals, Captain White and Laughlin registered field goals, making the final score 32-30 as the game ended.

Hartner of Concordia was high point scorer with a total of 22, 12 of which came from free throws. The rangey center missed only two chances. Bills, with a total of 12 points scored on field goals, and Laughlin, also with 12 points, 4 resulting from fouls, led the attack for De Pau.

A preliminary game between the Holy Cross and Troy Athletic Club game was won easily by the former, [illegible] to 14.

A large crowd witnessed both contests.

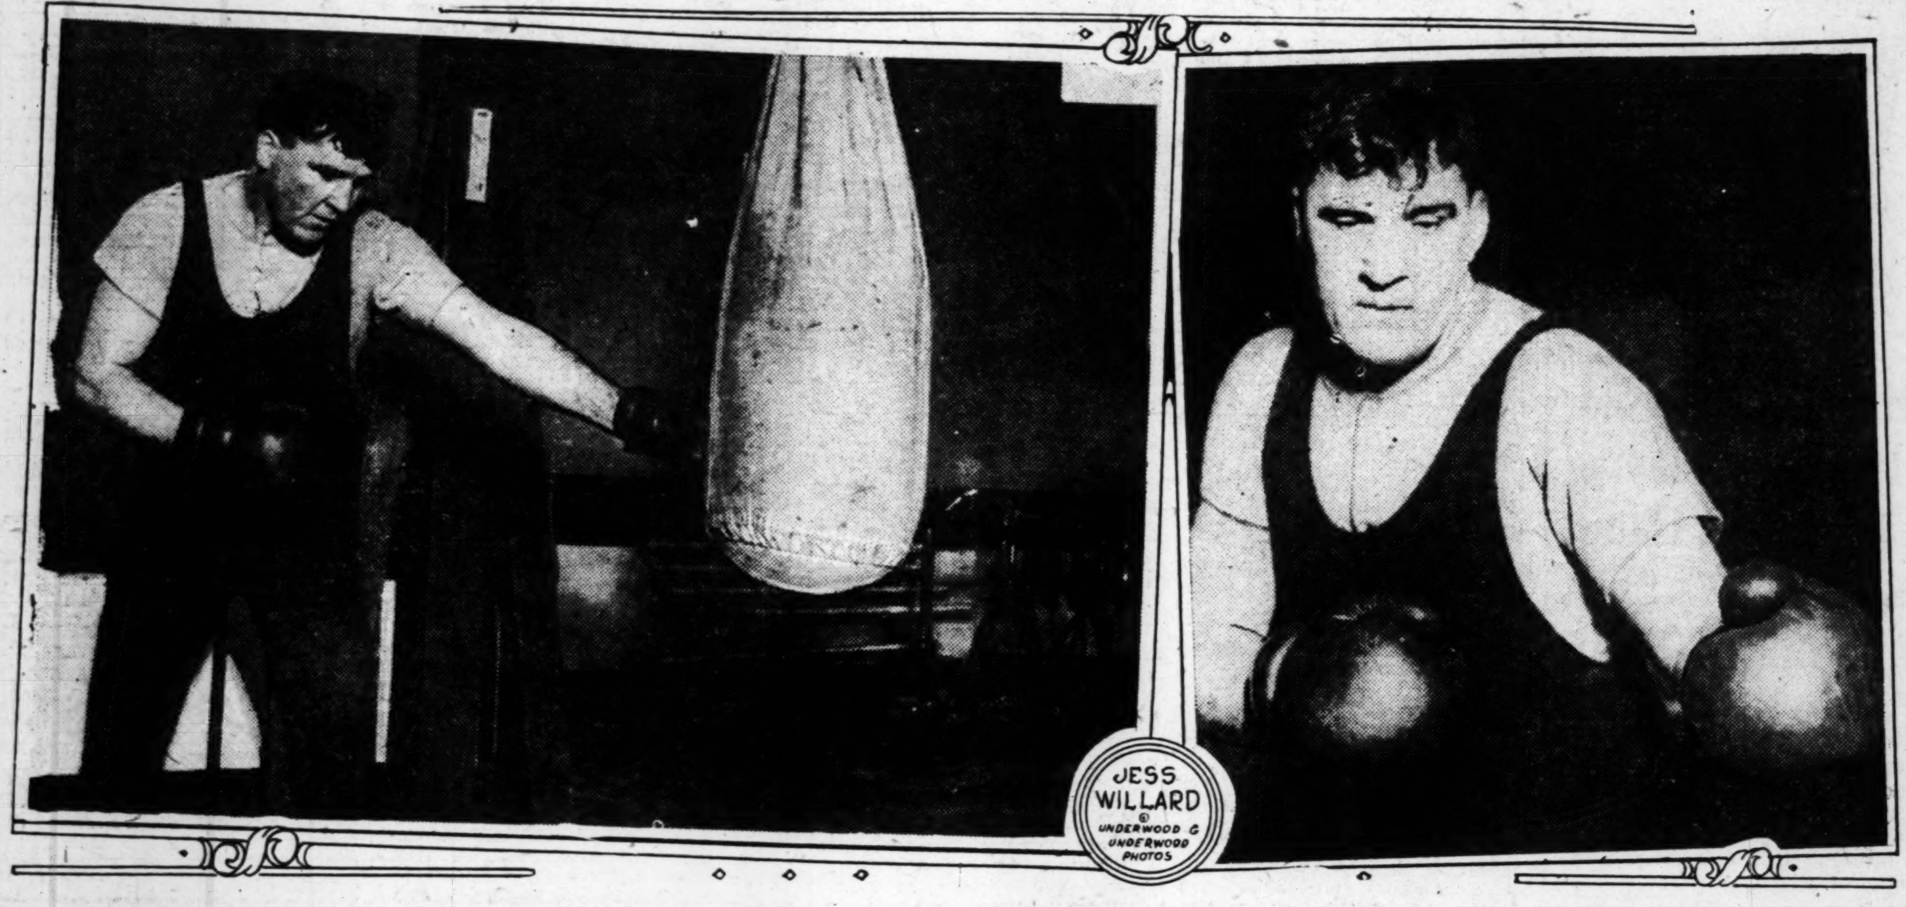
Here's Big Jess Willard, as He Looked Just Before Starting on His 20 Days' Exhibition Tour



Critics Guess at Willard's Weight While Jess Fights Shy of Scales

Edgren Believes Former Champion Weighs 300 Pounds, Although Jess Has Maintained for Years That He Goes "Just About 265"—Points to Inconsistencies in Muldoon's Policy.

By Robert Edgren.

A friend of mine watched Jesse Willard at work in the Garden gymnasium the other day, and afterward we had a guessing contest over Willard's weight. He guessed 290 pounds. But if Jess did not weigh 300 on any scales that aren't fixed in advance, my judgment of weight is all off. I've seen a few thousand athletes, too, in the past few years.

There is Pat McDonald, the shot-putter, three inches less tall than Willard, no fatter, but perhaps with thicker calves. Hope Pat will pardon this intimate discussion of his anatomy. What I'm getting to is that Pat weighs about 305 pounds in condition. That was his weight when he last crossed the ocean to win a shot-put in the Olympic games as one of the champions of the American team. How Pat can weigh 305 and Willard 265 (the weight Jess claims) puzzles me.

Then, there is Pat Ryan, the hammer thrower, 6 feet 4½, against Willard's 6 feet 7, and with thinner legs, weighing about 315 pounds, and Matt McGrath, 6 feet 2 inches tall, weighing 285. Willard looks big enough to outweigh any of them.

The funny thing about Willard's weight is that for several years Jess has claimed that he was "just about 265." He told me that was his weight before he trained for the fight at Toledo. Not an ounce over 265, Jess averred. Today Jess fixes his weight at 265 pounds, as he did several months ago, when he started a light training period. He seems to like the "I weigh, 265 pounds."

Weighed 325 Pounds.

Long before he was champion Jess weighed 325 pounds when out of condition. That's 60 pounds more than he thinks he weighs today. He can carry a lot of weight. A man 6 feet 7 inches tall and built up by 300 years of exercise can weigh 300 pounds without being much out of proportion.

The joker in all this discussion of Willard's weight is that nobody has seen Jess on the scales. Jess will walk right past a pair of scales without batting an eye. "Come on, Jess," you say, "let's see what you weigh."

"What's the use?" says Jess, giving the scales a friendly kick and starting for the door. "I know what I weigh, 265 pounds."

That ends the discussion. You can't call Jess a liar.

Muldoon's Attitude.

Seems to me that Mr. Muldoon is a little too arbitrary in denying people a right to set-to with Dempsey. Muldoon says Willard is too old to fight Dempsey. "Says he's satisfied Jess is over 40, although Jess says he's only 36 and can prove it.

Mr. Muldoon denied Tom Gibbons a right to box Dempsey. Said Gibbons is too small. Gibbons had posted a forfeit and had to take it down again. Mr. Muldoon denied Greb a chance to box Dempsey on the same ground.

He refused to let Bill Brennan box Dempsey because he wasn't good enough. Bill is 20 pounds bigger than Dempsey. He was good enough to smear Jack considerably for about 10 rounds of fighting a couple of years ago, though Jack beat him in the twelfth.

Tom Gibbons weighs about 175 pounds. Dempsey weighed 183 at Toledo and 186 at Jersey City. He'd be about 11 pounds bigger than Gibbons. That isn't an overwhelming advantage among heavyweights.

Dempsey, between 180 and 185 pounds, knocked out Fulton, who weighed 220. He knocked out Willard, who weighed about 245. He knocked out Carl Morris, who weighed about 225.

I asked Dempsey about the weight question once. He said he liked to fight bigger men, because they are slower, and when two men are both hard hitters the faster man wins. He said small, fast men always gave him more trouble than the giants, and that Harry Greb would probably give him more trouble than any of the big men did. We were visiting Jim Jeffries that day and Jim was interested in the talk.

"Yes," said Jim, "and of all the men I ever fought Bob Fitzsimmons, a middleweight, damaged me the most; Joe Choynski, who weighed 165 pounds, hit me the hardest punch I ever felt; and Tom Sharkey was the hardest man to fight that I ever met. Tom was strong and short and always coming in awful fast. He only weighed 183 pounds, but he was the toughest man to beat I ever faced."

Case of Fitzsimmons.

Bob Fitzsimmons weighed only 156 pounds when he knocked out heavyweight champion Jim Corbett. Probably Mr. Muldoon would have barred Fitzsimmons from meeting Corbett at all, because of the difference in weight, if it had been up to him. But weight isn't always what makes a fighter. A wildcat weighing 40 pounds can kill a 200-pound buck.

Coming back to New York from the fight at Toledo I met Mr. Muldoon. We talked over the comparative ability of John L. Sullivan and Jack Dempsey. I knew Mr. Muldoon was a great admirer of Sullivan as a fighter. He was of the opinion that Sullivan was a better boxer than Dempsey, but thought Dempsey's tremendous straight hitting might beat even the great John L. Perhaps Mr. Muldoon's notion that a smaller man couldn't have a chance with the present champion is based on what he saw Dempsey do to Willard.

But if we make up our minds that the outsider never has a chance to beat a champion there'll be no new champions. The defeat of a champion always is expected. Afterward anyone can figure out why it happened.

Central and Cleveland Win High School Basket Contests

Victory for Mid-City Five Over McKinley by 41 to 15 Score Virtually Clinches Title—Yeatman Quintet Is Defeated, 30 to 14.

Central High School basket ball team virtually clinched the local league championship by defeating McKinley, 41 to 15, at the Cleveland auditorium last night. Cleveland won from Yeatman in the afternoon game, 30 to 14.

It would be necessary for Central to lose both of its remaining league games, one with Soldan and one with Cleveland, to lose its hold on first place. If such a thing should come to pass and Cleveland should win both remaining contests, the teams would be tied for the lead. Central has not lost a league game this season.

It was expected in some quarters that McKinley, making its last stand for a chance at the championship, would fight Central to a close decision. There is no question that the South Side players went to their task with a vim, but Central was even better than usual and literally swept its opposition away. The Red and Black opened with a dash and method which gave it 9 points before McKinley had scored a single point.

At the close of the first half Central had assumed a lead of 15 to 7. McKinley was playing desperately every step of the way and guarding well.

In the second period Central ran off with the score and the laurels. The tally was run up to 38 to 8, and in the last five minutes Coach Callan had his second team on the floor. Syberg, the McKinley star, was effectively guarded for the first time this season. He was unable to score a single basket from the field.

Cleveland played a greatly improved game in defeating Yeatman in the afternoon contest. So completely were the North Siders outclassed that at the end of the first half the score was 17 to 3. In the middle of the first period Coach Fenenga withdrew three of his regulars, Kaiser, Pate and Williams, and held Yeatman well under control with three substitutes.

Kaiser, Pate and Reinhardt formed a good scoring combination. Cleveland scored 5 points before Yeatman broke into the scoring column. The count was run up to 14 to 2 before Fenenga pulled out his regulars.

Late in the second half Hannegan put on an individual scoring storm for Yeatman and succeeded in dropping three shots through the cage.

St. Louisan Captures 60 and 300 Titles; Ray Sets New Record

Chicago Middle-Distance Runner Negotiates Two Miles in 9 Minutes, 10 2-5 Seconds, in Defeating Ritola.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb 17.—Loren Murchison, the St. Louis sprinter running under the colors of the Newark A. C., was a double winner in the annual indoor track and field championship meet of the A. A. U. here tonight. Murchison captured both the 60 and 300 yard titles.

It is the second time in three years that Murchison has held both championships. He lost out a year ago, when Allen Woodring beat him in close to world's record time in the 300.

In gaining the 60-yard title, the St. Louis flyer, tied the championship record of 6 2-5 seconds. It is a second slower than the world's record, which he himself established at the Millrose A. A. games in New York, Jan. 31. Rusnak, of Yale, was second.

Murchison negotiated the 300 yards in 31 1-5 seconds in regaining the title. This equalled the world's record. Lochnicht was his closest competitor.

Ray Sets American Record.

Joie Ray, the Chicago middle distance star, who has been shattering one record after another this season, established a new championship and American indoor mark in winning the two-mile race from Willie Ritola. Ray ran the distance in 9 minutes 10 2-5 seconds. This, however, is two seconds behind the best time credited to the Chicagoan himself.

The world's record of 8 4-5 seconds for the 70 yards high hurdles was tied for W. K. Anderson of the Illinois A. C. In the trial heat, both Anderson and Wallace of the Chicago A. A. went over the sticks in nine flat.

The Illinois A. C. team, composed of Rosen, Dowding, Watson and Ray, established a new world's record of 7 minutes 35 2-5 seconds in capturing the one and seven-eighths miles medley relay race from Georgetown University.

With Ray out of the 1000-yard run, Ray Watson, his teammate on the Illinois A. C., was never out of the lead, winning handily in 2 1-5 seconds slower than the best mark for the distance.

Earl E. Elby of the Illinois A. C. came from sixth place to win the 600-yard run. A spill on the second turn put two of the contestants out of the running.

Harold M. Osborne of the Illinois A. C. cleared the bar at 6 ft. 4 in. in the running high jump, to equal the senior indoor record.

The Illinois A. C. captured first place in the meet with 46 points. The Chicago A. A. was the nearest rival with 23 points.

MRS. MALLORY SAYS SHE HAS NO CHIP ON SHOULDER

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 17.—Such minor affairs as world's tennis championships and rivalry with Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen as to who is the first woman tennis player of the world seemed to rest lightly upon the brow of Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, today as she whisked through Paris' finest shops, having suddenly discovered she needed a new dress more urgently than a new tennis racket or other paraphernalia for the game.

"I am not coming here with a chip on my shoulder, looking for trouble," Mrs. Mallory explained. "I like to play tennis to while away the time on the long sunny afternoons of the Riviera. I am challenging no one and expect to receive no challenges, but will play all comers."

The Signing of "Specs" Toporcer Indicates That the Cardinals Will Have a Look-In for the Flag

Cubs Are Already on Way; Cardinals Start This Week For Spring Training Camp

Browns Are Scheduled to Depart for Mobile, Feb. 26 — Next Two Weeks Will See All but Three of Major Leagues Teams at Work in the South.

By Herman Wecke.

Before another two weeks have passed, all but three of the 16 major league clubs will be busy at the spring training camps. The three exceptions are the New York Yankees, Cincinnati and Pittsburg.

The Reds will get the latest start of any of the aggregations in the big tent. Pat Moran's men are not scheduled to start work until March 10. The Yanks and Pirates both get busy March 6.

One of St. Louis' clubs departs this week-end, the advance guard of the Cardinals, including the pitchers and many of the young infielders, being due to start at 4:04 p. m. Saturday for Bradentown, Fla. Unless present plans miscarry, the first workout in Florida will be held Feb. 27.

Originally, the Browns were booked to start for Mobile, Feb. 25. However, this was later changed and the Fohlie pitchers do not start for the regions below the Mason and Dixon line until next Monday morning at 8:15 o'clock.

The Chicago Cubs were the real early birds of the season. Bill Killefer's pitchers and infielders left Chicago yesterday. But then the Bruins have a mighty long cross-country trip which does not end until the Catalina Islands of California are reached. One of the early advance guard of the Cubs was Bobby Wallace, the former Brownie shortstop, who is going along to act as coach of the young infielders. Wallace departed last night and will pick up the rest of the squad at Kansas City today.

Cubs Already En Route.

While the Chicago Nationals have the honor of being the first club to get on the way for warmer climates, the Giants will not be far behind, as McGraw's early squad is booked to depart from the Gay White Way tomorrow. And this ground includes Jack Bentley, the pitcher-first sacker-slugger purchased from Baltimore, who has recently stated that he will give up baseball unless given a portion of the $65,000 the Giants are reported to have paid for him.

Although the training season does not officially open before another week has passed, many of the players are already at work at Hot Springs. These include members of the Cleveland Indians, Yankees and Nationals.

Three members of the Cardinals also will reach Bradentown ahead of the first squad, unless they are held up en route. Rogers Hornsby, Eddie Ainsmith and Bill Pertica departed by automobile last Friday and hope to arrive at the camp Feb. 22.

Probably on no other club in the majors is the "big star" of the aggregation showing the same spirit as evinced by Hornsby. Usually the star is the last man to report in the spring. But Hornsby is going south early—not by orders from Manager Rickey, but because he wanted to. He will help the Cardinal manager in coaching the infield hopefuls. Pertica wants to get an early start, as he is hopeful that he will be of more use to the club this season than he was a year ago.

Boston—Depart March 2 for Hot Springs, Ark.

Urban Shocker, Browns' Hurling Ace, Probably Will Depart Ahead of Mates

There also is a possibility that Urban Shocker, the Browns' star right-hander, who last week signed his 1923 contract, will make his departure for Mobile ahead of the remainder of the first squad.

Members of the Cardinals, who have been asked to report with the first squad are as follows: Pitchers, Sell, Knight, Stuart, Wigington, Stiely, Boone, Learn and Sullivan; catchers, McCurdy and McDermott; infielders, Freigau, Makin and Holm; outfielders, Blades and Mueller. In addition there will be Acting Manager Burt Shotton, Roy Thomas, coach; Charley Barrett, Joe Sudgen, Fred Hunter, manager of the Fort Smith team; Hunter Hill, the Houston leader, and Secretary Lloyd.

Players of the Browns, who are booked to get to work at Mobile ahead of the regulars are: Pitchers Davis, Elliott, Kolp, Kraft, Root, Thurston, Wright, Bayne, Danforth, Donovan, Payne, Blaeholder, Vangilder, Pruett and Shocker; catchers, Severeid, Collins, Billings and Schulte; outfielders, Tobin and Bennett. The coaches will be Leifield, Austin, Wellman and Bob Coleman, manager of the San Antonio club.

Florida will be a hotbed for the major league teams this spring. Seven major league aggregations are scheduled to train in the State, and within the next two weeks something like 250 baseball players who aspire to places with the clubs in 1923. The teams to train in Florida this spring are the Cardinals, Dodgers, Braves, Reds, Phillies, Nationals and Indians.

Probably the smallest group of players at any of these camps will be at Lakeland, where Tris Speaker will send the Cleveland hopefuls through the early paces. Speaker has announced that he will take but 28 men South. This is the smallest number that has accompanied a major league aggregation South in many campaigns. But Speaker had many of his youngsters up last fall and knows pretty well what they are capable of doing. Another argument from the Indians' manager is that he will be better able to look over his talent. All of which probably is true.

These seven Florida camps are within a radius of 100 miles of each other, and Branch Rickey to get plenty of actual competition for his athletes before the start of the campaign, has booked games with six of the number. Brooklyn is the only team that will not be played in Florida by the Knot Hole gang.

In fact four of these training camps are not more than 50 miles apart. They are Bradentown, Tampa, St. Petersburg and Florida. Orlando and Leesburg are further away from Bradentown than any other. They are about 100 miles distant. The Cardinals' camp is further south than any of the others.

Texas, which formerly housed most of the major league teams in the spring, has been given the go by. Only two aggregations, the Giants and White Sox, will condition in the State this spring.

The Red Sox and Pirates still stick to their first love, Hot Springs, Ark. Two outfits, the Browns and Athletics, will train in Alabama, Connie Mack, taking his hopefuls to Montgomery, where the Browns conditioned the first season that Del Pratt was a major leaguer. Cobb will again take his athletes to Augusta, Ga., his home town.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

AMES, Ia., Feb 17.—Iowa State College boxers defeated Washington University four bouts to three here today in the first intercollegiate tournament ever held in the Missouri Valley. Dawson, lightweight, was the ace of the Washington battlers, gaining a decision over Albert Cilley in four rounds. The Cilleys are brothers and hail from Buenos Aires, Argentine, the home of Luis Firpo.

Heydler Sees No Harm in Playing Of Spring Games

Clashes in South Between N. L. Clubs Good Practice for Rival Athletes.

There will be no opposition from the office of John Heydler, president of the National League, against the playing of exhibition games in Florida between the Dodgers, Cardinals and Braves.

Brooklyn has scheduled games with the Braves and the Cardinals also have several exhibition games with Boston on their spring schedule. There has been considerable criticism in certain circles against the booking of these contests between teams of the same league on the ground that it is bad for baseball.

In 1916, the year that the Cubs and Chicago Federals merged, the new Chicago team was defeated in seven spring exhibition games by the Phillies, and it was an early indication that the team recruited largely from the Federal League champions of 1915 would not do in the National League. There is no doubt that these training camp defeats inflicted by a team of the same league took quite a bit of the edge off the Chicago National opening.

Sees No Harm in Games.

"I see no harm in these early games between teams of our own league, so long as they are confined to the respective training camps of these teams," said Heydler. "I would not sanction such games under any other conditions, and certainly would oppose exhibition games between teams of our own league if they were played on the home grounds of our clubs.

"However, I look at these early games as little different from the usual training camp games between the regulars and rookies. Managers use their pitchers in relays and whether they win or lose these games, is of little significance. The main thing is for the players to get plenty of practice.

"For that reason I see no more harm in the Brooklyn club meeting the Braves at Clearwater than if they played the Washington and Cleveland clubs. The National League has quite an asset in Hornsby, and so long as the Cardinals will train in Florida I see no harm in showing Hornsby at other nearby National League camps."

Heydler says that he intends to take a long vacation on the Pacific Coast.

U. S. Will Send Many Athletes to Europe This Year

Tennis, Golf, Track and Racquets Players Will Compete on Foreign Soil.

Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, United States women's tennis champion, whose stormy encounters with Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, holder of the world's women's championship, enlivened international competition last season, sailed for England aboard the S. S. Olympic recently to exchange the season's greetings with her rival on the clay courts of France. The departure of the United States title holder will mark the first notable step in the wholesale European invasion by America's sport army.

Nine American women tennis stars, Mrs. Mallory, Miss Leslie Bancroft, Miss Martha Bayard, Miss Eleanor Goss, Miss Florence Ballin, Miss Katherine Gardner, Miss Eleanora Sears, Miss Edith Sigourney and Miss Isabella Lee Mumford, will form the vanguard of the expeditionary force which will ultimately include golf amateurs and professionals, track and field champions, the stars of the United States amateur racquet world and a stray exponent of the alleged manly art of self-defense.

The imposing program of invasion mapped out by United States athletes this year is in startling contrast with the somewhat frugal program of a year ago. The United States was represented abroad last summer in tennis and golf, the bulk of the American strength being needed here to repel the onslaught of Davis cup contenders, the Argentine polo team, the amateur and professional golfers of England and England's premier girl swimming champion, Miss Hilda James.

Conditions are now reversed, and within the next few months these famous American champions will be furrowing the Atlantic bent on new struggles. Miss Alexa Stirling, Walter Hagen, Jim Barnes, Jock Hutchison, Gene Sarazen, Bobby Jones, Jess Sweetser, Chick Evans and Francis Ouimet of the golfing clan; Clarence C. Pell, Stanley G. Mortimer, Jay Gould and Joseph W. Wear of the amateur racqueters; a combined Yale-Harvard track team, a team of Americans of Irish descent to compete in the Irish Olympics, a semi-United States Olympic array to appear in the Swedish centennial sports carnival, an American bowling team, and Mike McTigue, American middleweight boxer, who has been signed to meet Battling Siki in Dublin on St. Patrick's day. The invasion of foreigners this year will be comparatively small.

International Boxing Union Deprives Wilde of Flyweight Title

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 17.

BATTLING SIKI remains light-heavyweight champion of the world by decision of the International Boxing Union today. It also was agreed that Jimmy Wilde, the English boxer, has remained out of the game too long to hold his title of flyweight champion of Europe. This championship was given by the union to the Belgian champion, Montreuil. The union recommended a contest between Montreuil and Pancho Villa, the American flyweight champion.

The champions who retain their titles, according to the decision of the union, are: Heavyweight, Jack Dempsey; bantamweight, Joe Lynch; featherweight, Johnny Kilbane; lightweight, Benny Leonard; middleweight, Johnny Wilson.

The union expressed regret over the absence of representatives from the United States and British federations. The presidency of the union was left vacant for an American, while the vice presidency was left vacant for a representative of the British federation.

Vesper Team Plays Ben Millers Today

National Champion Scullins Oppose Hoovers in Other Soccer League Tilt.

Today's feature game in the St. Louis Soccer League at High School Field brings together the leading Vespers and the improved Ben Millers. This will be the first clash of the weekly double header. In the closing encounter, the national champion Scullins face the Hoovers. First tilt at 2 o'clock.

The Vespers are at present leading by a margin of 2 points. The Scullins, with four absentees in last Sunday's clash, are expected to present a stronger front today. One thing certain Jimmy Brannigan will be back on the forward line.

Victories for the Ben Millers and Hoovers today will put the elevens in a bunch, with only 4 points separating the first and last teams.

Murphy.

The track men who are being honored are Talbot, Finnegan, McElroy, Neenan, Morrison, Ryan and J. Swanton, the basketeers; Steele, Kelly, Best, Saunders, Reilly, Colin, Eggler, Grennan and Karl Weber. The "fresh" of last fall's football squad who receive numerals are Romasciotti, McMonogle, Tegethoff, O'Toole, Russell, Reilly, Kinder, Tibi, Rousseau, Stock De Noyer and J. Neenan.

Sizing up this list, and with only two men being lost through graduation, it means that Coach Steve O'Rourke will have at least 35 experienced football candidates answering the call next September.

GARDNER WILL CAPTAIN U. S. GOLF TEAM IN WALKER CUP MATCHES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Obstacles that appeared in th eway of mustering America's amateur golf forces for the invasion of England this year rapidly are disappearing, it was indicated tonight by the United States Golf Assocation, and present prospects point to the formation of an especially strong team for both the Walker Cup matches and the British amateur championship.

Robert A. Gardner of Chicago, twice national champion, it was announced, has tentatively accepted the captaincy of the American team and has already begun gathering his forces.

Gardner was one of the victors in the idividual matches of last year's Walker Cup competition when the United States defeated Great Britain, eight matches to four. He also was runnerup in the British amateur title event of 1920, losing to Cyril J. H. Tolley on the thirty-seventh hole after a stirring match.

Ten players will be selected for this year's team. Practically definite assurance has been given that two of the outstanding younger stars—Jesse Sweetser of Yale, National champion, and Bobby Jones of Atlanta and Harvard—will be able to obtain leaves of absence. Francis Ouimet, veteran Boston star, Jesse Guilford, also of Boston, and S. Davidson Herron of Chicago, all former national title holders, are counted upon to join the invaders, while other likely candidates include Rudolph Knepper of Princeton and Harrison Johnston of St. Paul.

Londos Has Two Plans to Combat Lewis' Headlock

Greek Champion Perfecting Defense Against Wrestling Champion's Pet Hold.

If plans of Jimmy Londos work out in a regular match as they have in practice, the Greek wrestling champion will have a defense against Ed "Strangler" Lewis' famous headlock, when the two meet in the championship match to be held at the Coliseum Tuesday night.

Realizing that his chance for victory will be much greater with an adequate defense against the champion's pet hold, Londos, in his workouts the past two days, has been devising means of offsetting the headlock. Londos thinks he has worked out a system whereby he will be able to dethrone the big Californian.

In workouts at the National A. C. against Kozak Sanosian, an Armenian-Turk, and Boris Dimitroff, hefty Bulgarian, Londos has been using two different schemes.

One is mainly a defensive move while the other is a combination of defense and attack. Londos' last plan, as worked out in daily training, is to grab an opponent's arm from around his neck and turn it into a jiu jitsu arm lock. The other method for offsetting the headlock is to kick the rival's far leg from behind while obtaining a crotch hold on the leg closest to him.

Lewis to Arrive Today.

Against his training partners both these systems have worked out to perfection. But just how successful they will be against the world's champion remains to be seen.

Lewis is expected to arrive in the city this morning and probably will take a light workout this afternoon and tomorrow.

Renato Gardini, Italian champion, who meets Carl Schulz, Chicago German, is also due to reach St. Louis today. It will be Gardini's first appearance here and he is attracting nearly as much attention as Lewis and Londos.

The opening bout will bring together Al Wasem of St. Louis, former lightweight champion, and Young Yussif Hussane of Chicago. Wasem will be outweighed by about 10 pounds, but his speed and science is expected to offset the handicap of weight. Wasem has been showing wonderful form since his return to the mat about a year ago. He has captured six straight matches.

NEXT MEETING MARCH 17

George Wightman Heads Special Committee, Appointed to Foster Municipal Tennis.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—If St. Louis cares to go after the first National Municipal tennis tournament, to be held this summer, it will probably get it.

St. Louis, though it made a good impression with its bid, was nosed out for the National clay courts championship by Indianapolis.

Philadelphia has landed the national singles championship.

Philadelphia and Chicago are after the municipal meet, but for this event, with all its great publicity value to the entertaining city, St. Louis has the call.

If St. Louis wants this meet the Municipal Athletic Association or the Municipal Tennis Association should apply for it to the Executive Committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association. The next meeting of the committee will be held on March 17.

There are several good reasons why St. Louis may expect to get the municipal tournament, if it puts in a claim. One is the city's central location. Another is the fact that the Philadelphia tennis organization and the Western Lawn Tennis Association have been taken care of by previous awards. A third is the fame of the city for its municipal tennis system, and a fourth is the fact that Dwight F. Davis of St. Louis, temporarily of Washington, is the newly-elected president of the National Tennis Association and would be mightily pleased to see the meet go to his old home town.

Davis Favors St. Louis.

Davis is tremendously interested in plans for the forthcoming meet. He cannot, of course, commit himself to any city in advance, but it's a fair assumption that the warmest spot in his heart is for St. Louis.

Another thing that makes St. Louis the logical place for the tournament is that city's possession of a municipal tennis cup, awarded in 1915 or thereabouts, to an organization that has since gone out of existence—the National Municipal Federation. It would be a graceful act, Davis thinks, for St. Louis to turn over that cup to the United States Lawn Tennis Association to be competed for in the municipal tournament next summer.

St. Louis tennis activities are well organized and the city could handle the meet as well as any other in the country. The matches would be played, probably, on the public courts in Forest Park. A big gallery would be attracted from St. Louis and other competing cities.

Davis thinks that from 15 to 20 can be counted on for entrants. It is his idea that local tournaments will be held in each city, to select contestants in singles and doubles for the national meet, and that all the while these matches are going on, and subsequently during the finals, the city selected for the meet will figure prominently in the sport headlines through the country.

U. S. T. A. Favors Municipal Tennis.

The U. S. Lawn Tennis Association, according to Davis, intends to foster municipal tennis in every possible way, and a special committee headed by George Wightman of Boston, vice president of the association, has been appointed for that purpose. The St. Louis system is being held up as a model for other cities.

At the recent annual meeting of the Tennis Association in New York Davis told something of what St. Louis was doing to get the residents to take real exercise on tennis courts as well as vicarious exercise on the baseball bleachers.

"I told them," he said, "that one person out of every 25 in the city had a municipal tennis permit, and they held up their hands in astonishment and said that no other city could match that record.

As a result of wide publication of Davis' remarks, he is getting letters from all over the country asking for more information about the St. Louis system.

Sarazen Says Golf Champion Has Great Responsibilities

Titleholder Writes That Player Is Always in Immediate Touch With His Audience—Decries Stories of $50,000 Bank Account in One Season.

By Gene Sarazen,
World's Champion Golfer.
(Copyright, 1923.)

Immediately after winning the National Open Championship, I obtained permission from my club to visit my parents. I wanted to tell them of my good fortune and I knew they would be anxious to see me. For about a week or ten days I was like a man in a trance. I could scarcely realize what it was all about.

GENE SARAZEN.

With the strain of the competition over, I suffered a "relax"—so to speak. All golfers do after a big competition. When I resumed playing, I couldn't hit the ball at all.

I remained in this slump for about 10 days and no matter how hard I tried, it seemed absolutely impossible for me to hit a shot. I was wild and my form was wretched.

I would advise all golfers, after a hard tournament to keep right on playing, and to work back to top form gradually with a little practice each day. This, I think, is the best method, for if you lay off the game for a spell, particularly after a tournament, it is extremely hard to get back to form and to get the proper touch.

A few weeks after the Skokie tournament I began to receive offers for exhibition matches. One of these came from the Spring Lake Club. It wanted me to select my own opponent. When I named Jim Barnes, my friends were astonished.

"Why are you picking Barnes to play against?" they asked. "If he beats you they will all say your winning of the national open was an accident."

"Well," I replied, "if I am going to be beaten, I prefer to be the victim of a topnotcher rather than of some mediocre player. I feel my chances of defeating Barnes are just as good as they would be against any other players."

It so happened that I was going very well at Spring Lake and managed to defeat Long Jim by 5 and 4.

Open Should Pay $5000.

Other exhibition matches followed, all of them four-ball games. It is from those games that I derived most of my revenue last summer, and this leads me to an explanation of the actual money a champion makes in a season. I won't get rich this year and I never heard of any other champion in golf cleaning up in a single season.

I have to smile when I read of how I will build up a "bank account of $50,000" this year! There isn't that much money in the world—at least for me. To begin with, we (and that goes for the majority of the field) get nothing out of the national open championship.

I hope the time will come when the man who wins this title will receive a substantial sum from the U. S. G. A. By a substantial sum I mean at least $5000.

And I would like to know one good reason why the winner should not receive this amount, especially now that the U. S. G. A. is charging a gate fee.

I know of no show or exhibition or competition more thrilling or more interesting than National Open Tournament. Men who have worked and practiced for years—have given their whole life, in fact, in building up the game of golf—convene for this competition. In what other field of sport is the champion so meagrely paid?

To sum up, the winning of the national Open Golf title offers these possibilities—a better position; exhibition matches to the number of perhaps 20 or 30, at an average fee of $150 and a few other incidental prizes.

Golf High Class Sport.

I am really not complaining, for I would not exchange my title for Jack Dempsey's or Babe Ruth's or any other athlete's. I believe golf to be the most scientific and the highest class kind of sport in existence, and the time is coming what with the tremendous growth in popularity when champions in golf will be amply rewarded.

And I might mention also, that a golf champion has greater responsibility than any other title holder. The fighter is seen only in the ring, and from a distance; the baseball player is seen on the field of action, so are tennis stars, football players, bicycle riders and all others.

But a golf star is in immediate touch with his audience at all times. It follows closely upon his heels, watches every action he makes with a critical eye, and is in position to pounce upon him if he shows any indication of not meeting with the approval of the public.

After I had recovered from the strain of the National Tournament, I began playing well again. My exhibition matches helped me considerably to keep in condition; also, I still managed, between games, to get in a certain amount of practice.

I had my eye on the professional championship and was working for the title also.

I felt confident about that meeting, and figured that if I could defeat such a great field as was at Skokie in medal play I ought to have as good, if not a better chance, of winning in the professional tournament where match play is the game.

WESTERN M. A. FIVE DEFEATS PRINCIPIA

The Western Military Academy basketball team defeated the Principia five, 25 to 19, in a game in Howard Gym, Principia, yesterday afternoon. Play was somewhat slow in the first half, but towards the end of the game it was very fast.

Western took the lead at the start of the contest and held it during the remainder. The score was 14 to 9 in favor of the visitors when the first half ended. Coach Marquard's players made a brilliant effort to win the game in the second half. With the score 25 to 9 against them, the Principia players braced and counted 10 points, Western failing to score.

Right Forward Fisher scored a total of 14 points for Western, while McDaniels also did good work for the winners. Rice and Clark, the forwards, led in the scoring for the losers. The Principia team will meet the Central High quintet in its next contest Tuesday afternoon. Central won the first game between the fives by a 25-to-15 score.

In the preliminary game yesterday the Principia second team nosed out the Western seconds by a 15-to-13 score. A basket by McRoberts in the last minute of play gave Principia the victory.

BOUDOIR LAMPS, INCENSE BURNERS BOUGHT BY STATE

Former Art Shop Clerk Says Woman Employes of Hackmann and Mosby Charged Articles to Office.

SAYS PRICES WERE RAISED TO STATE

Cigar Cutters and Lighters, Fancy Toilet Sets and Perfume Holders Also Listed Among Articles Purchased.

By CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 17.—Incense burners, incense powder, fancy toilet sets, decorative book ends, decorative lamp shades for bed room lamps, cigar cutters and cigar lighters were among items purchased by young women employes of the State and charged to the State, according to testimony yesterday before the Farris Investigating Committee.

Mrs. Elizabeth Miller Mann of Jefferson City, formerly an employe in the Botz Art Shop, was the witness who testified to the purchases, which have been matters of gossip in Jefferson City for several months.

"About the first of September last year," testified Mrs. Mann in response to questions asked by Senator Farris, "Miss Nellie Stewart and another lady came into the shop and made some purchases.

Raised Price to State.

"Miss Stewart bought a decorative shade for a bedroom lamp. The price was $5. The other lady bought polychrome book ends, handsomely embossed with a likeness of Voltaire. The price was $5, but we charged $6 in this case."

"Why $6 in this case?" asked Senator Pickett.

"Because it was to be charged to the State."

"Do you mean to say that you have one price for the State and another price for other purchasers?" demanded Pickett.

"Oh, yes, Mr. Botz always does that."

"How much increase for the State?"

"Well, if it could be doubled without causing too much commotion that would be done."

"Who was this other lady?" Senator Hamlin asked.

"Miss Frances Mosby."

Miss Mosby is the daughter of T. Speed Mosby, State Beverage Inspector, and is an employe of his office. Miss Stewart formerly was an employe in the office of State Auditor Hackmann. Previous testimony has been that Hackmann paid her salary for six weeks after she left his employ.

Not for Office Use.

"Were these articles suitable for office use?" asked Senator Farris.

"No, they would be used in an apartment or a residence," Miss Stewart said. "She had an apartment."

"Was this the first time these young ladies had made similar purchases?"

"Yes. They said they had just found out they could buy things that way."

"To whom were these articles charged?"

"To the State. The lamp shade bought by Miss Stewart was charged to the State Auditor's office and the book ends to the State beverage department. The checks came from the State to pay for them."

"Did they make subsequent purchases?"

"Yes. About a month later Miss Stewart came back and bought a dresser set, with trays and perfume bottles and the other things that go with such a set. I am not certain as to the price, but it was between $14, and $18. The check for these came from the Auditor's office.

Bought Incense Burner.

"Along in November Miss Mosby came in. This time she bought an incense burner, a box of incense powder, a book cover, a dresser lamp, a cigar cutter, a cigar lighter and an ash tray. I think the bill came to $26. That was charged to beverage department and the check to pay for it came from the State."

"What is this Volstead or Voltaire?" asked Senator Hamlin.

"He was an author," replied Mrs. Mann. "Miss Mosby said her boss was very fond of Voltaire."

William Kruse, chief clerk of the Auditor's office, was summoned to produce the accounts paid to the Botz Art Shop for the months mentioned in Mrs. Mann's testimony. The vouchers contained none of the items mentioned by Mrs. Mann, but there were long itemized lists of purchases. The only thing Farris thought he could identify as one of the articles mentioned by Mrs. Mann was a charge of $5 for two lamp shades. Kruse said he recalled that purchase, and that it represented shades for office desk lamps which were to replace shades which had been broken.

After examining the vouchers, Farris said: "One of two things is evident. Either the accounts which cover these purchases have not been produced, or the accounts as made out do not represent the articles actually purchased. I am inclined to think the latter. It is a matter of notice that the accounts for personal articles purchased bear the personal approval of Auditor Hackmann, while most of the business of the Auditor's office is looked after by the Chief Clerk."

Sale of Bonus Names.

Thomas E. Collins of 3608 Castleman avenue, St. Louis, a salesman for the Library Bureau and dealer in office furniture, was called to testify regarding the sale of lists of names of soldier bonus recipients of which there was testimony several days ago by Joseph Diel, a former employe of the Auditor's office. Diel testified that he, Hackmann and Clarence Curtis, another employe of the office, entered into an arrangement to sell the lists of names to business concerns for advertising purposes. He said that the filing cases and typewriters for their enterprise were paid for by the State.

"Our firm had had experience with co-ordinating the work of soldier's bonus commissions and State Auditor's office," Collins testified, "and after selling equipment to the Bonus Commission, I sought to sell equipment to the Auditor. I sold him 125,000 index cards and the steel equipment to house them.

"About two weeks after I had made that sale, Curtis and Diel asked me if there was any chance to sell lists of the names to St. Louis business houses. I sold lists to three mercantile houses, receiving 1½ cents a name. We agreed that I was to get 25 per cent and the remaining 75 per cent was to go to them. In all I collected about $1200. I would send the checks to Curtis. Diel once called on me in St. Louis and said that Curtis told him to get a check which I was about to mail. I gave it to him."

Talks With Hackmann.

"Did you ever have a talk with Hackmann about these lists?"

"Yes, I met him in the corridor of the Capitol, in front of the Governor's office, and he questioned me about my inability to get more customers for the lists. He said it ought to be easy, that he had sold lists in some county where he had been county clerk."

"What interest did Hackmann have in it if he wasn't getting some of the money?" Farris asked.

"Well, I took it to mean that he was getting some of the 75 per cent and that he was disappointed because I was not selling more lists."

At the morning session of the committee Herman Groeschel, of 5730A Reber place, St. Louis, a plumbing contractor, who formerly was an examiner in the State Auditor's office, testified that in 1919 Hackmann asked him and two other examiners to get $1000 for him out of the appropriation for expenses of examiners.

"Asked to Get Money."

"Hackmann called O. P. Caulfield, John Bartholomeus and myself into his office. He said the appropriation for examiners expense had been increased $1000. 'I can use that,' he said to us, 'if you boys feel like getting it for me.' I didn't ask him for any details and walked out of the office. A few days later I quit."

Groeschel said he was unable to recall much of Hackmann's exact language, but that it was his understanding from the conversation that Hackmann wanted the examiners to add amounts to their expense accounts and turn over the money to him.

He denied that Hackmann had ever asked him to make monthly contributions to him, as Diel testifiel was demanded of him. He said that from time to time he had given C. E. Stephens, then Chief Clerk for Hackmann, small amounts to be applied to Hackmann's campaign expenses.

"Stephens did not ask me for the money," Groeschel said. "I had never been around politicians much, but I understood everybody did that and that it was expected of them."

Tells of Expense Account.

Farris went into some detail with Groeschel regarding the final expense account he submitted in 1918 for an audit of County offices of Jackson County, other witnesses having testfied that an arbitrary charge of $625 was added to Groeschel's expense account for stenographic service. Hackmann in his testimony admitted the charge had been mare and said that he paid some of it to stenographers and that he kept the balance to reimburse himself for money he had personally paid to his office janitor.

"I made out my expense account," Groeschel said, "and submitted it to Hackmann. He asked me what we should charge for stenographic work and I told him he could figure up the time of the stenographers. He finally took the account and said he would attend to it.

"Although the account was in my name, I did not receive payment direct from Jackson County. I received a cashier's check from a Jefferson City bank. I had not authorized anybody to endorse my warrant, and I did not endorse it myself. I received the amount I had originally put in my expense account."

Joseph P. Nacy, business manager of the Botz Stationery and Office Supply Co., one of the several Botz concerns in Jefferson City, testified to some purchases for the Auditor's office, submitting accounts which he had been summoned to present.

Name Plates Bought.

Two items which attracted the attention of Farris were $8.50 for a bronze desk name plate for Hackmann and $7.50 for a similar plate for his chief clerk. Nacy said the Auditor's plate was solid bronze and was of a kind on which the name could not be changed. The one for the chief clerk was so constructed that the name could be taken out and another name put in.

"Evidently the Auditor expected to remain in office indefinitely, but he didn't know how long his chief clerk would stay," one of the hearers of the testimony remarked.

Another item was $35.70 for procelain cups for cuspidors. Nacy explained they went inside brass cuspidors and were taken out for cleaning.

"So," said Farris, "when you think you are expectorating in a fine brass cuspidor in the Auditor's office you are only spitting into a china cup?"

Walter C. Crain, financial secretary of Stix, Baer & Fuller Dry Goods Co., testified regarding forged soldiers' bonus warrants which had been cashed by that company. The committee went into this line of inquiry on the theory that it was possible some employe of the State was extracting the warrants before mailing, and was implicated in the forgery of the indorsements. There was nothing in Crain's testimony which bore out this theory.

Forged Warrants Cashed.

Crain testified that Stix, Baer & Fuller had cashed six forged warrants and had been compelled to reimburse the State for the amounts, which ranged from $130 to $220.

Men of Ship Wrecked in Fog Tell of Suffering

Tuscan Prince Was Driven on Reef Off Vancouver Island After First Big Wave Carried Away Propellor.

By the Associated Press.

PORT ANGELES, Wash., Feb. 17.—The coast guard cutter Snohomish arrived here tonight with the crews of the steamships Tuscan Prince and Santa Rita, wrecked on the rocks of the west coast of Vancouver Island during a violent storm last Thursday.

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 17.—A story of a long battle through thick fog and heavy seas that culminated in shipwreck on the barren coast of Vancouver Island, of a long wait in bitter cold and driving snow before rescue finally came, was told by survivors of the wrecked steamer Tuscan Prince on board the coast guard cutter Snohomish today. Their story was flashed into Seattle by radio as the Snohomish neared the entrance to the strait of Juan de Fuca, on her way to Port Angeles, to land the shipwrecked men.

The Tuscan Prince, bound from San Francisco to Seattle with a cargo of pig iron and coke, struck a reef at Village Island, near Ucluelet, at 3 o'clock Thursday morning.

First Wave Took Propeller.

There was a quick call for help by radio, then a great wave smashed over the side and put the wireless set out of commission. In 10 minutes the vessel was stranded. The first wave had carried away the propeller and rudder.

Grinding on the rocks, the steamer crashed over a ledge and wedged tightly. Seas broke over the decks, carrying away the weather boats. Capt. Milders ordered rockets and flares sent up. One of the port boats was launched, but it was dashed ashore almost immediately and destroyed. Its one occupant, a seaman, was saved by being thrown on the beach by the waves.

The seaman carried a line ashore. A heavier line dragged to a vantage point by means of the first one, enabled those who desired to abandon the wrecked vessel.

Day finally came, and at low tide a detail went back to the ship for provisions. Their rations were limited to one biscuit and two ounces of canned meat each. They suffered from exposure for they had little clothing. Snow was melted for water.

Passing Boat Missed Signal.

The day, they said, was heartbreaking. Once a small boat appeared and the crew hoisted signals and shouted until their voices were hoarse, but without avail. The boat passed by.

On Friday the men had about given up hope, as the day wore on without sign of ship or boat. Late in the day a surf boat appeared.

The surf boat from the life saving station at Bamfield, and the Snohomish, summoned by a report that a Japanese fisherman had sighted the stranded vessel, had hurried up the coast to a point near Clo-Oose, where the 32 members of the crew of another steamer, the Santa Rita, wrecked in the same gale that brought destruction to the Tuscan Prince, were likewise huddled together on the beach, waiting for rescue.

By nightfall last night, 14 of the Tuscan Prince's crew of 35 officers and men had been transferred to the Snohomish.

Two Lake Steamers in Harbor After Being Imprisoned in Ice.

By the Associated Press.

MUSKEGON, Mich., Feb. 17.—A thrilling fight with ice floes and a blizzard on Lake Michigan were related when the two steamers, the Goodrich line flagship Alabama from Chicago, and the Crosby steamer Georgia, docked late today.

The Alabama had been fighting the gale and the ice fields since Tuesday and for 48 hours was imprisoned with the Georgia in the ice outside the local harbor. There were 32 passengers aboard the two ships, but all but six made their way to land yesterday across the ice fields and during a blizzard.

Passengers endured no especial hardship.

The big Grand Trunk car ferries, Milwaukee and Grand Haven, also forced their way into the Grand Haven harbor today after being imprisoned in the ice fields.

SIXTH INFANTRY OPENS RECRUITING CAMPAIGN

One Battalion of Historic U. S. Regiment Parades Streets—350 New Men Needed.

The Sixth Infantry Regiment of Jefferson Barracks yesterday began a recruiting campaign in St. Louis that will continue for nine consecutive days, with a parade of one battalion and the regimental band through the downtown streets. The parade was reviewed from a stand opposite Hotel Jefferson, in Twelfth boulevard, by Mayor Kiel and Col. Halsey E. Yates, commander.

The city has been divided into four recruiting zones, in each of which is a tent serving as zone headquarters, with a company officer in charge. The recruiting will be done by 25 enlisted men in each zone, and only by personal contact with men on the streets. About 350 recruits are needed to bring the regiment to its normal strength of 1250 men, and it is believed that this number of recruits is available in St. Louis.

The Sixth Infantry is regarded as one of the most efficient units in the United States army, and has an interesting history—an organization to which it is said any man could belong with pardonable pride. In 1921 it made the classic march of 900 miles, from Camp Jackson, S. C., to Jefferson Barracks, and had the honor upon arrival in St. Louis of being reviewed by Gen. Pershing and Marshal Foch of France.

Cash prizes will be awarded individual enlisted men who obtain the most recruits, and each day the regimental colors will adorn the zone headquarters tent which made the most enlistments on the previous day.

Concerts by the regimental band will be given daily in different parts of the downtown district, and at 10 a. m. today will be at Broadway and Cass avenue. A similar concert will be given from 2 to 3 o'clock this afternoon at Thirteenth street and Washington avenue.

INDICATIONS GERMANS WILL BEGIN ACTIVE RESISTANCE

16,000 More Miners at Bochum Strike.

By the Associated Press.

DUESSELDORF, Feb. 17.—Another strike has occurred among the miners of the Krupp pits at Bochum, 16,000 men going out. They struck because the mine officials were arrested by the French for refusing to obey orders and obstructing the work of the French commission.

The employes of the Essen Municipal Electric Works have decided to cut off Essen's supply of electricity as a result of the imposition of the fine of 5,000,000 marks on Director Buszmann of the local plant.

Essen was the storm center yesterday in the Ruhr, where the friction between the French and the Germans has increased because of Thursday night's shooting of two French soldiers by security police in a cafe brawl.

French to Operate Railroads in British Zone.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 17.—The British have agreed to permit the French to operate the railroads between Neuss, southwest of Duesseldorf, and Duren, 20 miles west of Cologne, in the British zone, to assure the operation of the supply services for the armies of occupation in the Ruhr, the French Cabinet was officially informed today by M. Letrocquer, Minister of Public Works.

The British, he said, had accepted the French proposals to this effect in principle. The details would be discussed on the spot between Gen. Dudley, commanding the British area, and Gen. Degoutte, military Governor of the Ruhr.

Gelsenkirchen Reoccupied by French Troops.

By the Associated Press.

GELSENKIRCHEN, Feb. 17.—Gelsenkirchen was reoccupied by the French today and the population was advised through public military proclamations that it would remain so until the fine of 100,000,000 marks was paid as indemnity for the recent wounding of French gendarmes in a clash with German police.

Martial law conditions prevailed throughout the city tonight, and the situation indicated possibilities of disorder, especially since the local police had barricaded themselves in their barracks to prevent being disarmed by the French.

Strong forces of troops began arriving this morning from Recklinghausen, Bochum and Essen, apparently as the result of a conference held here last night between Gens. Degoutte and Fournier.

The most important points in the city were occupied first, these including the postoffice, railway station and the municipal treasury.

According to German quarters, the contents of the cash tills in the railway station were confiscated, likewise 40,000,000 marks found in the coffers of the railway hotel.

GUILTY CONSCIENCE WRITER ENCLOSES $20 IN LETTER

K. F. Niemoeller, secretary and manager of the Associated Retailers of St. Louis, received yesterday four $5 bills with the accompanying note: "Inclosed please find $20 in currency, which has been due your company for some time." It was signed "Guilty Conscience."

Niemoeller said he had no idea what could have been misappropriated. The money was placed in the bank to the credit of the associated retailers.

MAN IDENTIFIED IN SCHOELLKOPF ROBBERY

Arrest May Lead to Others in Case of Buffalo Woman Held Up After Party.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Matthew Biddolph, man of many aliases, arrested at Albany yesterday, has confessed he participated in the robbery of $500,000 worth of jewels from Mrs. Moren Schoellkpf of Buffalo, last New Year's eve, John D. Coughlin, acting inspector in command of the detective division, declared tonight.

Biddolph was reported by Coughlin to have told that his accomplices "double-crossed him" in robbing him of his rightful share of the loot. The prisoner alleged he was not in on details of the robbery, having entered at the last moment, being entirely ignorant of the exact nature of the "job."

Chief of the detective division declared there was a "good chance" of recovering all the loot. Two more arrests may be expected "at any time," they said.

Biddolph also is reported to have told his examiners that the man indicted by the grand jury as "J. F. McGowan" engineered the assault and robbery of Mrs. Schoellkopf. "Al Lewis" is the third man sought.

Frank Barrett Carman, the actor-dancer, who was host at the party just off Fifth avenue, after which Mrs. Schoellkopf was waylaid and robbed, identified Biddolph tonight as the man "Marshall," who had insinuated himself into the party as the welcomed donor of a bottle of liquor.

"That's him—Marshall," exclaimed Carman, after a single glance at Biddolph.

Biddolph's appearance tallied in detail with a picture Carman had previously identified in the police headquarters' Rogues' Gallery.

Carman was overjoyed at Biddolph's capture. It would completely vindicate him in the eyes of the public, he declared, for the "stained character" he acquired when he was arrested, charged with grand larceny, shortly after the robbery. He was released, however.

The police believe the arrest of Biddolph may lead to a solution of the theft of $767,000 in jewels and furs from Mrs. Charlotte King Palmer in November, 1920, and other robberies of wealthy women by a band of "social pirates."

TRANSPORT CARRYING RUSSIAN REFUGEES TO U. S. IS HELD

Ship Sailed, but Was Stopped Before Clearing Bay, Pending Advice.

By the Associated Press.

MANILA, Feb. 17.—United States army transport Chaumont, which sailed this morning for San Francisco, was intercepted before she cleared Manila Bay and held pending receipt of final orders from Washington regarding the plan to send 650 refugees from Vladivostok to America.

Although previous advices from Washington had stated that Russia's immigrant quota had been filled for the year ending June next, Governor-General Leonard Wood took up the matter further with the Bureau of Insular Affairs, in the hope that some means might be found to send the majority of the destitute anti-bolshevik followers of Admiral Stark to the United States.

NEGRO HELD AFTER KILLING

Said to Admit Shooting Another of His Race.

John D. Williams, 33 years old, negro, of 2100 Market street, was arrested last night, charged with fatally shooting another negro, unidentified, at 9:15 p. m. at Twenty-second and Market streets.

Police said Williams admitted shooting the negro, whom he described as a newcomer in the negro section, known only as "Earl," following an argument as to who was the "best man." Williams asserted that "Earl" precipitated it with a declaration he "was the best man that ever walked around Pike's Peak." Police said Williams stated he drew a revolver and fired four shots when "Earl" made a motion toward his hip. Police found the body beside a patrol box. A large knife was found on the body, that of a man 6 feet in height and about 30 years of age.

CHASE AND WREN BILLS DRAW C. OF C. PROTEST

Proposed Repeal of Election Law Provisions Objected to by Board of Directors.

Protests against the Wren and Chase bills now before the Legislature, and regarded as attempts by Democratic organization political interests in St. Louis to wreck provisions of the St. Louis election laws enacted two years ago to make fraud by designing politicians more difficult, were sent to members of the Legislature yesterday by the board of directors of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce.

The quickening of public interest in municipal affairs in St. Louis resulting from the adoption of the $87,372,500 bond issue projects makes it desirable that all safeguarding provisions of election laws be retained, the board declares in letters written at its direction by F. W. A. Vesper, president of the chamber.

The board also wrote a letter of protest to Representative Chase against the provisions of the Hiemenz-Chase bill providing for a return to the political convention system of nominating candidates for the Board of Education. The board declares that the St. Louis school system "has achieved nation-wide recognition" and that it would be "very detrimental to the interest of all to change over to some other system at this time." Chase has said that he will not push his bill, but other bills seeking to change the present system of nomination by petition are being presented.

Concerning the Wren bill, which provides that election judges and clerks be appointed from lists submitted by political committeemen, instead of giving the Board of Election Commissioners wider discretionary powers, the letter says: "We cannot comprehend the logic of bill 201, for instance, which takes away the appointment of judges and clerks of election, and makes such appointments conditioned upon a list of names previously submitted by the political elements."

The Chase bills would repeal the power of the Election Board to appoint deputies to serve at polling places and would remove the requirement that lodging house keepers submit to the board a list of persons residing at the lodging houses. Regarding these bills the Chamber of Commerce letter says:

"Bill 183 which undertakes to repeal certain very wholesome requirements is also vigorously opposed by us. Certainly it is to the interest of all concerned that at either a hot primary or close election to invoke the power of the Board of Election Commissioners to appoint a Deputy Commissioner at their discretion and provisions of Bill 183 repealing such authority is without warrant.

"Having sponsored the $87,000,000 Bond Issue we keenly feel the obligation in every manner to protect every expenditure through the most able administrations during the next several years that can be obtained, and we shall do all in our power to arouse the most vigorous protest among the citizens of St. Louis to secure the defeat of the three bills above mentioned."

A resolution opposing these election bills has ben adopted by the quarterly conference of the M. E. Church, South, of St. Louis. The conference also opposes the Hiemenz-Chase bill or any other measure which may seek to change the present method of nominating candidates for the Board of Education.

The conference resolution declares that the effect of the Wren and Chase bills "would be to again place the elections of the City of St. Louis under the domination of professional politicians and to make elections in fact nothing more than an expression of choice by such politicians."

The League of Women Voters of St. Louis last week addressed letters to members of the Legislature stating that the league also was opposed to any change in the system of School Board nominations. The letters declare that the league is opposed to any effort "to put our educational system under the control of politicians."

A resolution protesting against any change in the method of nominating candidates for the School Board has been adopted by Church of the Unity Chapter, Unitarian Laymen's League.

Take Goiteroff to take the Goitre off.

Knowlton's Goiteroff, a scientific, successful treatment for this terrible malady—Goitre.

Has cured others and there is no good reason why it will not cure you if you only give it a trial.

Goiteroff is a harmless internal remedy for the constitution, acting on the blood, reconstructive instead of destructive, eliminating the poison from the system, toning up and strengthening the body so that it can throw off disease, but is neither a patent medicine or cure-all—it is for Goitre alone, which, being a constitutional, and not a local disorder, must be so treated.

GIVEN UP BY DOCTORS

Russellville, Ohio.

Dear Mr. Knowlton:

Some years ago I took your treatment for Goitre, Goiteroff. When I began this treatment, suffering as I was with an exophthalmic Goitre, I had tried many doctors, all of whom, without exception, recommended operation, but as both my husband and myself were bitterly opposed to such procedure, consequently gave up the doctors and began trying different so-called Goitre remedies, painting with iodine, rubbing with dirty salves, osteopathy, electricity and I don't know what else, so that when you called on me the first time, if you remember, I was absolutely helpless, and the doctor said my days were numbered. That was seven or eight years ago, while living in Huntington, W. Va. You bet I am alive yet, and not only alive, but well, and I knew after four or five days' use of your medicine I would be.

I think Goiteroff will cure any form of Goitre. I have known so many it has cured. Excuse my long delay in writing, for I have just learned your address. Best wishes.

(Signed) MRS. FRED KAUCHER.

STORY OF A PROFESSIONAL NURSE

Dear Mr. Knowlton:

Allow me to take this means of thanking you for the wonderful health I have had restored to me from taking your medicine "Goiteroff."

Some eight or nine years ago I was bothered a great deal with my throat, the Doctors all pronounced it tonsilitis and I believed them because I thought they knew. But soon I entered training and before I had finished my three years I was a nervous wreck, laying it naturally to the hard work and long hours on duty, in the meantime taking all kinds of throat treatments and medicine for rheumatism.

After three years of nursing I was compelled to take a rest, after one year of this I enlisted in the World War. With the work and excitement of caring for the flu patients I was soon bothered with my throat and rheumatism. I at once consulted a throat specialist in San Francisco and he told me I had an internal goitre. I had seen the almost impossible cases you had cured so was not satisfied until I gave it a trial myself.

I took four bottles and today am free from all throat trouble, backache, constipation and sleepless nights. Isn't it well worth one's time and money to try such medicine?

Again thanking you for the same, I remain,

(Signed) ANNA BELLE McBEE.

PHYSICIAN ACCUSED OF SLAYING FRITZI MANN

Was Held Once Before in Connection With Finding of Dancer's Half-Nude Body.

By the Associated Press.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Feb. 17.—Apparently in good spirits, Dr. Louis L. Jacobs of the hospital staff at Camp Kearney, tonight was in the county jail, accused in a grand jury indictment of the murder of Fritzi Mann, a beautiful young dancer. Her body, clad only in a few light garments, was found on the Torrey Pines beach, near this city Jan. 15, and the case since has occupied much of the attention of the police and county authorities.

This is the second time Dr. Jacobs has been under arrest in connection with the death of the dancer. He was taken into custody by the police early in their investigation and later released, Chief of Police Patrick asserting that there was no evidence that he had caused Miss Mann's death.

New Evidence Reported.

Dr. Jacobs' attorney expressed confidence that the physician would come through his approaching trial all right.

"Dr. Jacobs," said the attorney, "would rather go before a jury and obtain complete vindication than go through life with the least suspicion attached to him. There is as much chance of convicting him as there would be of convicting me in this case.

The arrest came as a great surprise to Dr. Jacobs. It will be recalled that shortly after the body of Miss Mann was found, he voluntarily called on the police and gave what information he could."

New evidence is said to have been presented before the grand jury resulting in return of an indictment late yesterday. The arrest of Dr. Jacobs took place at the Camp Kearney hospital this afternoon. The prisoner appeared somewhat perturbed by developments, but said: "I am pretty well covered with alibis."

Knew of Her Condition.

Dr. Jacobs' first entrance into the mystery of Fritzi Mann's death came when he voluntarily appeared at the office of the Chief of Police and told that he had known Miss Mann for some time and had been with her on an automobile ride a few nights before her death. He said that on that occasion she confided to him she was in a delicate condition and asked him to assist her, but he declined.

Subsequent investigations as revealed by the authorities, disclosed correspondence indicating the doctor had been aware of her condition for some time and had made plans with her regarding an operation.

It has been established that Miss Mann and a companion occupied one of the Blue Sea cottages at La Jolla for a time on Sunday night, Jan. 14. Her body was found on the beach the following day.

THREE MEN QUESTIONED IN CASE OF BODY WITH BURNED FACE

St. Louis Attorney at First Interested Says Description Doesn't Fit That of Client's Brother.

By the Associated Press

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—Three men were taken into custody today and questioned regarding the finding of the nude body of a man near Geneva, Ill., early this week. The victim's hands had been chopped off and his face burned by oil-soaked rags to prevent identification.

The men questioned were Alex Waospo, proprietor of a bathhouse, Jake Maki and Isaac Warnianpaa, all of DeKalb, Ill. The men were said by the police to have admitted that they passed along the roadside, by which the body was found, the night of the slaying in a closed automobile, but to have denied strongly that they knew anything regarding the crime.

The authorities investigating the murder received during the day a photograph sent by E. H. Wayman, a St. Louis attorney, who said that it was of a St. Louis client and asked whether it resembled the slain man.

The authorities of Kane County said that the teeth of the man shown in the photograph resembled those of the dead man.

Edgar H. Wayman, an attorney in the Merchants-Laclede Building, said yesterday that he had talked to the Sheriff of Kane County, Illinois, over the telephone and from information given by the Sheriff was virtually certain that the man found murdered at Geneva was not the missing brother of a client, whom he would not identify.

SECOND DEGREE MURDER VERDICT IN NOWLIN CASE

Carl Delbono Sentenced to 15 and Brother Frank to Ten Years for Killing of St. Louis Youth.

TWO DEFENDANTS STILL FUGITIVES

Henry M. Nowlin, 17, Was Shot to Death on Road Near Moundville, Mo., the Night of Aug. 29, Last.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEVADA, Mo., Feb. 17.—Frank and Carl Delbono today were adjudged guilty of participation in the murder of Henry M. Nowlin, 17 years old, and were sentenced to terms of 10 and 15 years, respectively, in the penitentiary. Joe and Sam Delbono, on whom their two brothers sought to place all the blame for the murder, and whom the State regards as principally guilty, are still fugitives.

Claude Nowlin of 5391 Pershing avenue, St. Louis, general counsel for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., took an active part in the preparation of the State's case, on which he has been at work most of the time since the killing, which occurred on a road near Moundville, this (Vernon) County, the night of Aug. 29 last. Nowlin sat at the counsel table during the trial.

One Defendant Acquitted.

A third defendant, Joe Brown, 16, a connection of the Delbono family, was acquitted. The conviction of Frank and Carl Delbono was for murder in the second degree.

Nowlin does not regard the verdict as ending the case. The two fugitive brothers are still to be found and brought to trial, and the father of the murdered youth intends that this shall be done.

The incidents of the murder were brought out in detail at the trial. Young Nowlin was driving his mother, her husband and Miss Mary ...lman from Tulsa, with Moberly, Mo., as their destination.

Robert Nowlin and Walter Sweeney were following the larger car in a small roadster. As they neared Moundsville, a little settlement 14 miles southwest of Nevada, an automobile approached in which Sam, Joe and Carl Delbono and Henry Dazey, all of Moundsville, were riding. The Delbono car swerved into Nowlin's right-of-way and forced his car over the edge of a small culvert.

The younger Nowlin and Sweeney, who had been following, testified that as the Delbonos passed they cursed and called out threats. Angered, Sweeney jumped from the car and fired a shotgun. A shot struck Joe Delbono in the cheek, and two other shots hit Dazey.

Farmer Testifies.

All the Tulsa party except Henry Nowlin got into the smaller car and drove to a farm house for aid, leaving Nowlin to guard the ditched automobile. It was about 8:15 p. m. Adam Roth, a farmer, was standing by his barn about 160 feet away.

A car came down the road from Moundsville and drew to a stop. Three men got out, Roth told the jury.

"You shotta us, now we keel you—You,"—someone exclaimed.

Then a high-pitched, boyish voice, very brave, almost contemptuous. "Oh, no, you won't," it said. Then seven or eight shots were fired, from at least two automatic pistols.

The party returning found the youth dead in the dust by the running board, with bullet wounds in his head, chest and leg.

With evidence gathered by Claude Nowlin, former State Senator W. M. Bowker and Dan Z. Gibson, prosecuting attorney of Vernon County, built up the following circumstantial evidence:

That the Delbonos returned to Moundville after the first meeting with the Tulsa tourists. That they called at the home of Frank Delbono and he got in the car. That they next picked up James Brown from a restaurant in the town. That no fewer than 10 persons saw the Delbono car leave Moundville shortly before the murder, with the five men in it. That soon after the shots were heard, this automobile passed Frank Combs, a farmer, a mile down the road from the murder scene. That Combs could positively identify the car because half of one head light was green. That Mrs. Ida Ramsey, Frank Delbono's neighbor, saw him come home soon after the shooting, without cap or shoes. That a cap was found near Young Nowlin's body. That Frank asked Mrs. Ramsey not to tell the officers she had seen him get into the car with his brothers.

The defense sought to establish alibis, and to place all the blame for the murder on Joe and Sam Delbono.

Frank's sentence was made lighter than Carl's for the reason that he had not been in the machine during the altercation with Nowlin's party, and therefore perhaps did not have a premeditated motive.

CRONKHITE DEMANDS SENATE INQUIRY, ATTRIBUTING HIS RETIREMENT TO HIS ACTIVITY IN SEEKING SLAYER OF SON

Investigation, if It Is Ordered, Promises to Clear Up Mysterious Case Which Began With Shooting of Son in 1918 When on an Inspection March at Camp Lewis.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
No. 20 Wyatt Building.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17. — The forced retirement from military service of Major-General Adelbert Cronkhite will be investigated by a Senate committee if the request of two of the officers who served under him is acceded to, and Senator Reed of Pennsylvania has assured them that the request will receive careful consideration.

If such an investigation is ordered, it promises to clear up a mysterious case which has received close attention from both the War Department and the Department of Justice and which has been investigated by Federal grand juries on both seaboards, but in which the facts are as obscure now as ever.

The mystery began with the shot which killed Maj. Alexander P. Cronkhite, near Camp Lewis, State of Washington, on Oct. 25, 1918. He was the son of Major-General Adelbert Cronkhite, who was commanding the Eightieth Division in France. The Major was a rising young army officer, graduated from West Point in 1915, finely equipped for his calling, of a military family, imbued with the army tradition, the Great War was on, and from every viewpoint his career seemed most promising.

On Inspection March.

As an inspector, he was accompanying a battalion on a march which was to determine the fitness of officers and men for immediate transference to the theater of war. One company was commanded by Capt. Robert Rosenbluth, who, according to one report, had barely passed the preceding examinations. So close was he to the line which divided the fit and unfit, according to this report, that his showing on this hike probably would decide whether he would go to France, where all soldiers lusted to be, or remain in the States as unfit for combat duty.

Rosenbluth was a Jew, a matter of not the slightest concern then, but later of great importance.

The hike was halted at a cross roads marked "danger point," and, presumably as a maneuver, the column halted until a suitable detour was found. According to the original testimony at the military inquiry, Maj. Cronkhite went into the brush beside the road seeking such a detour, and while there fired five shots at a tin-can target. He paused to call attention of Sergt. Roland R. Porthier to his last shot, a good one, and then his pistol was accidentally discharged and the bullet entered the Major's left side. Capt. Rosenbluth ran to his side and lifted his head, but the Major died within two minutes. A military court found that the Major had died of a shot fired from his own weapon, accidentally, though the general opinion seemed to be that he had committed suicide.

Accident Theory Not Accepted.

Army people are skeptical when an officer of life-long training in full control of his faculties accidentally shoots himself with his service pistol. He is required to be so familiar with this weapon that he can take it apart and reassemble it in the dark. The chance of such a thing happening has been compared to the chance of a surgeon fatally stabbing himself with a scalpel by accident while performing an operation on a patient.

There is a kindly rule in all armies to take care of the man who kills himself. Kipling refers to it thus:

"So long as those unloaded guns we keep beside our beds Blow off by obvious accident, the lucky owners' heads."

The case was regarded as closed by most people, but not by the mother of the dead man. Her husband was in France and her son dead, but she never rested. Convinced that he had not killed himself, she traveled the country over, interviewing persons who had knowledge of the case and collecting affidavits. The evidence she accumulated was turned over to the Department of Justice, and the arrest of Capt. Rosenbluth and Sergt. Porthier followed.

A sensational development came on March 18, 1921, when Porthier made a statement to the effect that he had shot Maj. Cronkhite at the command of Capt. Rosenbluth.

Told of Detailed Instructions.

Porthier said that the day before the hike, Rosenbluth had commanded him to kill Cronkhite and had given him detailed instructions as to how the deed was to be done.

When the column halted on that October day two and a half years before, he said, Maj. Cronkhite signalled him to come to the front of the column. He did so, and went with the Major into the brush seeking a path by which the troops might detour to avoid the "danger point." When Cronkhite had fired several times at a tin can, the Sergeant drew his pistol and fired at the same target. The Major turned at the unexpected shot and Porthier shot him in the left side at close range. Rosenbluth ran up and, examining the fallen officer, said "I think he is dead." The only reason Rosenbluth had given for desiring the death of Cronkhite, according to Sergt. Porthier, was that he wanted him out of the way.

This remarkable story was not universally accepted, but Rosenbluth was arrested at the Civic Club, in New York City on March 24, and locked up at police headquarters. He issued a general denial.

It appeared that Rosenbluth after leaving the army had gone to Europe where he had worked for Jewish Relief organizations in England and France, and later in Turkey, Russia and Siberia. He was the author of books on Forestry and Port Development, written before the war, and had prosecuted researches in these lines in many parts of the United States and the Philippines. He was 43 years old at the time of his arrest.

Warrants Later Withdrawn.

Reports began to circulate about this time that the case against Rosenbluth was "framed," meaning that the testimony was fabricated, and that the objection to him was that he was a Jew, and that the army organization did not want men of that race as officers.

Rosenbluth's bond was set at $25,000 and immediately given by influential New York bankers. Rosenbluth was arrested March 23, 1921, but on July 16, all charges against him were dropped and the warrants withdrawn. This was done at the instigation of Attorney-General Daugherty who had made a personal investigation of the case.

The case again was closed, but its persistence under the surface was proved a year and a half later when Rosenbluth and Porthier again were arrested on Oct. 19, 1922, charged with the murder. Indictments had been returned by the Federal grand jury in Tacoma, Wash. Rosenbluth's bond this time was set at $40,000 and again friends furnished it. Rosenbluth made a statement to the effect that 10 days before these friends had been approached by persons who said in effect that if they were not given some money he would be indicted. No money was forthcoming.

The Federal authorities in New York took up this charge, but nothing to substantiate it was found and the investigation dropped. Rosenbluth instituted proceedings to prevent his removal to the State of Washington for trial on the indictment.

Dreyfuss Case Recalled.

The Dreyfuss case in France, which had interested the world was recalled. In that case, an officer who was a Jew had been tried for treason, convicted and sent to Devil's Island, only to have his name cleared and to be pardoned later, largely through the efforts of the novelist Zola. District Attorney Hayward of New York, to prevent his office being a party to such a miscarriage of justice, turned the case over to two of his assistants, Samson Selig and Abraham Soloman, both Jews.

On last Tuesday United States Commissioner Hitchcock in New York dismissed the removal proceeding against Rosenbluth, and his bondsmen were relieved of their $40,000 obligation.

Major-General Cronkhite, father of the Major, was ordered retired from the army, although he had not reached the age of retirement. He attributed this action to his activity in seeking the slayer of his son, and in a statement issued Friday night said that when all the facts were made known, "they will shock the conscience of the country."

Involuntarily Retired Major-General and Captain Who Figures in History of Case

Major-General Adelbert Cronkhite.

Capt. Robert Rosenbluth.

He said that he had appealed in vain to the President and Secretary of War, and continued:

"I have not the slightest doubt that when the case is finally settled and the President knows the whole truth he will commend and not condemn me for my course. My efforts are directed not only to doing justice to my son and myself, but to relieving the army of a reproach that rests upon it, and with that end in view I feel that I am acting in the interest of every officer in the army."

In the meantime the indictments against Rosenbluth and Porthier in Tacoma remain unsatisfied.

War Department's Side.

The War Department side of the story, as far as the retirement is concerned, is that Secretary Weeks was actuated only by a desire to get a younger and more active man into the grade of Major-General. The order for Cronkhite to go to Panama just when his hunt for his son's supposed slayers was getting warm is explained by the fact that he was first on the list for foreign service and that several months' time was allotted him to pursue his private investigations.

For the last two years Cronkhite had given much of his time to an effort to solve the mystery of his son's death. Back of the retirement order, it is said, was the thought that it would let Cronkhite devote all his time to the case. But the order only convinced the friends of the General that he was being "railroaded" and made him insistent that his army record be cleared of any implication that he was not giving good service. So far as the army official records show, Maj. Cronkhite killed himself. The notation of suicide on his record has never been changed.

Major-General Cronkhite Presents His Story to Senators.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Major-General Adelbert Cronkhite, whose recent enforced retirement from active service coming after the mysterious killing four years ago of his son, Maj. Alexander P. Cronkhite, has developed into a sensation in army circles, personally presented today his story of the two cases to Senators Reed, Republican, Pa., and Glass, Democrat, Virginia.

Gen. Cronkhite spent more than two hours in conferences with Senators Reed and Glass who, with several other Senators, are considering the advisability of a public inquiry by a Senate committee. Later the General conferred with Col. Jennings S. Wise, who with other former officers of the Eightieth Division, of which the General was the war commander, have urged that something be done in behalf of their former superior officer.

The number of Senators interested in obtaining what they consider to be justice both for Gen. Cronkhite himself and in the matter of the killing of his son increased today. Senator Swanson, Democrat, Virginia, has been studying the cases for several days and Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, understood to be looking into the matter. Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, a Democratic member of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, meanwhile is prepared to use his influence to block action by that committee pending inquiry into the nomination of Brigadier-General Hanson E. Ely, now commander at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. to be a Major-General in succession to the vacancy on the army list caused by the retirement of Gen. Cronkhite.

Senator Calder, Republican, New York said he would insist on a thorough airing of the circumstances attending the killing of the officer, to have a "show down one way or the other," as a constituent of his living in New York City had been involved.

'WOLF OF LA SALLE STREET' CONVICTED OF FRAUD BY MAIL

J. W. Worthington, Former Private Banker, Liable to 10-Year Sentence and $20,000 Fine.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—John W. Worthington, former private banker, whose financial flights have several times been under scrutiny of State and Federal authorities, today was found guilty by a jury in Federal Court of using the mails in a scheme to defraud.

Worthington was head of the Mercantile Security & Investment Co. and was tried for dealings in the operation of that defunct concern.

In the trial, a former employe testified that when the concern ceased business, Worthington took possession of the books.

Worthington, sometimes called the "Wolf of La Salle Street," formerly operated the American Banking Association, a private bank which went into bankruptcy.

He was found guilty on two counts. Under the vedict, he is liable to a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison and to pay a fine of $20,000 or both. His counsel has entered motion for a new trial and until that is disposed of, formal sentence will not be pronounced.

The conviction is the first either State or Federal authorities have obtained against Worthington here in more than a dozen years of his financial operations in Chicago, which have been interspersed with banking and investment ventures in other cities.

Concern Organized in 1911.

Worthington was said to have obtained at least $50,000 through the Mercantile Securities and Investment company, which was organized in 1911. Lincoln Coy, a disbarred attorney, who was tried with Worthington by Judge Samuel Alschuler instructed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty for him.

Worthington, Coy and H. H. Thomas, now said to be in England, organized the company. Stock selling by mail was begun. W. H. Bigelow of Boston, bought $55,000 in stock and paid in exchange gilt-edged Connecticut mortgages. The Motor Company of Fredericks, Ok., according to the prosecutors, bought $7500 in common stock and $2500 in preferred stock and gave in exchange a $20,000 mortgage. Another investor was Meab Trumbo of Ottawa, Ill., who, then at the age of 86 years, and now dead, purchased 224 shares of stock and gave in exchange title to Canadian land valued at $25,000.

St. Louis Teacher Bought Stock.

Mrs. Anna Brachvogel, a St. Louis school teacher, was another investor who traded four parcels of St. Louis real estate and a mortgage on her home for stock of the face value of $10,000.

The testimony showed that Bigelow, a retired undertaker, was made destitute, and that Mrs. Brachvogel was compelled to return to teaching. It was further charged that Worthington converted securities and property into cash and appropriated the proceeds.

Worthington's Record.

Worthington, now 63, served a term in Sing Sing prison 30 years ago for fraudulent operations in New York but since then has successfully evaded all efforts to send him to prison.

His ingenuity and almost never-failing resources aroused a guarded admiration of the man's ability among financiers and prosecutors. While his methods have been under fire numerous times and he and his wife were many times forced to exert unusual efforts, he never has failed to provide bonds and usually was ready for operations the next day.

Several hearings in the State and municipal courts ended in acquittal or dismissal for Worthington. Today's verdict failed to shake his composure.

The indictment under which the jury found him guilty was returned by a Federal grand jury nine years ago.

Another Charge Pending.

Another case involving the possession of stolen property, $4000 in bonds alleged to have been stolen from the Union Pacific Railroad at Omaha, is pending against him in the municipal court. The court recently continued the case after announcing that the evidence adduced up to that time would not warrant holding him for further action.

Worthington formerly was a retail grocer in St. Louis. He left here in 1897 and went to New York. Later he made periodical visits to St. Louis and boasted to friends that he was "swinging big deals." On these trips when dining with old friends he figured with a lead pencil on the table cloth and made such remarks as "now, if I can swing this deal I'll make $50,000."

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Feb. 17. — A joint committee of eight members of the Missouri General Assembly is in St. Joseph investigating condition at State Hospital for the Insane No. 2.

This action by the Legislature follows a communication addressed to Gov. Hyde some days ago by Mayor McIninch of St. Joseph, in which the Mayor declared the hospital to be a fire trap.

POST-DISPATCH ACQUIRES MORE OLIVE ST. PROPERTY

Additional Room to House More Equipment Made Necessary by Circulation of 200,000 Daily and 450,000 on Sunday.

The Post-Dispatch yesterday acquired a 99-year lease on the property at 1127-29 and 1131 Olive street, with a frontal of 55 feet and a depth of 106 feet to an alley. This property adjoins the Post-Dispatch Building on the east, with an alley intervening. It was leased to provide for necessary additional mechanical facilities.

When this paper moved into its present large building five years ago it was believed the new plant would be large enough to meet all possible requirements for many years. Now expansion is imperative. There is a present equipment of eight octuple presses, two rotogravure presses and a multicolor press. Three of the octuple presses have been added since the building was erected.

The increasing circulation and advertising of the paper have called for frequent additions of equipment until now more floor space is necessary. For the last five days the average daily circulation of the Post-Dispatch has been more than 200,000 copies and for some time the average Sunday circulation has been more than 450,000.

In the new quarters just leased as an addition it will be possible to install equipment which will add 50 to 75 per cent to the paper's mechanical capacity. Three new presses could be installed there.

In the event of the expected further increase the total of presses in the new quarters could be increased to six without undue crowding. The Cornet & Zeibig Trust represented the Post-Dispatch in the transaction.

The Essex Investment Co. made the lease on the part of the owner.

IRISH FREE STATE ISSUES A WARNING TO IRREGULARS

Government or by any agent of the Government.

"Terms for Peace Clear."

"The Government's terms for peace are clear and unequivocal and they have long since been published to the irregulars and to the world. No other terms have been proposed by or in behalf of the Government. No other terms will be entertained.

"While the Government has commissioned no agents to tamper with this clear and straight position many persons have presented themselves to the Government professing to bear offers of peace terms from the various and widely scattered groups of irregulars in Cork, Waterford, Limerick, Tipperary, Kilkenny, Galway, Mayo, Roscommons, Kerry, Wexford, Dublin and Sligo.".

Referring to the so-called Republican Government, President Cosgrove said this presumably "means the group of prisoners and women whose names appeared some time ago with a series of fancy designations, headed by the self-styled president, Eamon de Valera."

"The Deputy Chief of Staff," the statement continues, "is the man who in the same week, as he wrote that letter confided to another that he was 'sick of it and can see no prospects.' The story of an arrangement with England is the product of his sick brain and it is wholly false." (This apparently refers to Liam Lynch's letter to reply to Liam Deasy's appeal that the irregulars surrender).

Government's Attitude.

"It is then my solemn duty," Cosgrave declares, "to repeat clearly and specifically so that all may read and know it, that the Government is determined to put down this revolt against democracy regardless of cost. Let no man be deceived. If anyone continues in this unnatural war upon his own people after the expiration of the stated period of amnesty he must be prepared to pay the price in full for there will be no going back upon this.

"Furthermore, it must be clearly understood that there will be no meeting for negotiations on the part of the Government with De Valera, Liam Lynch, or any of their collaborators in destruction, male or female."

The statement concludes: "The guns and ammunition which the irregulars have been trying to borrow or buy from Russia may add to the destruction but they will not bring De Valera or any of his band appreciably nearer to either alternative of their program — victory over, or extermination of the Irish nation."

Gen. Daly, the Free State commander in County Kerry, has received the following statement signed by 70 prisoners detained in the Tralee jail.

"We, the undersigned, approve Liam Deasy's action in calling on his comrades for unconditional surrender. We request a parole for delegates to interview our comrades in arms and advise them to surrender. We guarantee the return of our delegates when we have done our best to accomplish this."

HOLDUP MEN SLUG WOMAN AND GET $4200 PAYROLL

Cashier of Shoe Machinery Company Robbed in Front of the Office on Olive Street.

TWO MEN ESCAPE IN GREEN-PAINTED AUTO

Taxicab Driver Pursues on Foot and Is Fired Upon—Believes He Obtained License Number of Car.

Two robbers escaped in a green painted touring car of expensive make and bearing an Illinois license tag, after hitting the woman cashier of the United Shoe Machinery Co., on the head and taking $4200 payroll money from her in front of the company's office, 1423 Olive street, at 9:15 a. m., yesterday.

The cashier, Miss Bertha Baganz, of 5696 Kingsbury boulevard, had drawn the money a few minutes before from the Merchants-Laclede Bank, Fourth and Olive streets, and had driven in a taxicab to the company's office, accompanied by the office manager, George Miller. She had just stepped from the taxi and was about to enter the office when two men, standing on the sidewalk, covered her with revolvers and demanded that she surrender her handbag containing the money.

Woman Struck With Revolver.

Miller was settling the taxi bill with the chauffeur and as he turned toward the robbers one of them pointed his revolver at him and ordered him to stay back. As Miller and the chauffeur were unarmed they did not attempt to interfere.

Miss Baganz ignored the command to hand over the bag and made a dash into the vestibule entrance to the office. One of the robbers followed her and as she was reaching the inner door leading to the office he struck her on the left side of the head with his revolver, cutting her temple, and, snatching the bag from her hand, joined his companion on the sidewalk. In his haste to get out of the vestibule he smashed the glass panel of the outer door.

The robbers ran west to a point near Fifteenth street and jumped into the automobile, at the wheel of which a third man was sitting. The car was driven to Sixteenth street and north to St. Charles street.

Taxi Driver Fired Upon.

The taxi chauffeur, C. O. Harper of 1322 Mitchell avenue, St. Louis County, followed the car on foot to Sixteenth street, but stopped when one of the robbers leaned over the side of the car and fired a shot at him. Harper obtained what he believed to be the license number and later gave it to the police.

Miss Bakanz has been cashier for the company for more than 10 years, and it was her custom to go every Saturday at about the same time to the bank for the money to meet the company's weekly payroll. The robbers evidently were acquainted with her routine.

Miller and Harper said the robbers had swarthy comelexions and were of stoky build. They wore dark clothes and caps. The police did not ascertain if the payroll money was covered by insurance as the headquarters of the company is in Boston.

DIES DAY AFTER DAUGHTER-IN-LAW

—From an old photograph.

MRS. VIRGINIA BLAND.

"SILVER DICK" BLAND'S WIDOW DIES IN DENVER

She Succumbs to Pneumonia Day After Daughter-in-Law—Burial at Lebanon, Mo.

By the Associated Press.

DENVER, Colo., Feb. 17.—Mrs. Virginia Bland, widow of Richard "Silver Dick" Bland, former Missouri Congressman and originator of the free silver movement, died here today after a short illness.

A son, E. C. Bland, is Judge of the Court of Appeals, Kansas City, Mo.

Mrs. Bland was 69 years old. She will be buried at Lebanon, Mo., beside her husband.

Mrs. Bland came to Denver a short time ago to aid in caring for Mrs. Willow H. Bland, her daughter-in-law, who was ill of pneumonia. She contracted the disease. Her daughter-in-law died yesterday.

Mrs. Bland Was Assistant Revenue Collector at Denver.

St. Louis relatives of Mrs. Virginia Bland are Charles P. Bland of 5061 Washington boulevard and Clark C. Bland, nephews. One of her sons, Theodoric R. Bland, formerly lived in St. Louis. He was made a member of the Police Board by former Gov. Folk in 1906, with particular instructions to close up bucket shops. He left St. Louis some time ago. At the University of Missouri he had been known as a football player, trackman and hurdler. Later he was secretary of the Western Association, Amateur Athletic Union.

Mrs. Virginia Bland had lived with her son, Judge Bland, at Kansas City, for the last five years. Following his marriage three weeks ago she went to Denver, where a third son, John lives. Mrs. Bland became Assistant Collector of Internal Revenue at Denver in 1914, by Federal appointment, with virtually entire charge of the office.

She had gone there a short time previously from Lebanon, Mo., her old home. In an interview when she arrived at Denver she said she was not an enthusiastic suffragist, thought a maried woman's place was in the home and realized from her experience as mother of 10 children that a growing family needs a mother at the fireside. In 1906 it was related that she was operating successfully an 80-acre farm near Lebanon, which provided her entire income. She raised standard crops apples and cattle, and lived on the farm nine months a year.

HOUSE WHERE FIELD WAS NOT BORN DOOMED

Building at 634 South Broadway Bearing Erroneous Tablet Is to Be Razed.

"The house where Eugene Field was not born," 634 South Broadway, is to be razed. The small bronze tablet on its front, with the inscription, "Here was born Eugene Field, the poet, 1850-1895," will be taken down. Thus will pass a St. Louis tradition, which, according to accounts now available, was in error. However, Field did live in this house for about five years after his infancy.

The house is one of a solid row of 12, about half of which still are occupied, after service of three-quarters of a century or more. It and five others are three stories high and the six to the north have only two floors. The bricks are black and the mortar is chinked; the windows are broken and gaping.

Above the first-floor windows and nearly illegible from smoke and dirt, a searcher can find the bronze tablet. More than two decades ago a newspaper article related that Field was born there. It was based largely on an interview with the late Melvin L. Gray, legal colleague and friend of Field's father, Roswell M. Field. The author of that article is living, and believes that Gray's memory was at fault, and that the tablet was placed as a result of publication of this article.

Unveiled by Mark Twain.

A group of friends of the poet, thought possibly to have represented the University Club, arranged for the marker. It was unveiled by Mark Twain, the Missouri author, in a ceremony June 6, 1902. Field's younger brother, the late Roswell Field Jr., read of the ceremony and came here to investigate. He did not believe the poet was born there.

Roswell pointed out a neighborhood on Collins street, north of Franklin avenue, where he thought the family lived when he and Eugene were born. Collins street is a short thoroughfare, just east of Third street, running north from Franklin avenue, which was called Cherry street in 1850. A city directory printed in 1850, now at the Missouri Historical Society, gave the Field address as 28 Collins street. Subsequent directories gave it as Fifth street (now Broadway), between Poplar and Cerre streets. That is the location of the house where the tablet is. Possibly the conflict as to Eugene's birthplace arose from the similarity of Cherry and Cerre.

Said an intimate of Field's, Slason Thompson, in memoirs published in 1901:

"There is some uncertainty as to the exact date and location of Eugene's birth. When his father was married (in 1848), he took his bride to a house on Collins street, which, under time's transmuting and ironical fingers, has since become a noisy boilershop. There their first child was born. Subsequently they moved to the house, 634 South Fifth street, which is one in the middle of a block of houses pointed out in St. Louis as the birthplace of Eugene Field.

One of Six Children.

"Although Eugene himself went with a photographer and pointed out the house, his brother Roswell strenuously maintains that Eugene was born before the family moved to the Walsh row, so-called, and that to the boilershop belongs the honor of having heard the first lullabies that greeted the ears of their greatest master."

Thompson recorded that Eugene was the second of six children, of whom only he and Roswell survived. He quoted a woman who went to take care of the children when Eugene was 4 months old, who recalled that "Eugene was born on Third street; I think Cherry was one of the cross streets." Family recollections were not certain whether it was Sept. 2 or 3, 1850, that Eugene was born.

At any rate, Eugene could not have been more than a year old when the Fields moved to the Fifth street house. His mother, in whose memory he wrote a touching verse in 1890, died when he was 6 years old and he was placed in the care of an aunt in the East. As a youth he attended the University of Missouri. In his "An Auto-Analysis" he noted that he was a newspaper man in St. Louis from 1876 to 1880, the period for which St. Louisans best remembered him, personally. He died in Chicago, where he was a newspaper writer, Nov. 4, 1895. A public school at Taylor avenue and Olive street, honors his memory here.

Warehouses Projected.

The row of brick houses belonged to the estate of the father of Julius S. Walsh, who is chairman of the board of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., and who was born in a house near Sixth and Olive streets. Walsh said yesterday it was his recollection Field was born in the Broadway row. No. 634 and the house on each side of it now belong to the Board of Education. Frank Yawitz recently bought the other nine houses from the Walsh estate.

It was announced yesterday that Con P. Curran had purchased Yawitz's holding for $20,500 and leased the Board of Education property. He said he was negotiating the purchase of the latter, and in any event would tear down all 12 houses, which have a total frontage on Broadway of 279 feet. He may erect a freight receiving station there for the Fidelity Transfer Co., which he controls, soon, or may build a large warehouse later. The transaction was handled by the Mississippi Valley Trust Co. and the Cornet & Zeibig Trust.

his own high estimate of plaintiff's character."

The petition declared that it was at the insistence of Candler that Mrs. de Bouchel set the wedding date for Sept. 20, 1922, the ceremony to take place at her residence in Reno, Nev. At the request of Candler, the petition asserted, Mrs. de Bouchel in advance of the wedding date sent her household furniture to defendant in Atlanta "to comply with his express desire that her furniture might be installed in his home."

Announcement cards had been printed and plans completed for a reception after the wedding at Candler's home, the petition said. The wedding itinerary was mapped out, a clergyman engaged, wedding bouquets ordered, and an elaborate trousseau made ready, and Mrs. de Bouchel had invited some of her intimate friends for the ceremony.

Wedding Date Announced.

"In the meantime," the petition asserted, "defendant had announced to members of his family that the date for the wedding had been definitely fixed and that the wedding would take place upon the date assigned. Thereupon, said members of the defendant's family, actuated by their own personal motives, renewed and desperately redoubled their ruthless and determined effort to interfere with and prevent the expressed pose of the said Asa G. LLOYD GEORGE Makes Powerful Plea for Payment of Britain's Just Claims Against THE ALLIES

Says Distinctive Ideal of Art Is Being Formed by Artists of America

Leon Bakst, Russian Painter, Believes U. S. Already Has Evolved Types of Beauty That Particularly Are Her Own.

By Eugene S. Bagger.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.

THERE is an old German nursery story about the alchemist who discovered the secret of making gold. There was nothing miraculous about it—just a formula of simple ingredients, inexpensively obtained at the corner grocery; they had to be mixed in a soup pot over the kitchen fire. That was all. But there was a condition. The person engaged in watching the pot must not think of the rhinoceros. What rhinoceros? Any rhinoceros.

There was no reason in the world why he should think of the rhinoceros, but, being told he had to keep his mind off the impetuous pachyderm, he couldn't do it. He said to himself: "I am not thinking of the rhinoceros—I am not thinking of the rhinoceros." Which was just as bad as thinking of it. Which explains why the alchemist's recipe has not become popular.

I was reminded of this story by what Leon Bakst, the Russian painter and decorator, said to me about art in the United States. When Bakst speaks of art he means pictorial art. Bakst believes that America has already evolved types of beauty that are as distinctively her own as what we call the Greek ideal is Greece's. He also believes that American artists are progressing in strides toward giving the distinctly American ideal of beauty a distinctively American art.

Not Quite Arrived.

They are progressing fast—but they haven't quite got there yet. And the reason is, he thinks, that they are too self-conscious—in the sense of conscious of self, not embarrassed. They bother too much about what the rest of the world thinks about them. They bother too much about what the rest of the world is doing, and has done in times past. In a word, they do not quite dare to be just themselves, just American. And when they dare they can't forget about it. They either think of the rhinoceros or tell themselves they don't think of the rhinoceros. Which, as we have said, amounts to the same thing.

There is a curious discrepancy, Bakst says, in effect, between the attitude of the American engineer toward his world and that of the American artist towards his. The American engineer has perfect self-command as well as perfect command of his material. He rules his means and his purpose. And he does not worry. He is confronted with a problem, and he conceives of a solution. Someone says: "That has never been done before." The American engineer answers: "That is one more reason why I shall do it in my own way." And he does. He does not fret about precedent. He does not fret about what the engineers of the Italian Cinquecento, or those of the French Second Empire, or those of contemporary Munich would do in a similar emergency. He just loads the gun of his invention, takes aim, fires—and usually scores a bull's eye.

Example for the Artists.

Leon Bakst does not see why American artists shouldn't act precisely in the same manner.

"It is this daredevil originality," he says, "which put America into the lead of the rest of the world as regards technical sciences. And it is this daredevil originality that has made the one art which is America's specific contribution to the art of our century—in which she has produced something superb and unique, which the world has never seen before and [illegible] for America may never have seen. I mean American architecture—I mean the skyscraper."

The New York architect saw himself confronted with a growing demand for dwellings and office buildings and a stationary amount of building space. Natural condition set limit to horizontal expansion. The development of steel and concrete, on the rock bottom of Manhattan, opened up possibilities of vertical expansion. The result is the skyscraper. American architects did not worry as to what Sir Christopher Wren would have done or what the architects of Rome [illegible] would do. They asked: "What is needed? What can wo do?" And they went and did it.

The skyscraper, the magnificent office building and apartment hotel and the railroad terminal are the achievements of a distinct American art that is as different from the art of Europe as the tomb of Tutankhamen is from the Cathedral of Chartres. And American architects achieved it because they dared to be themselves.

America Possesses Color.

"Their achievement is beautiful—it is art—in proportion to their daring. Building in steel and concrete and glass on Manhattan isn't building in marble on the Acropolis or in granite on the hills of Tuscany. Surroundings, material and purpose circumscribe line, surface, form. Beauty is inherent in the very limitations. It is the artist's privilege to sense and bring out that line, that surface, that beauty. Most beautiful are those buildings in which material, purpose and environment are harmonized with the least possible regard for artistic precedent—as in the Bush Terminal Tower, for instance.

"Now there is every reason that the same evolution should be accomplished in American painting. First of all, America possesses that which is the most indispensable element in pictorial art, its very foundation—color. Do you realize that there is no country in the world where freshness, intensity, poetry of color overwhelm the eye the way it does in America? Then there is your atmosphere. I am told this is a commonplace—everybody speaks about the sparkling, crystalline air of America. But everybody speaks about it because it is so poignantly true.

"What I have seen of early American—I mean Indian—art convinces me that strong, glowing, uncompromising color is something of an autochthonous American product."

The Opposite Presented.

One of the greatest artistic achievements in the world, a seventeenth century Dutch landscape painting, sprang from the atmospheric properties of the Netherlands—the mist which bathes everything in a flood of silvery opalescence and reduces colors to a gamut of halftones. America presents atmospheric conditions almost diametrically opposite—a ruthless clarity that allows of no concealment, where all red is more red, all green is more green than anywhere else in the world—a uniform all-pervading brilliancy. Bakst believes that American painting will develop into the art of terrifically strong lights and intense colors par excellence.

"There is a growing recognition of this among American artists," he says. "But they are too self-conscious. They think too much about Paris and London and Rome. They spend too much time abroad, and even when their bodies are in America their souls sometimes remain in Europe.

"Why don't they say, adapting the line of the beautiful American folk song, 'What the hell do we care?' Why don't they just go ahead and do things as it is their unique privilege to do them? Sometimes they remind me of a child that gets hold of a paint box and begins to lay on Former British Premier Urges Revival of Discussion of Balfour Note Which, He Says, Constituted a Generous Offer on the Part of Britain to Cancel a Large Part of the Allies' Debts to Britain if the Allies Would Help Britain Pay Debt to United States.

"A Gerrymandered Jubilee," He Declares, Which Frees France, Italy and Belgium From All Their Debts, Whilst Leaving Britain Sweating to Pay Off Debts Incurred for Her Allies on the Strength of Their Bond--That We Cannot Tolerate.

LONDON, Feb. 17.

A COLD shiver ran down the back of England when it was annouuced officially that the British Government had definitely agreed to pay over 30,000,000 pounds sterling a year for 60 years to the United States in respect of debts incurred by us on behalf of our allies without seeking a contribution from our debtors to protect the taxpayers of this country.

It is not that anyone dreamt the evil dream of repudiation. That was never woven into the texture even of the worst nightmare out of the many that have disturbed our repose since the greatest nightmare of all left the world a quivering, nervous wreck.

Nor did we expect remission of our debts. Whenever we were tempted to exaggerate the bounds of human charity, paragraphs appeared that reminded us of the attitude of the "Middle West." America was discovered by Europe centuries ago, but the "Middle West" as a political entity is to untutored Europeans a discovery of the war.

We were then told by returning explorers it was the seat of the American conscience—inexorable, intractable, but irresistible when engaged in any enterprise. How potent this conscience was as a world force the war demonstrated. From the heights it hurled an avalanche of force against Germany that overwhelmed the last hope of resistance. Unfortunately for us, when it came to debts we struck against the hard side of the Middle West conscience.

Our hope was therefore not in remission. There were, however, many other possibilities. We were not the only debtors of the American Government. Other allies had borrowed, not merely indirectly through us, but directly from America. We had every confidence that the United States Government would not mete out to Britain severer treatment than it was prepared to accord our allies. We had to contend, it is true, with legends of our inexhaustible wealth.

Apart from our great coal deposits and climate, which leaves those who endure it no alternative but activity, we have no treasure except industry, resources and the inherited skill of our people. We have nothing like the rich plains and fertilizing and ripening sunshine of France, which maintain 60 per cent of its population. Our sources of wealth—apart from coal—are precarious, for they depend more largely than any other country on conditions outside our own. We are international providers, merchants and carriers. A 60-year contract to pay large sums across the seas is in many respects a more serious consideration for us than for countries whose riches are inherent in their soil and are therefore more self-contained.

Unemployment in Britain.

The demoralized condition of the world markets has left us with a larger proportion of our industrial population unemployed than any other European country. I hear tales of unemployment in the United States, but reports that reach us here on American unemployment are so contradictory that I can build no argument upon them. But as to the gigantic dimensions of our unemployed problem there can be no doubt. We have 1,400,000 workmen on the unemployed register drawing unemployment pay in one form or another. The annual cost to the nation of feeding its workless population runs to over one hundred million pounds sterling—almost the figure of the annuity demanded from Germany as a war indemnity.

Although there are signs of improvement, omens point to a prolonged period of subnormal trade. Continuous depression for years will mean that Britain will suffer more from the devastation of her trade caused by the war than France from the devastation of her provinces. Our country, anxious about its means of livelihood, with a million and a half of its workmen walking the streets in vain search for work, has to bear the heaviest burden of taxation in the world. Why? Because it has not only to pay interest on its own heavy war debts, but also on 3,000,000,000 pounds which it either advanced to its allies or incurred on their behalf. That is why we felt confident the United States would not discriminate against a nation so situated.

When I talk of debts the allies owe us I want to emphasize the fact that these debts are not paper myths or tricks of accountancy. They are onerous facts representing a real burden borne at this hour by the bent and panting taxpayer of Britain. If these loans had never been made the weight on his shoulders today would have been lighter by a shilling and sixpence to two shillings in the pound. He is every year paying to actual lenders—some British, some American—that proportion of his income. Its weight he undertook to carry for his allies during the war on the sacred pledge of those allies that they would take it over after the war.

The American Government borrowed from the American public to make advances to Great Britain and has called upon the British taxpayer to redeem his pledge. We make no complaint, for the demand is mitigation of the strict letter of the bond. But that amount is in substance part of the debt owing by the allies to Britain. And the British taxpayer naturally feels it is hard on him to have to bear not only his own legitimate burden but that he should in addition have to carry the debts of his less heavily taxed brethren in continental countries. He naturally inferred that if equal pressure had been administered on all debtors alike it would have forced an allround consultation which would have terminated in an allround settlement.

Balfour Note Misunderstood.

That was the real purport of the Balfour note. The true significance of that great document has been entirely misunderstood—sometimes carelessly, sometimes purposely, sometimes insolently. It has suffered the same fate as the Treaty of Versailles. Opinion is sharply divided as to both between those who rend without reading and those who read without rending. Most men have received their impressions of the Balfour note from the denunciatory phrases penned by writers who received their ideas about it from men who gave instructions to condemn it without ever reading it. Men who really understood both the Versailles Treaty and the Balfour note have been too busy to find time to inform, interpret and explain. But the time has come when public attention should be once more drawn to the remarkable and far-reaching proposals of the Balfour note.

They constitute an offer on the part of Britain to measure claims against her allies by the extent of her obligations to the United States. The British Government offered to include the claim of the country against Germany in this generous concession. What does that mean in reference to present conditions? That if the allies and Germany between them found the £30,000,000 a year which Britain has undertaken to pay America she would forego her claim to the £3,300,000,000 due her under contract and treaty. It was a great offer and if accepted would have produced results beneficent beyond computation. Britain, which would have been the heaviest direct loser, would have profited indirectly through the world recovery that would have ensued.

How was it received? Some criticised it because it asked too little—some because it demanded too much. Many criticised because they were determined to approve nothing that emanated from such a Government, but most of its censors condemned it because they never took the trouble to understand it, and the shrillest among the street cries happened to denounce it. The Government that propounded it soon after left the seat of authority and the administration that succeeded put forward a new scheme which attracted even less acceptance. So this great project, which should have settled forever the question which above all others is vexing peace and unsettling minds in Europe, was pigeon-holed where it was not put in the waste basket.

But surely this is not the end of all endeavors to reach a settlement of the question of interallied debts. We cannot rest satisfied with an arrangement which effectively binds us to pay without prospect of the slightest contribution from our debtors. What America cannot indulge in we cannot afford. The gold of Europe now lies in its coffers. Who are we—plunged in the mire of debt up to our nostrils—to give ourselves airs of generosity superior to the only golden land left in this war-stripped earth?

Other Nations Must Help.

If there's to be a general jubilee in which all alike participate in order to give the world a new start, then I feel sure Britain will play her part bravely and nobly. But a gerrymandered jubilee which frees France, Italy and Belgium from all their debts whilst leaving Britain sweating to pay off debts incurred for her allies on the strength of their bond—that we cannot tolerate.

I trust the British Government will insist on an arrangement with our allies which, even if it is not a replica of our contract with the American Government, will at any rate insure us a contribution that will safeguard us against loss under that contract. It is, I fear, hopeless to expect that we should be recouped the shilling and eightpence in the pound which interest on allied debts costs our taxpayers, but at any rate we might be guaranteed against the sixpence in the pound which the American installments involve.

I feel the effort is beset with difficulties and that the outlook is not hopeful. There have of late been a few discouraging symptoms. One is the reception accorded at the recent Paris conference to the British Prime Minister's liberal offer regarding interallied debts. It was a tactical error to open the conference with such a scheme, and the effect was singularly unfortunate.

Had I been disposed to press my criticisms on the conduct of the recent negotiations in Paris it would have been that they were so managed that for the first time since the war Britain has been completely isolated at a European conference. That is a misfortune, for it encouraged the French Government to rash action. Up to the last conference Britain and Italy had remained in substantial accord, even when France and Belgium took a different view, and Belgium had never before quitted any of the gatherings in complete disagreement with Great Britain. So France, always tempted as she was to occupy the Ruhr, hesitated to do so in the face of so formidable an allied resistance.

What is relevant, however, to the subject of this article is the cause of our unwonted isolation on the occasion of the last conference. The British Premier started negotiations by making proposals which promised forgiveness of most of the indebtedness of these countries to Britain, but which implied immediate arrangements for beginning repayment of the rest. This suggestion of repayment instantly consolidated opposition to the whole British plan.

No Intention to Pay.

It became clear that existing Governments on the Continent had no intention of paying the smallest percentage of a debt they incurred on faith of a solemn engagement to repay a loan when that was possible and to pay interest meanwhile. If we point to the fact, as we did in the Balfour note, that we have undertaken to repay the United States the heavy debt incurred by us on behalf of the allies, they simply shrug their shoulders and say in effect: "That is your affair. We repay neither Britain nor America and there is an end of it."

The other unpleasant incident is the speech delivered by M. Poincare in the French chamber, in the course of which he dealt casually with the subject of interallied indebtedness. The French Prime Minister then announced categorically that France had no intention of paying her debts until she had first received her share of reparations from Germany. What does that mean in effect? That the France represented by M. Poincare has no intention of ever paying her reparations is taken into account, 80 years is a moderate estimate of the period required for its liquidation. Is the French debt to lie dormant, carrying no interest meanwhile? If it is, then the debt is practically wiped out, for the present value of a $2,500,000,000 debt payable 80 years hence is insignificant. The present Government of France has therefore declared it does not mean to pay what France owes. Surely the time to dictate conditions of your payment of a loan—when you propose to pay, how much you propose to pay, or whether you mean to pay at all—is when you are borrowing and not after you have spent the money.

And yet, in the same speech in which M. Poincare serves up hot platitudes for senatorial palates about the sanctity of national obligations, he dismisses France's faithful ally with the cold comfort that

Allies Owe Great Britain $9,750,000,000; Britain Owes U. S. $4,600,000,000

Post-Dispatch Bureau
No. 20 Wyatt Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—According to figures supplied to the Anglo-American debt commission by the British members, the principal of the war debt owed by Allied nations to Great Britain is 1,503,642,016 pounds and the interest accrued and unpaid is approximately 500,000,000 pounds or a total of 2,003,642,016 pounds.

Converted at par of exchange this total equals approximately $9,750,000,000 as compared with $4,600,000,000 in principal and accrued interest owed by Great Britain, to the United States.

Of Great Britain's cash advances to the Allies 767,971,589 pounds were loaned before and 75,670,427 pounds after the United States entered the war.

The amounts advanced by Great Britain to the various nations in pounds, were as follows: France, 453,000,255; Russia, 494,594,647; Italy, 380,708,116; Belgium, 97,308,698; Belgian Congo, 3,499,581; Serbia, 22,453,020; Rumania, 16,585,384; Portugal, 15,012,377; Greece, 20,479,958. Total 1,503,642,016 pounds.

Balfour Note Advocated Balancing of Obligations

The Balfour note to the Allied powers owing war debts to Great Britain, informing them that Great Britain would expect repayment in the same measure that the United States exacted payment from Great Britain, was written August 1, last, a copy being sent to the American embassy in London.

The note, which was addressed by the Earl of Balfour, acting Foreign Secretary of France, Italy, Jugo-Slavia, Rumania Portugal and Greece, constituted a strong plea for international or interallied indebtedness by a balancing of obligations and a generous reduction in German reparation.

At the same time it was the Government's reply to those who had frankly advised cancellation of the French, Italian and other allied debts to England, irrespective of whether the United States was willing to cancel the British debt.

While recognizing the perfect courtesy and equity of the American policy and declaring that the Government was fully prepared to meet its obligations, the note contained an expression of profound reluctance with which Great Britain abandoned the policy, it would have preferred of a general cancellation and incidentally expressed itself as still willing to forego any further German reparations if thereby a general settlement might be brought about. The British Government, the note stated, recognized what their obligations to the United States were and were prepared to fulfill them, "but evidently they cannot do so without profoundly modifying the course they would have wished to pursue."

MATERIALISTIC POLITICS CAUSE EUROPEAN MUDDLE, MAXIMILIAN HARDEN SAYS

German Publicist Says Making Unit of Rich Coal and Iron District Would Be Solution, but Britain Never Would Consent.

BERLIN, Feb. 17.

THE giant Roentgen, great physicist, was borne to his grave through sorrowing thousands, ancient of years and full of honors, blessed both by Minerva and Fortuna as a great discoverer. His home is now occupied by foreign troops, but 30 years ago he it was who discovered those rays which enable doctors to see behind solid flesh the bones and the condition of every organ of the body, including the heart and the stomach. Not only this, but his discovery revealed atoms of stone and metals in the smallest detail.

The world knows what this meant to surgery, medicine, minerology, science, theory of practical manufacture, technique and the like. Would the world be equally ready to pay tribute to a "political Roentgen," paying him the same tribute as the dead German scientist? Does the world want to see conditions in the heart and brain of nations and rulers; to see the contents of a closed safe or purse as one can observe the condition of the lungs or kidneys through vacuum tubes with an electric current? Is the number of people large who have the courage and nerve anywhere to examine their own people, let alone a foreign nation, with such exact scientific apparatus?

What Determines Politics.

We are still doubtful. Politics daily becomes more materialistic. Many thinkers today believe politics are determined by desires to grab Near East oil wells, or timber, or coal, or ore in Europe, considerations of import and export trade regulating the main-line switches of the political railway. The object of the above arguments, however, is to show how nations, guided by a horrible greed of money, develop nationalistic feelings which are dishonorable. Everyone is anxious to believe the sweet hope that their own country always is struggling for freedom, humanity, culture, the sacred laws of civilization and honor. It was promised that the Turks, who for centuries had been blamed for atrocities against Christians, were to be chased back to their Asia Minor homes. Yet the Powers are giving them more rights than they have enjoyed for several hundred years.

They now are arbiters of the Bosphorus. The King's speech to the British Parliament failed to mention why no one found time to plead for the safety of hundreds of thousands of Armenians, Syrians, Egyptians, or to guarantee the lives of several hundred thousand Greeks inhabiting Constantinople. No one asks the reason for the sudden desire for Turkish friendship, but the rays of a political Roentgen apparatus will show British desire to exploit oil wells and French appeal for other economic advantage.

France believes Germany has given more money to restore her agricultural, industrial and shipping life than was justified under the peace treaty. Therefore, France considers herself insulted, insisting that her own technical machinery was more injured than that of her enemy, and she refuses to agree with the German argument that only the highest technical efficiency will make it possible to meet obligations.

Leaders of the British Government shake their heads in pity over poor France. What remedy do they propose? What is their wisdom? They have no remedy, know no remedy and can only pipe sweetly that perhaps America later on can come in and mediate. Yesterday an American friend cabled me:

"If your Government will decide to confiscate 80 per cent of the excess fortunes of the privileged few and administer just reparations, then the enlightened thought of America will add its counsel."

Each Plan Has Drawbacks.

Much might be said against such a summary proceeding, but, anyhow, it's better than the sad face of the English politicians. But the real remedy is easily found. Between Pas de Calais and the Westphalian town of Hamm, in the Valleys of the Rivera, Scheldt, Meuse, Rhine and Ruhr, lie Europe's richest area for coal, coke, iron, productive mines, modern foundries and the most finely organized factories, railways and waterways.

If this area could be rationally combined into one unit undisturbed by dynastic ambitions and diplomatic jealousies fixing imaginary boundaries, then it would be possible not only to tide Belgium, France, Italy and Germany over the aftermath of the war but gradually to reconstruct the whole continent. But this would take from England her balance of power; therefore, she is not anxious to see any Franco-German understanding.

The Thing Behind the Klan.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE Morehouse probe is over. The evidence has identified about seven men as being connected with the local klan and with the seizing of Daniel and Richard, who were later found in Lake La Fourche. Of the men identified, two are Baptist deacons and three more are prominent Protestants, one a Baptist. However, in this State the evidence at this probe will have to go before a graud jury picked by the klan public officials of Morehouse, as our grand juries are not drawn but "hand-picked;" and a set of klan officials can select a klan jury to "whitewash" their fellow klansmen.

If, by any chance, a grand jury should indict any of these men they will have to be tried before a petit jury, also composed of Protestants, many of them Baptists and lifelong friends of the accused. Anyone can picture the outcome; for unless the evidence is so strong and unmistakable that the public would hang the jury in the event of an acquittal, advantage will be taken of any loophole through which a "favorable" verdict can be given for the accused. This may sound unduly pessimistic to those who have not followed the trend of crime since the klans were organized.

The point of all this to the people is that so long as this "moral crusade" is permitted, no man's life is safe, and anyone who is not a klansman or a bigot may find his loved ones slain when he awakes in the morning. Are we going to permit churchmen to establish a supergovernment in the United States superior to our constitutional Government and denying us our established rights bought with the blood of dissenting forefathers who found this a refuge from continental religious tyranny?

A Voter Speaks.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

ELECTION day is nearing, and in the meantime smooth politicians will show their love and respect they have for us voters—like the farmer loves and respects the cattle he is fattening for the market—for the profit there is in it. They can hire a few slick-tongued fellows to gizzle us out of our votes—and that is all they want of us other than their work.

But for all of this, most of us love them. We build them palaces, we array them in gorgeous attire, we build them great factories, we take off and put on their clothes, we cook and feed them, we wash their dirty linen, and our wives and daughters do the same for their wives and daughters. We voters are such cravens that we take off our hats to them, bow before them as if they were gods, defend them with our lives from harm. We working jackers are such a wise set of guys, most of us have "fun brains"—brains full of rainwater and oatmeal.

Another View of Herrin.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE Herrin verdict means that if the officers of the law fail to see that justice is done, that the people, so-called a mob, will take the matter in their own hands and see that it is; it means that human rights are greater than property rights; that an arrogant capitalist cannot import outside labor, under false pretenses, into a district where there is a lawful union labor strike, surround the imported labor with a private army of Chicago toughs armed with rifles and machine guns, permit them to terrorize the inhabitants, shoot into houses, kill cattle, hold up and forcibly search citizens on the public highways, and insult them when they object, and cap the climax by murdering two unarmed union men who were not even intruding on the sacredness of the mining property.

Nothing was done to protect these people from these infamous outrages, which were solely to blame for what happened afterwards; no indictment of the mine owner, who is responsible for them is even talked of by the State officials, who, with the assistance of the Chicago Chamber of Commerce, are so zealously engaged in upholding the sacredness of property rights over those of humanity, under the guise of a murder trial. No denunciation of the greed and lawlessness of the mine owner has appeared in any metropolitan editorial. He is the one who should have been first indicted and tried for murder, but money can do no wrong. To crucify and crush the laborer is apparently the purpose of those in power.

RETIRED EMPLOYER.

THE REGULATION OF AIRCRAFT.

Among the urgent matters of legislation to which Congress should give prompt attention is the regulation of civil aeronautics in this country. A year ago the Senate passed such a measure sponsored by Senator Wadsworth, but it died in the House. Another bill, drawn by Representative Winslow, embodying the best features of the Wadsworth bill, has just been presented, and is said to contain the best thought of all interested departments on the subject.

With more than a thousand planes operating privately and commercially in the United States an adequate system of governmental inspection and licensing has become a necessity. Until such laws are established there can be no proper protection of the public, while this period of uncertainty must necessarily tend to discourage the development of the industry.

Representative Winslow's bill apparently seeks to vest paramount control of aerial navigation in the Federal Government, to the exclusion of the states, and there are decisions of the Supreme Court which warrant the conclusion that Congress may legislate to this end under the interstate commerce clause. At the same time the matter of intrastate flying will necessarily raise the question of exclusive state jurisdiction, which may bring to the fore all of the problems and conflict attending the regulation of railroads in their development. As the several states are sovereign within their respective landed limits so are they sovereign in their aerial space. It is to be hoped, however, that the national importance of aerial navigation, not only in commerce, but in national defense, will restrain the states from unnecessary interferences in their legislation.

The Federal legislation necessary must not only include inspection, licensing, rules of the air and other means of reducing the hazards, but it must consider torts, crimes and jurisdiction relating to the air. As to torts, with what degree of care is the aviator charged? If a crime is committed during an interstate flight will jurisdiction lie in the Federal courts or in the courts of the state in whose aerial space it occurred? A crime committed on an interstate railway is, as we know, triable in the state in which it occurred. Yet there seems to be a desire to give the Federal courts jurisdiction as to crimes committed during flight, at least, in cases where no landing is made in the state within whose aerial space they occur.

Again, what shall constitute trespass as against the private land owner? Since he owns usque ad coelum and usque ad inferos, it has never been decided whether the passage of aircraft through his aerial space against his will is or is not trespass. Perhaps the majority of decisions hold, however, that there must be some physical disturbance of the land to constitute trespass, though it may do as little damage as the falling of shot fired from a gun.

It is desirable that any legislation in this new field shall conform as nearly as practicable to settled principles, and these may be found in the development of law with relation to the railroads.

FRANCE LOANS MONEY.

Mention of the French loan of $24,000,000 to Poland will leave a bad taste in American mouths. France owes us money—a great deal of money. She says she cannot pay, and we have not pressed her. Incidentally, she also owes a large sum to Great Britain, which is not being paid. Deputy Moutet expressed American opinion, as well as that of the French minority, when he told the Chamber that "a country that cannot pay its own debts should not loan, even to its friends."

During the debate it was openly charged that the money is for military purposes. Surely France will not launch Poland in another mad attack upon Russia. The other probability is that the army will be used as the eastern side of the nutcracker to crush Germany. French statesmanship is at the low ebb of intelligence.

HANDS ACROSS THE AGES.

When Howard Carter, the American Egyptologist, and Lord Carnarvon, his British financial aid and coworker, first peered into the funerary chamber of King Tutankhamen in the Valley of the Kings of Thebes in Upper Egypt and looked upon the state throne of the ancient Pharaoh and four magnificent state chariots emblazoned with gold and precious stones, as well as a mass of other priceless art objects of antiquity, they invaded the solitude of more than 33 centuries.

From the time human eyes had last gazed upon that scene until the two modern explorers, by the aid of an Edison light, entered the chamber, ancient Troy had fallen to the barbaric Greeks; Athens had become the flower of civilization, gave us Socrates, Plato and Aristotle, and decayed; Alexander of Macedon had forged a chain of empire upon the world and died in debauchery; Carthage had risen and perished by flame and sword; Rome and the Caesars had left a trail of blood and splendor; a lowly carpenter of Judea had electrified the world with a transforming message of good will; new Herods had arisen to inflict death and torture in the name of the deity; a Genoese navigator had turned the world from a plain into a globe, revealed a new hemisphere and opened the way to a new cradle of liberty; Napoleon had written his name in red across the face of Europe.

Until today Greece and Rome have remained the peerless gems of pre-Christian culture. They are no longer so. The grandeur of the throne of King Tutankhamen has led art critics to declare that it transcends all existing objects of art and even the imagination of man; that it humbles the achievements of the illustrious artists of Greece! It may be established that not ancient Greece but Egypt was the mother of the arts. An unread store of papyrus volumes may reveal Egyptian leadership also in poetry and philosophy. A new milestone has been reached in man's knowledge of man vastly more important than the geographic explorations of the earth's poles and the still untrod peak of Everest.

The story of the excavations beneath the sands near Luxor and of the disinterment of treasure of an intrinsic value of $40,000,000 is retold in the "True Life Stories" of today's Post-Dispatch. Interest was brought to a climax last Friday when the inner chamber of the Pharoah's tomb was opened and the sparkling gold sarcophagus discovered.

The painful, patient plodding of the archeologists of recent years has revealed historical facts of inestimable value to our generation. But the work of these ingenious searchers for truth, so far as the general populace was concerned, has been obscure and unappreciated. It has taken an archeological sensation to impress the world with somewhat of the true value of the services of these scholars. Their efforts in the future should be more generally recognized and encouraged.

ANTIFORESTRY NONSENSE.

Sentiment in the Missouri Senate is favorable to the bill "to provide for the practice of forestry and to maintain and increase the yield of forests in the State of Missouri." But the bill's opponents in the House appear to be obsessed with the idea that large land owners among the lumber companies are using this measure in an endeavor to get the State to reforest their cut-over lands at State expense.

Any honest apprehension on this score should be allayed by the wording of section 6 of the House measure:

> The Board of Forestry may collect forest seeds and may establish, operate and maintain nurseries for the production of seedlings. Such seeds and seedlings may be used for planting on any lands owned or controlled by the State; or may be sold to owners of private lands under such restrictions as will insure their proper use, or may be used for planting along public roads under such terms as may, by the Board of Forestry, be deemed to be for the public benefit.

If any other effective means can be devised or suggested to protect and renew the forestry resources of the State for the benefit of the public it is clearly up to the critics of this measure to name them. Are the State's resources to be thrown away because of unfounded suspicions against any measures whatever to preserve them?

If the powers to be granted the Forestry Board as outlined in the section of the bill quoted above are designed to make the State the tool of the lumber companies, then the forestry boards of all the timber states of the Union and the Federal Government itself are tools of the lumber companies, and Gifford Pinchot, the father of forestry in America, and his enthusiastic chief, the late President Roosevelt, were doing the bidding of the lumber barons. It is time for Missouri to wake up, note what is being done in other parts of the United States and apply the rule of common sense to the advancement of its obvious and crying needs.

THE WEALTH OF ROENTGEN.

Ludwig Roentgen invented the X-ray. It was a momentous achievement, of which mankind has barely begun to realize the benefits. Already untold suffering has been alleviated and innumerable lives prolonged through its use.

A colossal fortune could have been reaped by the inventor had he chosen to patent his invention. He was made of finer stuff. "I feel that it would be undignified to patent a device intended to benefit all mankind," he said, simply.

A few days ago, in Munich, he died in what the world calls poverty. He had little to eat, and barely enough clothing to keep warm. But few men will die richer. And the world is richer for his having lived—not only by the fruit of his genius, but by the measure of his spirit and the towering moral example he gave it.

THE CANAL AND THE RIVER.

The Panama Canal is making money. Collections are steadily piling up in excess of operating expenses. Last month they were 50 per cent greater than for the same month of last year. The accumulation of funds without a place for their expenditure always results in official nervousness. The short-lived profits of the canal already have induced a pleasant discussion by the President's Cabinet of the feasibility of digging a new canal with the unexpended funds.

At the same time the Cabinet is amiably discussing a new waterways project for coastwise and foreign shipping a fight is being made in Congress on the appropriation desired to meet the needs of navigation on the Mississippi and its tributaries. Here is an undeveloped artery of commerce that would mean more prosperity to more people than a new isthmian canal. And if it is given as fair a chance it may yield as much or more revenue to the Government.

The river bloc in Congress should cite the Panama Canal as a venture in commerce promotion which paid returns and it should call attention to the promise of the Mississippi based on profits of the pioneer barge line. It should appeal for an equal show for inland waterways. Then it should make its consent to any new canal project contingent upon fair treatment for our domestic waterways.

THE FUTILITY OF REFORMS.

When we hear United States Senators decrying the present mania for calling upon Congress to effect by legislation a ready cure of all our ills we can take hope that the consequences of the ready responses of Congress in the past are slowly working a cure. Seeing the futility of their attempted reforms our Federal legislators are appealing for relief from further pressure. Thus, Senator King of Utah says:

> If evils exist among the people they can be cured only by the people themselves, either individually or in the smaller units of states and localities. We are witnessing in America today a demonstration of the fact that great reforms, particularly in the moral line, cannot be grafted on the social organism from one centralized point. There are great reforms needed—there is no question of that—but the only way they can be effectively established is to start with the people themselves, in their local units. Only then can you have behind them the public sentiment necessary to back them up.
> But today, when confronted with these problems, we organize great mass propagandas and rush for the passage of laws conferring on a centralized bureaucracy the powers and authority and sovereignty which are the precious possessions of the people themselves as individuals. The result has always been the same. When you centralize power you build up bureaucracies. Bureaucracies lead to despotism and despotism leads to revolution and ruin.

It is all very well to lecture the people on their ignorance and indifference, but the plain facts are that members of Congress are their political representatives, installed in Washington for the very purpose of preventing the tragic eventuality Senator King pictures. The people did not create the Federal bureaucracy now regimenting the citizens of this country; it is the creature of Congress, which has ignorantly or spinelessly yielded to the threats of highly organized fanatical groups, skillfully marshaled by high-salaried professionals.

The record-breaking speed of the French aviator, Sadi Lecointe, of 234.64 miles an hour, in a 300-horsepower Nieuport airplane, if it could be kept up for 13 hours, would carry one from New York to Brest, France, a distance of 2954 miles. The prediction that airships will cross the Atlantic daily, as a matter of course, within 10 years, is brought appreciably nearer fulfillment by Lecointe's achievement.

PANETELA.

NO, Luella,
Dr. Roentgen
Never patented
His ray;
Oddly, he was Not related
To the spirit
Of his day.
Though he saved
More lives than even Folk like Genghis
Kahn can kill,
To the end
The old professor
Never handed
Us his bill.

Yet he passed
So little noticed That except
His name was odd
Most of us
Had not recalled him:
Thus does human Nature nod.
Had he made Himself a fortune,
Making that
The price of worth,
Lo, he might Have seemed at going
Some Colossus
Of the earth!

So we have it,
Sweet Luella:
That which makes Itself a roll
Is to present
Fame more potent
Than a great,
Unselfish soul.
Since the roll
In our perspective
Is the end,
If any, gained,
Things like Doctor
Roentgen dying
Thus are easily
Explained.

In another time,
My dearie,
When philosophy
Is ripe,
People quite content
With service
Will expire
In larger type.
Thinking less
Of things appearing Greater in Our present trance,
We shall know
Why Dr. Roentgen
Scrupled to improve
His chance.

What he doubtless Thought worth having—
Though this seems
A little dumb
To our grasping Generation—
Was acclaim
In time to come.
Or perhaps
He felt that any Good to us
That might befall
Through him
Was sufficient,
Which would Be the finest
Thought of all.

One of our editorial colleagues says something: "A hearse is a poor vehicle in which to ride to church. Why wait for it?"—The Christian Register (Boston).

Sir: Is it too early to say something about the first fish to be placed in the new aquarium? If not, may I suggest that it be the Missouri sucker, Cycleptus Elongatus? We can appreciate the possibilities of our city only by realizing what a sucker it was to surrender its initial advantage as the western metropolis. The celebrated apotheosis of St. Louis by Mr. Neihaus, in which we see ourselves symbolically going forward, typifies us idealistically at best; but in Cycleptus Elongatus we may see ourselves as we have truly been. I can't imagine anything that would do us more good than to open the aquarium with a great public ceremony in which the Mayor, first apostrophizing the fish as the living likeness of our dunderheadedness, cast into the aquarium before the assembled and shame-faced multitude a simple sucker. If by the intercession of Burns we are ever to see ourselves as others see us, this is our chance. Can I be mistaken in believing that if we all joined in this indictment of ourselves and all watched the sucker swim around aimlessly for a while in perfect imitation of what we have been doing here for 75 years, we would make the bond issue but an incident of our awakening? You know I am not mistaken. We can arouse ourselves only by self-ridicule. We can't expect people like Sinclair Lewis to come here and give us that babbittizing which we must undergo before we can be moved to do something about it. I assume that when we get to the aquarium there will be the usual public hearing upon this subject. I want to attend that hearing. I know very well what will happen if no effort is made to make the aquarium mean something from the outset. You can guess that yourself: Some unthinking city official will simply dedicate the aquarium to eternal error by putting in a goldfish—the sign and symbol of the era that cooked our goose.

WHO SAYS THE PROPHETS ARE ALL DEAD?

(George F. Jordan in Sikeston, Mo., Herald.)

A few weeks ago I stood with Judge Xenophon Caverno on the levee at New Madrid and watched millions of horsepower float past in the broad sweep of the Mississippi River. And you might have dived 60 feet before hitting bottom. Remarking on this, the Judge started talking about the waste in marketing and rail rates, and ended with a prediction that within 10 to 15 years Missouri would have a seaport at New Madrid. That town is at the head of deep water navigation on the river. Hardly any time of the year finds water too shallow for coastwise vessels. "And some day, high rail rates and good business will bring those vessels to dock within half a mile of where we are standing," said the Judge. "Then watch rates tumble. We'll be loading our wheat and cotton on boats for New York. Transportation will be, from the northern sections, headed south instead of east. The boon in such a move will not be alone for Southeast Missouri, but for the entire Middle West. Then we'll just begin to 'come into our own.'"

Defending the suggestion that our new city bonds have a $1000 minimum, one of our experts said it had been the experience of brokers that poor people do not buy bonds of any denomination. It will therefore avail us nothing, in his opinion, to issue bonds in denominations as small as $100. Thus have we always with us the poor, who can buy automobiles in denominations up to second-hand Packards, but are not attracted by even the modern device of buying bonds upon such easy time payments that you never miss the money.

Senator Reed is always alert to make political capital for himself out of matters coming before the Senate. He has no thought that we will go to war with Great Britain or any other European nation to recover money advanced to our allies during the war, but he advocates such a course in the case of the British because that is the way to collect political supporters in Missouri. This is what Senator Reed is interested in collecting.

THE TREATY OF SANTA FE.

From the World's Work.

HOW many Americans who know all abo the treaty of Versailles, and can even reme ber some things about the treaty of St. Germain or of Sevres, or of Neuilly, have ever heard of the treaty of Santa Fe? Yet the treaty of Santa Fe was signed so recently as Nov. 24, 1922. * * * The parties to it were seven states and the Federal Government. The issue that has mad trouble between these seven states—Arizona, California, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming—is one of those questions of "nation interest" which are the most prolific causes of war and which, in the judgment of many eminent jurists, are not properly subject to arbitra tion. * * * The Colorado River flows throu them all. Its water is indispensable to existen in large areas of each state. If one commo wealth draws too freely, however, the others wi suffer; moreover, the failure to impound water in one may easily cause a death-dealing flood i another. Here are plenty of reasons for wran gling, even for war. * * * For the first time i American history more than two states hav come together to adjust a difference. At th treaty of Santa Fe the Governors of as many a seven put their signatures to a scrap of pape that settles the future use and development the Colorado River. Mr. Hoover, as Secretary o Commerce, signed for the Federal Government It was really a great event in our history— how great, few Americans understood, for the have not the practical knowledge, which Euro peans have, of what tragedies such difference can lead to. When Europe can determine so scheme of federation resembling that which ex ists between the 48 American commonwealth most of Europe's problems will disappear.

RADIO FOR POLAR LANDS.

THE Danish Government, having investi ed the situation with great thoroughness, i preparing to establish no less than four wirele stations in Greenland. Iceland, getting wind o this enterprise, has sent an official request one of the stations be placed on the east c near Angmagsalik, declaring that a wireless tion there will be of the greatest importance transmitting weather information to Iceland What, someone may ask, does the weather to Iceland? The very name, carries the conno tion that any interest there in climate can b ouly philosophic or, the facetious may sugges the Icelanders wish to thaw out their w evenings with reports from the Bermudas. A weeks ago Vilhjalmur Stefansson made the tling remark that the Polar regions could should be inhabited, the resources extracted aircraft communication established on a scale; he rebuked the public for its gross ception of the Arctic and Antarctic. The true of Iceland, which, despite the frigidity of name, enjoys a typically insular climate, eq and humid, with cool summers and warm ters. The rainy days are numerous the around, it is true, but the lowest average temperature is 27 degrees, and the warmest mer average only 50.

It is interesting to reflect that in weather reports by radio, Iceland may be ing a much bigger affair than that. With munication, misconception disappears and world may find another piece of the world knowing, over which a veil of ignorance has drawn for many years. The radio is a gr liser.

LARKIN FREED.

(From the Seattle Union Record, Union Labor.)

The release of "Jim" Larkin from a New York penitentiary marks another step along the road to political tolerance.

Larkin was the victim of war hysteria, carefully cultivated by the British Secret Service Department. Local details were attended to by lickspittle tools of our own oligarchy, who did not like the industrial activities of Larkin, and he was put away in prison on a charge of having violated the criminal syndicalism law of New York.

The pardoning of Larkin by Gov. Smith is a tardy recognition of the injustice of imprisoning Larkin. It serves to call attention to the fact that there are still several score of men in this country's penitentiaries, convicted under conditions similar to those that obtained at Larkin's trial, who should today be free men.

They would be outside the prison walls if it were not for the cowardice of those who hold the pardoning power.

Every Governor and the President himself knows that no crime was ever proved against these men. They are in jail because they had the temerity to defend their constitutional rights at a time when the rest of the people were "goose-stepping" to the tunes played by our international bankers.

IF THE FARMER STRUCK.

(From the Reading Labor Advocate, Socialist.)

A feature writer in the Philadelphia Public Ledger wants to know what would happen if the farmer would go on strike. And then he answers his own question by picturing some of the ruin which would come upon the nation if that were to happen. "The farmer works from sun up to sun down," he declared; therefore the city workers ought to be ashamed to go on strike.

What would happen if the farmer would go on strike? Well, for one thing, the ladies and gentlemen who enjoy princely incomes from the fruits of the labor of both the farmer and the city worker might have to neglect their country homes, their golf clubs, their racing stables, their monkey dinners and their private yachts, and learn how to handle a spade and push a plow. That's one of the things that might happen. In which case, some method might be devised for making the burden of the farmer lighter.

Merely to point to the fact that the farmer is overworked, however, will not satisfy the city worker. The latter will continue to go on strike whenever he is goaded to it by the exploitation of the capitalist class. What is more to the point, is how can the work of the farmer, as well as the city worker, be lightened? * * * The Ledger did not go so far as to suggest a plan which would end strikes. It stopped short of that in order to avoid reference to compulsory labor. The only other remedy would require the machinery of production and distribution, used for exploitation, to be owned by society and operated for the welfare of the people who do society's useful work. But that would be Socialism and very distasteful to the class which controls the Ledger.

INDICTMENT OF WAR GRAFTERS

(From The Worker, Communist Organ.)

Intelligent workers will not get excited about a batch of indictments returned against war grafters. Attorney-General Daugherty must celebrate a little, dolled up as he is in his Christmas gift of a coat of whitewash presented by a congressional committee. So he has a Washington, D. C., grand jury return charges against Benedict Crowell, Assistant Secretary of War under Newton D. Baker, and six other members of the Council of National Defense of the War Department.

These "dollar-a-year" pay-triots are charged with fraud in connection with the building of cantonments nearly six years ago. More than four years after the end of the war, a grand jury feeds this dud of an indictment to a gullible American people, and Daugherty, Burns and Harding proclaim their Government at Washington a righteous, upright and fearless institution.

It may be safely stated that these "100 per cent jingoes" will never come to trial. If Palmer was too busy during the war imprisoning anti-war spokesmen to attack the war grafters, of which fraternity he is alleged to be a member, Daugherty is now too much occupied hunting down and prosecuting communists and striking labor unionists to give attention to his compatriots.

Let labor realize that this capitalist system produces grafters of all kinds during times of peace as well as war in such hordes that it would be impossible to house but a small percentage of them in the jails and prisons of the nation. Instead of getting excited about grafters, let labor wipe out this social system that makes grafters. That will mean something.

(From Milwaukee Leader Socialist.)

Leaders of farm organizations seem to be pretty well agreed that the farmers do not need credits as much as they need the elimination of the profit takers who stand between them and the consumers of their products. In the Norris-Sinclair bill they think they see the desired eliminator.

It is well known that the farmer gets less than half of every dollar the consumer pays for farm products. Some say he gets 39 cents of each dollar. Some say he gets 33 cents. Others say he gets less than that. Nobody knows the exact figure —at leat we don't know it—but it is certain that the rake-off of the middlemen and speculators and railroads is something fierce. Its elimination would give the farmer higher prices and the consumer lower prices.

We shall watch this elimination business with great interest—and hope it won't have the sad fate of the one in that old chestnut you've read so many times about the two men in a restaurant. One gave his order, including poached eggs. The other said, "Give me the same order, but eliminate the eggs." After a bit the waiter came back with a troubled look and asked, "Mister, would you just as soon have your eggs poached? The handle got busted off our 'liminator." It will be a miracle if this middleman eliminator gets through the present stand-pat Congress without having the handle busted off.

ENFORCE THE LAW, MR. PRESIDENT.

(From Labor, Organ of the Railway Unions.)

The following is taken from President Harding's latest message to Congress:

"I wish I could bring to you the precise recommendation for the prevention of strikes which threaten the welfare of the people and menace the public safety."

President Harding can end the shopmen's strike whenever he and his Attorney-General, Mr. Daugherty, will observe their oath of office and enforce the laws enacted by Congress. If the President were to announce tomorrow that every railroad must comply with the plain provisions of the safety appliance and locomotive inspection laws, the executives of the "die-hard" roads, who are now wasting millions on the impossible task of destroying railroad labor organizations, would sign up with their men and peace would prevail throughout the transportation industry within two weeks.

President Harding could have settled the shopmen's strike last August if he had had the courage to deal vigorously with the Atterburys and the Lorees who were willing to wreck American industry in order to "show labor its place."

The workers at that time demonstrated they were willing to meet the President more than half-way, but he showed the white feather when it came to handling the railroad presidents.

Right there he lost control of the situation, and matters have drifted from bad to worse ever since.

It is not too late, however, for the President to do something effective. He should end his complaining and enforce the law.

So far as anti-strike legislation is concerned, if the President will take another look at the returns from the recent elections he will find that the people disposed of that un-American proposal on Nov. 7. The subject is too dead to warrant discussion.

AMERICANIZING COAL.

(From the Oklahoma Leader, Farmer-Labor.)

John Brophy, president of District No. 2 of the United Mine Workers of America, writing in the Labor Age, states his solution of the coal problem. He wants public ownership and democratic management of the mines. The plan includes the following points:

1. A Secretary of Mines in the President's Cabinet.

2. A Federal Commission of Mines part of whose membership is to be appointed directly by large technical and industrial bodies. This commission is to represent the consumers.

3. This commission is to decide upon matters of policy, and is not to have any part in the administration of the mines.

4. For purposes of administration there are to be national, regional and local administrative councils, including representatives of technicians, miners and the public.

5. A wage scale commission, made up jointly of the directors of the industry and miners. Collective bargaining is to be preserved and perfected. The right to strike is to be affirmed and maintained.

Brophy calls this the Miners' American Plan. It is indeed truly American—whereas the union-busting "American Plan" of certain empolyers is a fraud. No plan is truly American which does not contemplate giving everybody a fair deal. This one does that.

WHY THERE IS UNREST.

(From the Milwaukee Leader, Socialist.)

Unrest is due to unjust social conditions.

The wage earners work for less than a decent living wage.

The farmers have operated their farms at an actual loss a good deal of the time, and, even when making a little money, they have constantly been gouged by the big business bandits who lie in wait for them.

These conditions could be remedied by evolutionary processes which would not create any jar. As long as such common sense remedies are not applied, there is always danger of serious trouble. The self-appointed rulers and guides ought to be wise enough in their day and generation to see these causes and consent to the application of the remedies. It stands them in hand to do so, for, if they should wait until serious trouble arrives, they will be the chief losers.

Yet they take exactly the opposite tack. They use the methods of suppression and reaction, instead of progress.

The Socialists take the sensible course. Plutocrats think the Socialists are revolutionists. In fact, the evolutionary social program of the Socialist party will, if carried out, prevent revolution—whereas the course the plutocrats are taking encourages revolution.

FARM SABOTAGE.

(From Industrial Solidarity, I. W. W. Organ.)

The farmers of the country intend to reduce farm production in order to enhance prices. President Harding, in a letter to Secretary Wallace, warns against the dangers of famine involved in such a course.

This reduction is plainly sabotage. Sabotage means a reduction of efficiency according to the pay received. On the farm it is expressed in a restriction of acreage.

The leading exponent of farm sabotage is Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. Week in and week out, he has advocated it in his paper. Notwithstanding this, the President neither condemns nor removes him.

On the other hand, President Harding refuses to release I. W. W. war prisoners. His Department of Justice alleges it is because they advocated sabotage!

Why this discrimination? Why can a member of the Cabinet advocate sabotage and be honored, while workmen like the I. W. W. are kept in jail because it is alleged they advocate it?

Can it be because Wallace embodies the capitalist principle of profit, even at a sacrifice of humanity; while the I. W. W.'s oppose that principle in favor of the latter?

COMPANY UNIONS ANTI-UNION.

(From the Labor Review.)

A scheme very much in favor just now with the Eastern railway managers is the company union, "free from the Gompers domination."

To the casual reader the word union in this connection sounds good, as indicating the unprejudiced fairness of the managers regarding organized labor. * * *

However, the practical fact remains that the companies are, by every subterfuge they can invent, fighting union labor. The company union is not a real union; it is only an organization formed under the auspices of the company to fight the American Federation of Labor. Such a handpicked and thoroughly domesticated union could not defend the interests of its members even if it tried; and its sponsors and guardians will see to it that it never secures the independence to try.

CHRISTIAN SOCIAL CONFERENCE

A three days' conference under the auspices of the Fellowship for a Christian Social Order, beginning March 5, will be held at the Buckingham Hotel, King's highway and West Pine boulevard. Industrial and international situations will be discussed and it is hoped the conference may serve as a clearing house of ideas for those who attend.

The first meeting will be held Monday, March 5, at 2 p. m. This will be followed by an evening conference; there will be two sessions the following day with a banquet in the evening, and the conference will close with two meetings the next day.

PETITIONS FOR PAROLE OF RAYMOND CUMMINS

Prisoner Sentenced for Having Been Accomplice of Burglar When on Police Force Here.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 17.—Petitions are in circulation among members of the Legislature for release from the State penitentiary of Raymond H. Cummins, serving a 10-year sentence from St. Louis from July 7, 1919, for having been an accomplice to a burglar while a member of the St. Louis Police Department.

Cummins, who is said to have had a good record in the penitentiary, has been there about three and one-half years. Under the three-fourths rule and merit system he would be released probably in 1927.

It will be recalled that Cummins was convicted of having aided in and shared the loot from 150 burglaries while in the Police Department. His sister has asserted to the penitentiary authorities that Cummins was convicted upon the testimony of George Franke, a convict who was serving his fifth term and who obtained freedom for his false testimony against Cummins who she declared was innocent. Cummins is married and has several children.

When an effort was made during the regime of Gov. Gardner to obtain Cummins' parole, three members of the St. Louis Police Board, C. W. Mansur, William B. Giraldin and Thomas J. Sheehan, made a vigorous protest, declaring that Cummins was one of the most dangerous criminals in the prison and that he should not be released.

Former Circuit Attorney Lawrence McDaniel, who handled the Cummins case, and who at first would make no recommendation, more recently has recommended a parole for Cummins, and one of his former employers, a St. Louis corporation, has agreed to give him a position in the event of his release.

The State Penal Commissioners never have given Cummins a parole hearing. Gov Hyde has steadfastly declared that he will release no convict without recommendation of a majority of their number.

Convenient Artistic Space Saving
Light Running
Quiet

¶ Do not confuse this model with the Cabinet Sewing Machines of today. In other Machines the word "cabinet" Sewing Machines means a closed case. The Free Cabinet illustration shows that when the Machine is opened, one side swings fully back, so that the Machine when in use is even more open than a drop-head, and is airy, comfortable and convenient in every way.

¶ Stitches a straight seam by reason of perfect feeding conditions. No springs in feed.

¶ Take-up and needle at the highest point simultaneously, thus avoiding unthreading of needle and thread wastage.

¶ Revolving sleeve on spool pin, which averts thread breakage.

¶ Self-setting needle which cannot be incorrectly placed.

¶ Always remains belted.

The FREE Sewing Machine attachments may be put on and off with one hand.

The FREE Sewing Machine head comes up belted—ready to sew.

The FREE Sewing Machine threads automatically, except for threading the needle.

The FREE Sewing Machine stitches straight without guiding the cloth.

The FREE Sewing Machine has the strongest automatic lift.

The FREE Sewing Machine has a rotary spool spin. It does not break your thread.

The FREE Sewing Machine has a short take-up. It does not waste your thread.

If you have a Free or any other style machine, and want instructions as to how to use any attachments, we will assist you without cost or obligation on your part. We repair all makes of Sewing Machines at nominal charges.

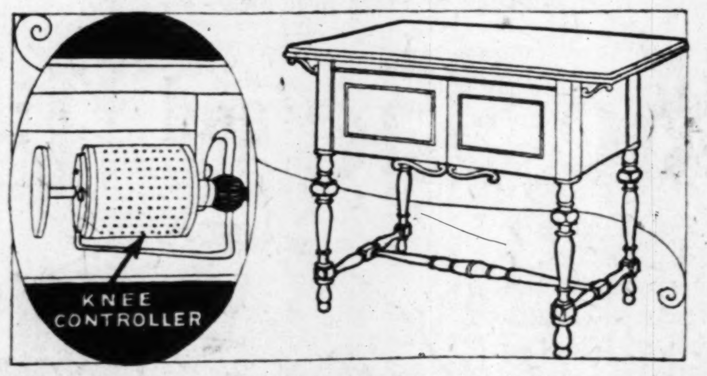
The Free Machine Attachments!

¶ The delicacy and daintiness of the work which can be produced in the finest fabrics is quite beyond comparison, and almost beyond belief until seen.

Westinghouse Motor Built Into Machine

This feature was originated by the Free Company.

The New Console Free-Westinghouse



"A Thing of Beauty Is a Joy Forever," John Keats.

The Supreme Achievement of the Master Maker!

¶ This new Console would be welcomed in any home as a work of furniture art! All good features of all other Sewing Machines are combined in this wonderful long-bobbin rotary.

¶ It makes a perfect stitch, sews faster, lasts longer, feeds straight, threads easier, and is more convenient than any other.

¶ Think of a Sewing Machine which requires only that you attach the cord to any electric light socket and press with the knee against the controller and thus obtain any desired speed. No fatigue, no headache, no backache, no tired feelings whatever.

¶ How many garments you can make in a short time! How beautiful they will be when they are finished, and how little they will cost. This Machine runs three full hours for one cent. Fully guaranteed to be the best that money and skill can produce.

Writing Desk

Suitable Furniture for living-room or reception-room!

Free-Westinghouse Electric

¶ It is smoothly run by the Free-Westinghouse motor which is cleverly built into the machine itself and is a part of the machine (not an attachment).

wonderful strong reds, greens and yellows, colors that are the heart's delight, and then comes a cultured and squeamish governess and says, 'No, dearie, that red is too red—and whoever has seen grass as green as that?' The point is that the child is artistically right and the sophisticated elder person, who dares not see with her own eyes, does not see at all.

The Destructive Beauty.

"Another thing: America has evolved a type of human beauty as perfect, as marvelous as the Greek ideal or the ideal of Italian rennaisance. It is destined to be, perhaps, the beauty ideal of the twentieth century. The American woman has heard so many times that she is the most beautiful in all the world that she must have grown tired of it—nevertheless it is true. And the thing that delights the artist most is that this beauty is not only beautiful but also American—something new and distinctive, something one can pick out as unerringly as one can pick out a Chinese from a European crowd. It is a symphony of young, strong line—of color, grave, strength, effervescent vitality.

"In these things are the sources of an American pictorial art, as great as any the world has seen—in the beauty of the American woman, the scintillating, incandescent colors of the American atmosphere, the hardly tapped possibilities of the marvelous American landscape. By the way—do Americans realize that their cities are beautiful just in as much as they are American? The reproductions of flat out-of-place pseudo-Greek and pseudo-Gothic one could meet in any continental city—the wooden shacks and brick abominations of factory towns might disgrace any industrial center in Europe—but a sight like Riverside drive or Park avenue or Fifth avenue is unique.

"My advice to American artists, if I may volunteer to give it, is: Don't study so intensely what we of the Old World are doing, don't go abroad so much; stay at home, strike roots in the soil, immerse yourselves in the color, light, youth of your wonderful country; study indigenous American art, indigenous American beauty, be yourselves, and you will not fail to produce a great American art."

"THE GOLDEN APPLE" TO BE GIVEN BY JUNIOR PLAYERS

Lady Gregory's fairy tale, "The Golden Apple," will be given by the Junior Players Friday evening, and repeated at matinees Saturday and March 3, at the Little Theater of the Artists' Guild.

The play is in three acts of 10 scenes, including the Garden of the Wicked Witch, the Wood of Wonders and the Giant's Castle. The King of Ireland is ill and can be cured only with a golden apple, which is hidden in the witch's garden. The King's son goes in quest of it, and incidentally rescues the daughter of the King of Spain, imprisoned by the witch. The Prince and Princess will be played by Virgil Coudy and Anita Paul.

In the cast will be Jack Maurer, Bill Rebenberg, David Crossen, Virginia Weissels, Peggy Stein, Victor Worheide, Leon Applewhite, Dorothy Walter, James Nelson, Peter Schuck, Frances Curley, Lawrence Reese, Justine Bischoff and Dorothy Gutman. Miss Alice Martin is director, and Dawson Dawson-Watson has designed sets, costumes and properties.

Other Girls Had Dozens of Fellows—I Was a Wall Flower

My Cheeks Were Pale and Sallow, My Neck Scrawny, My Lips Colorless; Today I Am as Popular as Any of the Other Girls Because I Have Learned the Secret of Radiant Health and Beauty and Have a Well-Rounded Face and Figure.

Try making this slight change in YOUR MEALS for two weeks and watch for the astonishing results it so often gives.

For years I was so unattractive that I almost cried when I looked at myself in the mirror. Oh, how I envied other girls whose dance cards were always filled and who were always popular and sought after by boys, who would not look at me twice. Just two weeks ago I read an article in the paper which told of a slight change in the daily diet which often changed women who had been thin, pale and unattractive, in some cases even for years, so that they got back that magnetic charm of radiant health. This article stated that the most important element in building a strong, beautiful body full of grace and magnetism with sparkling eyes and rosy cheeks was a peculiar form of iron found in the husks of grain and [illegible] and skins of certain fruits and vegetables. But modern methods of cooking throw these important things away so that probably 19 people out of 20 lack 100% in their blood. I tried mixing a little of iron this peculiar form of iron with my meals for two weeks. I feel and look years younger, with natural color in my lips and cheeks.

The above is a typical hypothetical case. It would seem that every woman whose attractiveness is impaired by lack of that magnetic charm that comes only with radiant health, would try adding a little of this newer form of iron to her daily food. It is comparatively inexpensive and may be obtained from your druggist under the name of Nuxated Iron, which should be mixed with your food as directed on each package. Amazing results are often secured in only two weeks' time. For sale by all druggists including Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Enderle Drug Co., Keiffer Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., The Famous-Barr Co., and the Weipert Drug Co.

LLOYD GEORGE MAKES STRONG PLEA FOR PAYMENT

France is too busy collecting accounts due to her to attend to debts she owes. I believe in my heart that there is a France of which he is not the spokesman—a great France which will not treat shabbily a faithful friend who stood by her in the hour of despair and who is now staggering under unparalleled burdens incurred in the discharge of obligations of friendship.

All this makes it more necessary that the situation should be cleared up without undue delay. Having just completed negotiations for liquidating our own war indebtedness to America we are in a position to insist on a settlement with those on whose behalf we incurred that indebtedness. If nothing is done the conditions will harden against us. We shall be assumed to have accepted the Poincare repudiation. I do not know what conditions the British Government has made with the United States Government as to the marketability of the securities to be created in funding our debt. If they are to be placed on the market the chance of any future deal is destroyed. Ere that be done we must know where we are in reference to our own claims. I trust the British Government will act promptly. Delay was justifiable so long as we were in the same position in reference to what we owed as what we claimed. The Baldwin settlement has altered that. If we do not insist on an arrangement now the British taxpayer will have the fate of that poor beast between two burdens—his own and that of the allies.

22 CHARITIES IN COMMUNITY FUND TO SEEK $567,837

Budgets of Six Agencies Approved Friday Amount to $34,676 Proposed for Health Work.

Twenty-two of the 40 charities and philanthropies that will federate their appeals for funds for 1923 in the Community Fund's campaign Feb. 23 to March 5, have had their budgets approved by the Budget Committee of the fund, six having been completed yesterday. These 22 agencies will seek total contributions of $567,837 through the Community Fund to cover a part of their operating expenses for the coming year.

Budgets of the six agencies approved yesterday and the amount each will ask through the Community Fund are:, Central Institute for the Deaf, $3382; Junior League of St. Louis $6379; Missouri Association for Occupational Therapy, $9496; Missouri Social Hygiene Association, $5000; St. Louis Pure Milk Commission, $9929; and St. Louis Committee of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, $490.

This makes a total of $34,676 which will be asked for from the public for support of these six agencies which work to prevent sickness and promote health in St. Louis and the county. The total operating expenses of the six agencies for 1923, as shown by their budgets, will be $112,697. Of this amount the agencies estimate they will receive $52,871 in payments for services rendered and $25,150 in income from endowment, rental of property and similar sources.

Aside from these agencies, the Budget Committee, which has been in almost continuous session for the last three days, has certified the budgets of the following organizations to the Community Fund, the amounts in each instance being that which the public will be asked to pay in the forthcoming campaign:

Barnes Hospital, $51,582; St. Louis Children's Hospital, $84,990; St. Louis Hospital Social Service, $39,831; St. Louis Maternity Hospital, $10,050; Peoples Hospital, $7200; South Side Public Health Nursing and Teaching Center, $4778; Visiting Nurse Association, $34,116; St. Louis Provident Association, $141,622; the Salvation Army, $57,790; St. Louis County Welfare Association, $15,625; Children's Aid Society, $35,825; Christian Orphans' Home, $7939; Methodist Orphans' Home, $24,606; Colored Orphans' Home, $15,000; Mission Free School, $1556, and Protestant Orphans' Home, $11,403.

More Than Half Approved.

With more than half the total budgets approved, L. Wade Childress said after yesterday's session of the Budget Committee of which he is chairman, that it is now a certainty not more than $1,250,000 will be asked for 1923. The total operating expenses of these agencies, Childress pointed out, will be far in excess of this amount, but earnings, incomes from endowments and other sources will take care of a part of it, so that the public will bear only that share which cannot otherwise be provided.

The agencies whose budgets were approved yesterday are grouped together because, while concerned with the care of the sick, injured and physically handicapped and in preventing sickness and ill-health, they are educational in nature and do not give actual medical or nursing care as such.

A representative agency of this group is the Central Institute for the Deaf, 818 South King's highway, of which Dr. M. A. Goldstein is president and Miss Julia Connery the principal. Broadly, its purpose is to educate deaf children to speak and "hear" through lip-reading and to house such children as cannot attend day school; to train teachers for educating the deaf and to stimulate the public in all matters pertaining to measures in the interests of the deaf.

Last year the institute, in its oral department, instructed 80 pupils; 74 in its department for defects of speech; 50 in the adult lip-reading department; 22 in the normal training class and 41 in the summer normal school.

Almost Self-Supporting.

In a large measure, the Central Institute for the Deaf is self-supporting. It is asking the public for contributions to defray the expenses of educating only those children who cannot afford to pay for this service. Its total operating expenses are estimated for the coming year at $58,261. Of this amount, the institute is asking the public through the community fund to pay only $3382.

The work of the Missouri Association for Occupational Therapy and the Junior League of St. Louis is closely related. The former has its headquarters in the Washington University Dispensary, 507 South Euclid avenue. Through its St. Louis School of Occupational Therapy, it trains instructors in occupation therapy methods.

Besides, it supervises and finances the occupational therapy ward at Barnes Hospital, in city institutions and in several private hospitals. Its president is Dr. M. B. Clopton and its director, Miss Geraldine Lermit. A total budget for it has been approved to the amount of $16,590, of which the Community Fund will supply all but $7094.

In addition to conducting its workshop at Barnes Hospital, which is operated on the occupational therapy plan, the Junior League of St. Louis has a large corps of volunteer workers which serve hot lunches daily at Neighborhood Association, 817 North Nineteenth street; at the Franklin School and which also conduct a blind women's club and sewing classes for settlement children.

The annual Junior League Follies given at a downtown theater, have been the chief means of financing the work of the league in past years. This has been abandoned, however, in favor of participation in the Community Fund, which has approved a budget of $6379 in gifts for the league in 1923. Sales of products

Says Kidney and Bladder Trouble Reduced Her To a Mere Shadow

Dear Sirs: I had suffered for four years with kidney and bladder disorders in the worst form. For four years I had suffered everything but death, and I lost weight from 190 pounds to 117 pounds and was so weak that I could not walk. I picked up your little book, read about your Balmwort Tablets, procured them of the druggist, and when I had taken half of the box I was able to again do my own work. I had gotten so bad that I was passing blood and black clots, but, thanks to your wonderful medicine, Balmwort, I am almost a well woman now. I can and do recommend it to all who are suffering from kidney and bladder troubles, like mine.

Thanking you again, I remain,
Yours truly,

Dear Sirs: I am employed as a locomotive hostler and while working I was taken with pains in the back. Someone advised me on taking Balmwort Tablets, so I purchased a box and was relieved shortly. from its workshop this year are expected to amount to $2750. Its total operating expenses are estimated at $15,872.

The St. Louis Pure Milk Commission, which is recognized as a vital factor in bringing the infant mortality rate in St. Louis to among the lowest in the country, undertakes to provide modified milk for babies through physicians' prescriptions and to help in every way to insure clean milk in the interest of baby welfare. Its plant and office are located at 1726 North Thirteenth street. The Community Fund has approved its total expense budget of $16,484, of which the public will be asked to bear $9929.

Last year the commission prepared and delivered 145,587 bottles of modified milk, 2428 quarts of cultured milk; supplied 135 babies and 123 families with milk free; operated five stations for "cash and carry" milk and instituted last year the medical inspection of employes on farms where milk coming into St. Louis was produced.

The last two agencies in the group approved yesterday are engaged in educational work. The St. Louis Committee of the American Society for the Control of Cancer is organized to "disseminate knowledge concerning the symptoms, diagnosis, treatment and prevention of cancer and to investigate conditions under which cancer is found."

Last year it conducted a campaign of education through National Cancer week, Nov. 12 to 18, and it maintains a service of information throughout the year. It asks only $490 from the public to carry on this work during 1923.

The Missouri Social Hygiene Association is strictly an educational agency. Its purpose is to promote such educational measures as will develop a healthy community and to encourage and stimulate all measures tending toward the prevention and diminishing of venereal disease. In 1922 this organization provided many speakers on social hygiene topics, distributed much literature on the subject, promoted the study of social hygiene and worked with all agencies interested in the prevention of venereal disease.

Says "Every Box Is Worth Its Weight in Gold"—Suffered Untold Misery for Twenty Years.

"Today I am Well and Happy."

Gentlemen: Will say that for twenty years I suffered untold misery. I spent hundreds of dollars trying to find relief. Often doctors gave me morphine to lessen the pain. I could not work, was very thin and was given up as a hopeless case.

I had headaches all the time, was dizzy, my eyes were swollen; had no courage to do anything, was very despondent and disagreeable.

But one blessed day a friend sent me one of Dr. Lewis Baker's great little books, "Health and Beauty," which contains many wonderful prescriptions and advice. I found Balmwort Tablets prescribed for kidney trouble and I will say they are the best medicine of any kind sold in the world today. Every box is worth its weight in gold. I take great pleasure in recommending them to all that are suffering with kidneys or bladder. I shall not be without them the rest of my life. Because today I am well and happy and weigh 195 pounds. Always at your service.

Wilmerding Lady Says Irritation and Pain "Sets the Nerves Wild" First Dose of Balmwort Brought Great Help

Dear Sirs: I surely want to say the Balmwort Tablets are fine. I had irritation of the bladder, my back hurt, and a burning feeling in the bladder that sets the nerves wild. The first dose helped me. My sister also took them. She had inflammation of the bladder with pus. She took them after she had been using a doctor's medicine in vain, and got relief at once. We always intend to keep a box handy. My sister and I each have one of your "Health and Beauty" books and would like for you to send one to the address on the coupon enclosed.

Thank you.

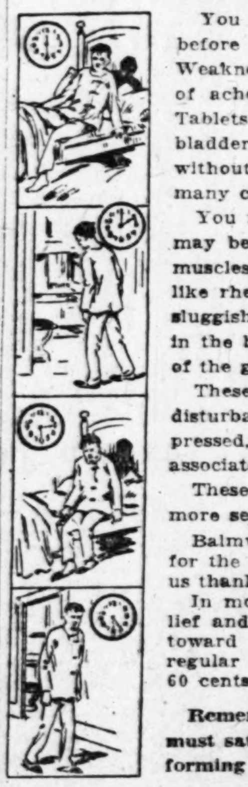
You Can Be Free— You Can Enjoy Life!



You need not lose sleep and get old and haggard long before your time! Use Balmwort Tablets and prove it. Weakness of the kidneys' functions brings on a long train of aches, pains, distress and suffering — and Balmwort Tablets have been so successful in helping kidney and bladder ailments that no one who suffers can afford to do without their quick, balmy, grateful benefits, which in many cases seems to be permanent freedom.

You may or may not have backache. Your symptoms may be a dragging, weary stiffness and soreness of the muscles and joints, or sudden, shooting, stabbing pains like rheumatism, often with blinding headache, dizziness, sluggishness, feverishness and chilly sensations. Distress in the bladder region means that you need the assistance of the gentle-acting, balmy Balmwort Tablets.

These are the usual symptoms of kidney and bladder disturbances, which cause you to be unduly tired, depressed, nervous, irritable and cross to your family and associates.

These conditions, if not attended to, often lead to much more serious ones.

Balmwort Tablets have been helping folks everywhere for the past 15 years. Thousands rely on them and send us thankful letters of praise and recommendation.

In most cases the first few doses bring astonishing relief and the patient is soon delighted with the influence toward recovery. Go now to your druggist and get the regular size Balmwort Tablets, $1.25, or the Trial size, 60 cents.

Remember! Balmwort is inexpensive, and the results must satisfy you or money back. They contain no habit-forming drugs or opiates. Now is the time.

REWARD: The Blackburn Products Company, Dayton, Ohio, hereby offer a Reward of $1000 if every letter published is not the genuine unsolicited expression of the users of their medicine, given without pay of any kind.

"Had Such Pains Could Hardly Walk" Better Appetite—Work Is Pleasure

Dear Sirs: I am proud to say I have been a user of Balmwort Tablets. Am taking my third box. Am feeling fine and sleep good. I was troubled with my kidneys so bad I could hardly walk; had such pains—also rheumatic pains for some time. I took medicines, but Balmwort Tablets are the only thing that gave me relief. I hope that sufferers like me will give them a trial.

"My Back Ached Continually"

Dear Sirs: I suffered with a pressure in lower part of body, my back ached continually, had frequent calls followed by burning sensation that almost made life unbearable. I had feverishness and felt as though I would never get relief. I began Balmwort Tablets and after taking a few I felt a change, felt so much better and bought the second box. That was in July and I have not suffered since. I am 43 and had not been able to do my housework. Now I can work with ease. I hope this letter may reach others, so they can know how good these tablets are.

One Thousand Cases of Appendicitis

All Operated in One Single Hospital

Although it is generally known that appendicitis is a very common disease it will be news to many that in one hospital over one thousand operations for this disease were performed in a single year. This does not include cases in the same hospital where the appendix was removed during other operations.

A TREACHEROUS DISEASE.

Appendicitis attacks at any moment even persons seemingly in good health. Usually, however, it is preceded by so-called stomach trouble, constipation or similar disturbances. Often when there is a warning feeling of uneasiness in the abdomen, appendicitis can be guarded against in exactly the same manner in which one guards against the spread of throat infection, because that is just what appendicitis is—an infection in the intestines spreading to the appendix. When one has sore throat, one can often prevent further trouble and the development of influenza or grippe, by using an antiseptic wash or gargle to fight the germs and a laxative to carry off the poisons from the body. Just exactly the same procedure is necessary to fight the intestinal germs and guard against appendicitis. But instead of an antiseptic wash for the throat, an INTESTINAL antiseptic is necessary.

INTESTINAL ANTISEPTIC.

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleanser. This preparation known as Adlerika, acts as follows:

It tends to eliminate or destroy harmful germs and colon bacilli in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here.

It is the most complete system cleanser ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and removing foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gases, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter Adlerika draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much more foul matter it brings out which was poisoning you. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headache, one spoonful Adlerika ALWAYS brings relief. A longer treatment, however, is necessary in cases of obstinate constipation and long standing stomach trouble, preferably under direction of your physician.

REPORTS FROM PHYSICIANS.

"I congratulate you on the good effect I had from Adlerika since I prescribed it." (Signed) Dr. L. Langlois.

"I have found nothing in my 50 years' practice to excel Adlerika." (Signed) Dr. James Weaver.

"I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose." (Signed) Dr. F. M. Prettyman.

"After taking Adlerika feel better than for 20 years. Haven't language to express the AWFUL IMPURITIES eliminated from my system." (Signed) J. E. Puckett.

Adlerika is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary bowel and stomach medicines, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action. It is sold by leading druggists everywhere.

Sold in St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., 7th and Washington; Enderle Drug Co. and other leading druggists.

Proper Attitude Toward Our Present Extraordinary Gold Reserves One of Questions of Week—Strength in Sterling.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The Evening Post in its copyrigthed weekly financial review says:

"As more and more of the 1922 earnings reports of the country's large enterprises appear, evidence is becoming overwhelming as to the great improvement in business during the past year. The improvement is furthermore general, embracing industrial companies, railroads and public utilities. Taking at random the returns of 27 of our leading industrial companies a compilation shows that the aggregate net income during 1922 amounted to some $182,000,000 as compared with $74,000,000 in 1921. Leaving out of the computation the steel companies which suffered unusually severely from the strikes of the past year, the showing is even more striking. The remaining 23 industrial companies earned $142,000,000 as compared with $88,000,000 in the previous year. Again leaving out the steel companies, a comparison of the past year with 1920 shows an actual gain in profits, despite the intervening fall in the general price level. In the case of the railroads and the public utilities the gain has been progressive since 1920.

"Results such as these, when taken with the many fresh evidences of increasing industrial activity and profit-taking while actively rising, impress the public mind. They go far towards explaining the active stock market which has been a feature of te past two weeks.

Gold Reserve Problem.

"One of the interesting points that have come to the front during the last week or so is the question of the proper attitude towards our present extraordinary gold reserves. In his annual report the Controller of the Currency did not hesitate to take the stand that a large part of this gold is domiciled here only temporarily, that its presence is likely to injure both ourselves and the rest of the world, and that we should consider the possibility ultimately of restoring a part to Europe. The argument certainly carries much weight. Whether or not we can merely move the gold back to Europe arbitrarily may be questioned, but it is only the part of wisdom to assume that a substantial proportion eventually will move in that direction. In a sense we are holding this gold in trust, and should avoid exploiting it both for our own good and that of our fellow nations. An inflation built on existing stocks of the yellow metal would be most unfortunate for business here and would be likely to provoke an especially severe reaction. For this reason there is much to be said for the suggestion that we learn to think of a reserve ratio of 65 to 70 per cent as the normal minimum for the Federal Reserve System instead of the previous 40 per cent.

"Strength in sterling, weakness in France and a curious rally in the German mark have been the features of the foreign exchange market. Sterling's firmness apparently is merely a continuation of the tendency of the past year reinforced by the psychological effects of the debt settlement negotiation. Weakness in the franc obviously is a measure of the difficulties which the French are experiencing in trying to reconstruct the economic life of the Ruhr district. The rise in the mark has been more difficult to explain. Although accurate information is lacking, it would appear that Germany has been utilizing to support the market in foreign markets, part of the balance which she accumulated to make reparation payments. The result, in any case has been to facilitate importations by Germany and to increase the cost of the French occupation of the Ruhr, since the French are under the necessity of buying marks to carry on their experiment.

"Following a firm opening stocks were subjected to rather heavy profit-taking before the end of the first hour, this being most noticeable naturally in those issues which have been especially buoyant of late. Steels and coppers, however, found good support and the range of prices in the industrial list generally was held to small fractions. As a result of the rise in the market during the past two weeks and the increasing public participation some commission house letter writers are now sounding a note of caution. They point out that the market may now be ripe for distribution. Rails were neglected, but steady for the most part. Trading was active and the list as a whole presented a mixed appearance at the close. Bonds were active and firm.

New High for Sterling.

"Trading in the foreign exchange market was fairly active, the feature being another advance in sterling which brought the price up to $4.69⅛, the highest quotation in over three years. Currencies of the allied and ex-enemy countries, meanwhile, were depressed. French francs sold at 5.96 cents, which price represented a loss of 9 points on the day, while Belgian francs and Italian lire moved in similar fashion. German marks turned reactionary following their recent upturn as the result of Government operations. At .0051¼ of a cent marks were down ⅛. Cables from London indicate that Berlin had apparently become alarmed over the rapidity in the mark's recovery.

"An increase of $90,250,000 in demand deposits was the feature of the weekly statement of the Clearing House statement. Total deposits are now $3,973,000,000. Another moderate gain in surplus brought that item up to $33,030,000. Loans and discounts increased $5,800,000 and Government deposits amounted to $33,731,030.

Sentimental Effect of United States Senate Approval of British Debt Funding Bill Influence on Market.

Weekly Foreign Review.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in financial review today says:

"Although indications of a revival in trade accumulate, the movement cannot become big until conditions in Europe are better; hence there is a disposition not to expect real monetary stringency such as would be occasioned if trade boomed. To appreciate stock exchange optimism this view about trade should be realized, and, in addition, consideration should be given to the vast amount of internal debt which matures within the next five years. The latter increases the likelihood of funding schemes, because saving on interest charges constitutes the government's chief hope of lowering expenditure. For this reason the market assumes monetary conditions will be made favorable for a further rise in British funds during the spring.

Rightly or wrongly the financial district believes that the methods being employed in the Ruhr will not succeed in extricating the maximum amount from Germany, the latter only being obtainable by a settlement involving consent. Nevertheless, opinion here is not, of course, unanimous, some asserting that if Britain supported France cordially Germany would quickly surrender. This reasoning, however, fails to explain just how surrender would be followed by means for making payments or causing German Nationals to withdraw their balances from abroad."

Dry Goods Market Review.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The market for cotton cloths was active today, with trading in print cloths the principal feature. Print cloths showed little change in prices from the levels established earlier in the week. Quotations for 64 by 60s and 68 by 70s remained at 11⅛ and 12¼, respectively. Bagmakers picked up some lots of sheeting, but those goods were quiet. Twills, sateens and pajama checks were dull.

The raw silk market here was quiet but firm today. Yokohama also reported a similar trend, with sales of 500 bales. Price quotations were unchanged, but dealers were evidently waiting to see how the market is going to move.

Sheep and lambs and a few classes of butcher cattle closed slightly higher for the week at the St. Louis National Stock Yards with other classes of livestock ranging from steady to lower. The cattle run was moderate in volume, with quality again common to medium. Beef steers started the week on a lower basis, but regained the loss in subsequent trading. The bulk sold from $7.25 to $8.75 per cwt. with one drove making $10, the top. Butcher yearlings were hard pressed by buyers and lost all of the previous week's advance which amounted to 75c on an average. Most of the offering was of common to medium quality and sold from $6 to $7.50. Better lots cashed up to $9. Butcher cows gained 25c and canners and cutters finished strong to 15c higher. The majority of butcher offerings cleared from $4 to $6, followed by cutters at $3 to $3.50 and canners at $2.60 to $2.75. A fairly good demand raised bologna bull prices 15c to 25c, the majority selling late at $4.25 to $5. Beef animals were not materially changed, most continuing around $4.50 to $5.50. Veal calves opened steady Monday, top $12.50, and registered $13 high marks the following two days. The close found the mid-week gains wiped out, however, best lights selling largely from $12.25 to $12.75. Southern canner yearlings were most numerous around $2.75, although some plain kinds fell below this mark and some of the best sold above. The week's offerings included about 20 cars of fed Oklahoma steer and some Texas offerings. Oklahomas went at $7 to $8.25 and Texas at $6.25 to $6.60 largely.

Hog Run Liberal.

Receipts of swine for the week just closed show a liberal total, the six day supply amounting to 86,000 head against 103,000 the preceding week and right at 80,000 for the corresponding time last year. There has been a more liberal percentage of lighter stuff among the arrivals, but at the same time there has been no lack of well finished heavy hogs from day to day. The first half of the week heavy runs were in evidence and the market crumbled away rapidly. By Tuesday the top was down to $8.35 and prime heavy hogs that day were selling at $8 and under. From the midweek session to the close receipts fell off sharply and the market responded to the lessened pressure of offerings, nearly all the early losses on butcher and good weight hogs being regained and these classes closes about steady with the finish the previous week, although choice light shippers in some instances were a shade stronger and some of the heavier hogs perhaps a dime lower. Pig trade closed for the week about 15c to 25c lower. Buyers have punished Southern pigs and lights severely from day to day and such offerings often sold $1.50 to $2 per cwt. under prevailing prices for choice corn belt stock of the same weight. Earmarked swine were neglected from day to day. Packing sows and stags little changed, in some cases ruling 10c to 15c lower. At the close of the week good to choice grades of swine sold as follows: Heavy finished hogs 260 pounds and up, $7.90 to $8.10; medium to good weight butchers 230 to 260 pounds, $8.10 to $8.25; light butchers 190 to 220 pounds, $8.25 to $8.60; shipping hogs 130 to 180 pounds, $8.65 to $8.80; pigs 110 to 125 pounds, $7.75 to $8.25; newes pigs, $6.50 to $7.25; packing sows, $6.90@7.15; stags, $5.50@6.25; immune feeding pigs, $9.50@9.75; feeding sows, $7.50@8.

Sheep Prices Advance.

But a small supply of sheep and lambs was received last week and as there was a good demand the market was active all week and prices at the close were on a 25c higher basis than at the close of the previous week. Receipts for the week were but around 5000, which is but a small proportion of the number needed to meet the demand. Lambs weighing 90 pounds and over showed no material improvement as they were too heavy to suit the buyers. At the close of the week best lambs were selling at $14.75@15.25, medium ones $13.75@14.50, plainer kinds and heavy ones $12.50@13.50, most of the culls $10@12. Some wethers brought $8.50 last week and best ewes sold up to $8, but most of the mutton sheep went at $7.50@7.75, some plain ones $7@7.40, choppers and bucks $4.50@5.50, plain heavy ewes around $6 and canners $2@3. The market showed a strong spirit towards the close of the week.

Horses and Mules.

Receipts of horses and mules during the week were of moderate volume, the commission offering figuring 1500 head, virtually all of which found outlet. Horses, comprising a little better than 25 per cent of the total run, ruled steady on big kinds and Southerners, but slightly easier on Pennsylvania chunks due to unfavorable weather in the East. Cotton mules held to a steady level and big mules showed a stronger trend in many quarters. Some of the plain, rough-haired and green stuff sold on a cheap basis.

Dried Fruits.

DRIED FRUIT—Evaporated ring apples at 8@8½c per lb.; chops at 2c and waste at 1¾c; sun-dried quarters apples at 6¼c (dark less); sun-dried peaches at 5c per lb.

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.

The oil and copper shares made moderate response during today's brief trading session of the further advance in both crude oil and the copper metal. Midcontinent crude quotations were raised 10c a barrel following the latest 25c increase in Pennsylvania grades. The domestic oil stock, especially Texas Co., Sinclair and Marland did better, some of them reaching the highest for the season. Copper stocks, notably Kennecott, Utah and Cerro de Pasco, rose a little, and although none of them made much headway, the rise in some cases was sufficient to carry stocks just above their previous top of the year.

In the stock market of today fresh buying appeared in some sections of the list, but on the whole it was more than outweighed by realizing sales coming from the pool and trading elements which were reducing their commitments according to the ordinary custom over the week end.

The general list closed irregular. Baldwin was off nearly 2 points from its high and United States Steel common a half point lower on the day. Against this Anaconda was suddenly taken up and went through 50 on large transactions. This had a stimulating effect upon other members of the copper group.

The Bond Market.

A number of bonds sold higher today than during the week. Among them were the Anaconda Copper 6s and 7s which were at the largest premium since they were issued and also United Kingdom 5½s of 1937. There was a steady tone to the general list today and a fair amount of activity. This week's offerings of new issues amounted to $65,000,000 of which $45,000,000 represented two offerings, the Dutch East Indies 5½s and Sinclair Crude Oil 6s.

September wheat closed the week higher on the Merchants' Exchange, but the May delivery was but slightly changed. Corn was higher. Bulls stressed the British debt-funding settlement.

WHEAT PRICES MIXED AT CLOSE OF CHICAGO TRADE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—Wheat had a sharp bulge in the last hour of trading today. The start was inconspicuous, with just enough buying to start prices higher and very little pressure. After a slight advance was recorded eastern houses put wheat in the pit in sufficient quantities to cause a setback of over a cent from the top. There was buying credited to exporters around top prices and on the scale-down, but this was later believed to be back-spreading between this market and Winnipeg, buying here and selling there. The Winnipeg market was experiencing good buying by exporters, which enabled spreaders to pursue their operations. The approval of the Senate on the British debt-funding question and the advance in Liverpool were factors which caused bulls to reinstate lines at the start. Receipts are showing some increase in all sections but the Northwest. Some improvement in export demand was reported. Mills continue to take hold in a moderate way. Moderating temperatures were reported over the greater part of the winter wheat belt. Wheat broke late in the session on a continuation of eastern selling. At the close prices were ¼c lower to ½c higher, May $1.20@1.19⅞, July $1.15⅝@1.15⅝, September $1.14½@1.14¼.

Corn was firm at the start and while a reaction was noted with wheat prices, never dropped below the previous close throughout the entire session. The buying was mainly by local traders and two of the bull leaders took the offerings when they appeared to be oppressive. Shipping demand was good and railroads reported inability to furnish cars tended to make local cash trade reluctant to offer. Heavy coal traffic is said to be one of the causes of eastern congestion. Country offered little corn to arrive. Market closed ⅛@⅝c higher, May 75⅝@75¾c to 75⅝c, July 76¼@76⅝c to 76½c, and September 77¼c.

Oats sympathized with corn. There was good buying in evidence and much of it by cash interests. Market closed ¼c higher to ⅛c lower, May 46½c, July 45@45⅛c, September 43½c.

Provisions were higher. Advance in cottonseed oil caused good buying. Lard closed 7½c to 10c lower and ribs 2½c lower.

Miss Isabel Haldeman, Who Has Been Much Entertained in St. Louis, Is Married in Paris to George Leib

Sister of Mrs. George R. Wendling Jr., Becomes Bride of San Francisco Man Whom She Met at Christmas Time—Visit in St. Louis Planned for Couple.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made in Louisville, Ky., and St. Louis of the marriage in Paris, France, yesterday of Miss Isabel Haldeman, daughter of Mrs. John Avery Haldeman of Louisville, to George Leib of San Franicsco, Cal. The news has an interesting significance to the large group of St. Louisans who have met the former Miss Haldeman on her visits to her sister, Mrs. George R. Wendling Jr., and Mr. Wendling of 4509 Pershing avenue. The bride's attractiveness is legion in the social world here, and both she and her sister, Miss Bessie Haldeman, have been entertained many times by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parsons Pettus, the Carl and Harry Langenbergs, Mrs. Cora South Brown-O'Fallon, Pelham Turner and others.

The bride went abroad with Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Wooster Lambert and Mr. Turner about a year and a half ago, and was joined by Miss Bessie Haldeman last June. Since the return to America of the remainder of the party, the Misses Haldeman have spent several months studying French in Paris and going up to St. Moritz in the mountains of Switzerland, for the winter sports. Mr. Leib, formerly of Louisville, although an old friend of the Haldeman family, had not met his bride until Christmas time, in Paris.

The ceremony was performed at an Episcopal Church on the Champs Elysees by the Rev. Dr. Beekman, and was followed by a reception at the home of Ernest Ives, American Consul General in Paris. Mr. and Mrs. Leib will sail immediately for Algiers, to spend their honeymoon, and will come to the United States in April. Mrs. Wendling is planning to meet them in New York and take them to Louisville for a visit, and for Derby Day in May, and later have them in St. Louis as her guests prior to their going to San Francisco, where they will reside.

Mrs. Leib is the daughter of the late John A. Haldeman, publisher of the Louisville Times, and a niece of William B. Haldeman, former editor and publisher of the Courier-Journal. She is a graduate of the Bennett School, Millbrook, N. Y., and was presented to society in Louisville. She is a noted horsewoman, and was the first woman nominee for a city office in Louisville, having been selected by the Democratic party for the Park Commisionership in 1921.

Mr. Leib is the son of Louis Leib of Louisville. He was educated at the University of Virginia and served overseas as a captain in the army during the war.

Miss Dorothy McBride, youngest daughter of Mrs. William Cullen McBride, and William D. Orthwein II, have formally announced their engagement.

News of the betrothal was told at a luncheon given at her home, 26 Washington terrace, Monday afternoon. The bride-to-be was a debutante of last season, having been presented to society at an elaborate ball in which the setting represnteed St. Mark's Square in Venice, with plazas, lagoons and gondolas propelled by costumed gondoliers, adding to the realism of the scene. She was educated at Marymount, Tarrytown-on-Hudson, N. Y., and at the Ogontz School in Philadelphia. She became a member of the Junior League in her debut year. Mr. Orthwein, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Orthwein, is a graduate of Yale University, class of 1920 and belongs to the University and Racquet Clubs.

Rear Admiral Sims Will Be a Guest in St. Louis This Week

There Will Be More Parties This Week Than Is Usual During Lent as Result of Presence of Visitors.

IN spite of the dull, drab days of Lent, when the social world is supposed to don sackcloth and ashes, something pleasant generally happens, so that entertaining does not cease, but rather the nature of it changes somewhat. She will remain in St. Louis only a few days, and with Miss Scott will depart early this week for a plantation at Ocean Springs, Miss., where they will visit a former classmate at Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn., from which school both girls have been graduated. Later Miss Scott will join her mother in Hot Springs, Va. Mrs. Scott expects to leave St. Louis about the middle of March to join the early spring colony at that resort. A Straightforward Announcement and a Glimpse Into the Future

Sensenbrenner's
SIXTH AND ST. CHARLES

St. Louis, January 26th, '23.

Memorandum to Advertising Dept.

Recently, at a meeting of the members who are responsible for the future growth of this store, certain ideas and ideals that have been forming and shaping themselves for many months, were expressed.

As you know, this store has, in a quiet way, been effectively practicing new policies which has resulted in an even greater spirit of co-operation between ourselves and our employes; and which, in turn, has been reflected in their increased desire to better serve our patrons. We are further, making every effort to instill in the minds of all St.Louis women, as we already have in many, a confidence in the words and deeds of Sensenbrenner's such as no store has ever before enjoyed.

At the meeting referred to above, it was unanimously decided to adopt and immediately enforce the following policy: "That it shall be the merchandising rule of Sensenbrenner's, to give such unusual values that will, above all things, make more friends for this store." Will you therefore prepare a statement to be published in the newspapers, setting forth these principles as briefly outlined here.

J. J. Sensenbrenner.
President

JJS-A

Fac-simile of letter received by Advertising Department.

ON THE CORNER OF SIXTH AND ST. CHARLES STREETS, the hub of St. Louis' shopping district, stands a store, which for years has followed the policy of doing the greatest good for the greatest number. It has never been a store to "put on airs." It has always maintained an atmosphere of simplicity and friendliness; a store where one always felt welcome. On these principles Sensenbrenner's has prospered, and having prospered, these principles will be upheld.

YET ALTERED CONDITIONS MAKE CERTAIN STEPS necessary. Times change. Today the population of St. Louis is near the million mark. As the city has progressed, so too, have stores and store methods. Competition grows keener. Policies must be broadened. So to face this condition—to keep step (yes, even a step ahead) with the march of progress, several important measures have been adopted.

FIRST AND FOREMOST THIS STORE WILL IMMEDIATELY inaugurate a campaign that will add new customers by the score. "Make more friends, smaller profits, and quicker turnovers" is to be the guiding thought. Not a spectacular, noisy campaign, but a consistent, day in and day out program of exceptional value-giving. And the old principles of good store-keeping will not be forgotten. No employe of this store will be allowed to lose sight of the fact that courteous service is our first consideration. No complaint is too trivial but what it will receive careful, considerate attention. Merchandise purchased here MUST give satisfaction. Yes, that is the word, "Satisfaction." Satisfaction raised to the nth degree will be our motto.

AND WHAT OF THE FUTURE? A GOODLY share of success; many, many more friends; the continued confidence of thousands of St. Louisans; the respect of our friends, whether customers or competitors. To these ends our plans are made. We will hew to one main purpose—that of selling goods that won't come back, to customers that will.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre At Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur receipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, a large bottle, at little cost at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

Buyers and sellers become acquainted through the Post-Dispatch Want Columns.

Simple Application That Dissolves Blackheads

No more squeezing and pinching to get rid of those unsightly blemishes, blackheads. There is one simple, safe and sure way to get them out, and that is to dissolve them. Get about two ounces of calonite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub briskly over the blackheads for few seconds—wash the parts and every blackhead will be gone.

Pinching and squeezing out blackheads make large pores, and you cannot get all of the blackheads out this way—while this simple application of calonite powder and water dissolves every particle of them and leaves the skin and pores in their natural condition.

Sale of High-Class Spring Frocks

$85, $75, $65, $55 and $50 Values for

$44

For weeks we have been working to gather together enough high-class Dresses for this special event. From one manufacturer we secured a dozen Dresses, from another twenty, from a third, six, and so on, until we collected more than two hundred fine, new, high-class Dresses at considerably less than their real worth.

The variety of styles and sizes is wide, including models and sizes for misses and for youthful women, and also for women of fuller figures. There are new Canton crepe Dresses, Renee crepe, Georgette or chiffon, satin Canton, taffeta, lace meteor, Bokhara, Roshanara crepes, Pharaoh crepe, and other printed and figured materials.

Styles for sport wear, for dinner, afternoon, theater, bridge and street wear and business; in fact, there are new styles for every occasion. There are only one or two of most of the models, so we say, "Come early tomorrow, if possible, but, early or late, come tomorrow for one of these exceptional Dresses." Sale Monday at 9 a. m.

STERN'S—509 WASHINGTON

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES OF THE WEEK IN WASHINGTON

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The Missouri colony listened to the sound of wedding bells last week. The principals were Erma Elizabeth, daughter of Representative and Mrs. James G. Strong of Kansas and Paul E. Haworth of Kansas City.

The wedding took place on Monday at the Congressional Club. The rites were performed by the Rev. Dr. Sterrett of All Souls Episcopal Church. A large reception followed.

The Kansas delegation in Congress presented a silver urn and silver candlesticks to the bride which were effectively displayed on the long buffet table. The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin and a bertha and front panel of duchesse lace which was used by her grandmother at a reception held for President-elect Abraham Lincoln. Miss N. Norma Chandler, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Thomas A. Chandler of Oklahoma, was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Anne Wyant, daughter of Representative Wyant, and Elizabeth Hudspeth, daughter of Representative Hudspeth. They wore gowns of Elizabeth crepe made on old-fashioned lines.

The younger set is greatly interested in the bridge tournament and sale to be held at Wardman Park Hotel on Feb. 21 for the Russian refugees at which Princess Bertha Cantacuzene will have charge of the sale of cigarettes and candy. The candies which will be on sale are a species of Russian sweetmeat new to Washington, which have been shipped here for the occasion. Among those who will assist her are: Miss Caroline Thom, Miss Gladys Chapman Smith, Miss Dora Parker, Miss Mary Montgomery and Mrs. Chauncey Parker Jr. A feature of the entertainment will be a group of Russian folk songs sung by Miss Helen Howison. The navy band will play and there will be dancing at the tea hour.

Mrs. George Mesta was hostess at a luncheon at the Shoreham in compliment to Mrs. George Bowles of Kansas City who is a guest of Mrs. Andrieus Jones.

A reprieve, as it were, has been received by Under Secretary of State Robert Woods Bliss from his new job as Minister to Sweden because his successor in the State Department has to accompany Secretary of State Hughes to Chile. Therefore the Blisses who have been among the most interesting members of the Missouri colony here will not leave for some months. This will enable them to superintend still more the rebuilding of "the Oaks" former home of John C. Calhoun.

President and Mrs. Harding are eagerly awaiting the adjournment of Congress so they can begin their Florida vacation. It is said that after spending a short time in Palm Beach they will then cruise around southern waters on the yacht owned by Edward Beale McLean, owner of the Washington Post, whose guests they will be while in Florida.

Things are waking up in D. A. R. circles where interest is high in the coming elections in April when a president-general and Board of Management will be chosen. Missouri will send a large delegation partly because she has a candidate of her own on the ticket of Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook, the Pennsylvania candidate for president-general. Missouri's candidate is Mrs. Alvin M. Connelly, State Historian of the D. A. R. who is seeking the office of reporter-general to the Smithsonian Institution. Mrs. Connelly is the author of "Prominent Women of Missouri" and "Facts for Patriots," a text book for high schools. She is a member of the American Federation of Art; the president and organizer of the Betsy Hall Society; Children of the American Revolution; a member of the League of American Pen Women; writer and producer of historical pageants and sketches; editor and compiler of the war records of Missouri.

Gen. Pershing, who is spending the month in Washington preparing his reports, entertained at luncheon in the Shoreham on Wednesday. His guests included Mr. and Mrs. James B. McNalley, Mr. and Mrs. Cady, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Happer, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Cole, Miss Reynolds, Mrs. Dudley Dean and William H. Burgess.

Many of the Missouri hostesses are sponsors for the course of lectures on Government being given at the Highlands under the auspices of the Washington Study Club. These include Mrs. Breckinridge Long, Mrs. Frederick D. Grant, Mrs. Dwight Davis, Mrs. Selden P. Spencer and Mrs. C. M. Foulke.

Ash Wednesday and Lent are here and Washington society learned the other day that one of its chief occupations for three years past, the Bible class of Mrs. Selden P. Spencer, wife of the Missouri Senator, would not take place. Mrs. Spencer is not well, having just recovered from grippe, and her physicians have set forth their dictum that no more work is to be undertaken by her for some weeks. Mrs. Spencer was much disappointed, but is already making plans for next year and expects then to to start out with renewed vigor and to make her Bible class bigger and better in every way. Immediately upon the adjournment of Congress, she will go with Senator Spencer for a month's stay in Atlantic City.

FOURTH CHILDREN'S CONCERT TO BE GIVEN SATURDAY

Will Be Last of Free Series of Symphony Programs This Season for White Children.

DISTRIBUTION OF TICKETS THURSDAY

New-Looking Numbers on Director Ganz's List — Fifth Concert to Be Given Later for Negro Children.

The fourth concert in the Post-Dispatch school children's free series, and the last one of this season for white children, will be given next Saturday morning in the Missouri Theater, Grand boulevard and Lucas avenue, by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. The use of the theater is given free of charge by the management.

The fifth concert will be for children of the negro schools, and an announcement regarding it will be made later.

The program of the fourth concert contains more new-looking numbers than the previous programs. However, the children will be able to get some of the old favorites by the applause route, as Conductor Ganz is usually generous with his juvenile audiences in the matter of encores.

Next Saturday's program, to begin at 10:30 a. m., is:

1. Halvorsen. Entrance of the Boyars
2. Schubert—First Movement from the "Unfinished" Symphony.
3. Levy.........Woodland Sketches
4. (a) Massenet—Meditation from "Thais."
   (b) Saint-Saens—The Swan.
5. Wagner—Fire Music from "Die Walkure."
6. Van der Stucken—March, "Louisiana."

TAYLOR RANKS ST. LOUIS ORCHESTRA LAST AMONG THOSE HEARD ON TOUR

Distinguished Critic Says East Still Has Advantage Technically, Though West Excells in Some Respects.

DEEMS TAYLOR, the distinguished music critic of the New York World, has been making a tour of cities of the middle section of the country to hear their symphony orchestras. Herewith is his second article on the St. Louis orchestra, the first being published yesterday. It is the eleventh article of his series.

By DEEMS TAYLOR.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—"Go West, young man." That was as far as Horace Greeley had gone with his admonition. The editors were more specific. "Go West, young man," they said, "and see what is going on among the symphony orchestras; then come back and tell The World." So The World's reviewer went. He set forth about three weeks ago and in the space of 12 days he heard the orchestras of Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago, Detroit, Minneapolis and St. Louis. He talked to conductors, managers, orchestra players, guarantors and plain audience. For he wanted to get impressions. He got them—so many of them, in fact, accumulated in so short a space of time that it is hard to begin sorting them out. The strongest of them, though, is very clear indeed, and can best be expressed, perhaps, by indirection in the form of a word of advise to the musical East: Look to your laurels. For, after painstaking, making all possible allowance for the fact that first impressions are not necessarily trustworthy and the unfamiliar is often more impressive than the accustomed—even so, I cannot help feeling that the East can teach the Middle West very little about symphonic music. More than that, the East has one or two extremely important things to learn on its own account.

Technically, the East still has a slight advantage. I heard nothing that I would rank with the Philadelphia orchestra; more than ever I believe that the latter organization is in a class by itself—certainly the finest orchestra in this country and one of the best in the world. But I did hear the Chicago orchestra, which seemed to me easily equal as regards purity of tone and perfection of ensemble to anything we have in the East. Of the others, four at least—Cleveland, Cincinnati, Detroit and Minneapolis—can be called excellent because of material qualities and general play ability slightly, if at all, below those of the Philharmonic or the New York Symphony. The St. Louis orchestra is not as good as the others; but it is far from being a bad orchestra.

The Symphony Conductors.

It would be decidedly odious to make too close comparisons, but it does seem to me that as regards conductors the Middle West is our match. Sokoloff of Cleveland, Reiner of Cincinnati, Stock of Chicago, Gabrilowisch of Detroit, Vergrugghen of Minneapolis, Ganz of St. Louis—here are six men who can hold their own in any assemblage of musicians. At least three of them are in the very first rank; any eastern orchestra would be lucky to get one of them. The others are but little below them. Mr. Ganz lacks orchestral experience somewhat, but his fine musicianship and exceptional knack of handling men should enable him to overcome the handicap in a comparatively short time.

What impressed me so about all these men was their attitude toward their orchestras and their public. They are all European born and most of them had all their training abroad, and yet every one of them is an American. By that I mean American in his point of view and mental equipment. One feels that every one of them takes his job seriously and feels that he has a duty toward his orchestra and his public. He tries to interest his hearers without pandering and he tries to educate them without condescension.

The Spirit of the Players.

The players themselves seem imbued with a spirit totally different from the air of conscious competence that emanates from the average eastern orchestral musician. Man for man, probably, they are not as good players as the easterners, but man for man they play with much more interest in the music and enthusiasm in communicating it. The consequence is that the average orchestral concert in the Middle West has a general "on your toes" air that is wanting here almost entirely. It is an event, and the listener is made to feel it. Incidentally, our eastern orchestras have not always made the most favorable impression in the world when their travels have taken them into the Middle West. I heard a good deal of adverse comment upon the rather cheap and hackneyed programs that seem to be considered "good enough for the road" and the rather condescending attitude of the visiting organizations.

PARIS, Ill., Feb. 17.—Floyd Fenton, 7 years old, of Vermillion, was brought to the Paris hospital this morning suffering from a bullet wound in the spine inflicted by his brother, Paul, aged 13. The elder boy was cleaning a rifle when the weapon was accidentally discharged.

$100,000 RAISED LAST YEAR BY TUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY

About $94,000 Spent—44,260 Contributions in 1922—$10,000 Given by 5120 Persons in 1912.

The Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis raised more than $100,000 during 1922 and spent about $94,000, leaving a small balance in bank. This money was collected from more than 50,000 persons, firms and corporations. Fewer than 25 persons contributed more than $25 each.

The annual report of Charles P. Pettus, treasurer, states that during the last 12 years the income of the society increased more than 800 per cent, the amount collected in 1912 being less than $10,000, while the number of contributions increased from 5120 to 44,260. This large number of contributions, according to the report, does not include the thousands of school children contributing every year by the purchase of Christmas seals. Neither did it include the thousands of persons attending the annual benefit ball game given in the summer.

TAYLOR RANKS LOCAL ORCHESTRA LAST OF THOSE HEARD ON TOUR

In Cleveland, for instance, some people still remember a concert given there by a New York orchestra two or three seasons ago, when, during a symphony slow movement wherein the brass was silent, one of the trombone players sat at his desk for 10 minutes in full sight of the audience, reading a newspaper.

In justice to the Eastern conductor it must be said that the conductor in the Middle West has an easier time of it, so far as maintaining and improving the quality of his orchestra is concerned. The salaries paid the players are somewhat higher in many cases, because the men know that they will have little chance to earn extra money by doing outside work; but by that same token they take their symphonic work more seriously and come to rehearsals fresher and with less divided attention. This is particularly true of Detroit, Minneapolis, Cincinnati and Cleveland, where there are few big motion picture houses to lure the players into hiring themselves out for the sake of extra salaries. In Chicago the pension fund tends to make the men look upon the orchestra as their real career. In St. Louis, where there is no fund and where outside attractions are numerous, the quality of the orchestra suffers accordingly.

Program Making.

In one respect, the orchestras of the Middle West are decidedly in advance of the East—in the question of program making. Conductors here are still saturated with the continental tradition of presnting orchestral music. We have a tendency to keep the programs of symphony concerts well within the groove that has always satisfied the middle class European hearer. Here is what you are likely to hear when the orchestras play in Carnegie Hall:

1. A symphony, preferably by Beethoven or Brahms or Chaikovsky, with an occasional incursion into Mahler, Berlioz or Cesar Franck as a novelty.

2. After the intermission a piano or violin concerto, played by a famous soloist. If the artist is a violinist, he will probably play the Brahms concerto in order to show the uncompromising purity of his taste. If he is a pinanist, his choice is likely to be either Schumann or Beethoven.

3. Sometimes a novelty, sometimes a tidbit like Reger's "Variations on a Theme by Haydn," or the last-act scene from "Di Walkuere," with Wotan's part played by the first cello.

4. Strass' "Don Juan," Chaikovsky's "Marche Slave," or Listz's "Les Preludes."

This is exaggerated, of course—it would have to keep it short enough—but it does illustrate pretty fairly, I think, the Eastern attitude toward orchestral music. As few experiments as possible, either in the form of the program or the music.

Tradition Broken in West.

With the exception of Henri Verbrugghen, who is still rather conservative, the Middle Western conductor has broken with this tradition entirely. He has no nucleus of sophisticated concert goers who go to hear whether he conducts the Beethoven eighth faster or slower than Nikisch did. He faces an audience of Americans who, many of them, have never heard a symphony orchestra outside of their own, who care more for what music sounds like than for the name signed to it, who possess the restless and curious American mind and who, when they are bored by a hackneyed program decide that symphonic music is not for them anyway. And so because his audience is not ready made for him the Middle Western conductor has to keep his hearers interested. He could do it by cheapening his program, possibly; but he is too sincere a musician for that. So he does the only other possible thing; he expends all the skill and musicianship he possesses on arranging his programs in the most varied and interesting forms possible.

He usually begins with a short piece, 10 minutes or so in length, because he knows that part of the audience is going to be late. Part of the audience is always late in the East, too; only the Eastern conductor prefers to pretend that they are not going to be, or else to shrug his shoulders and let them miss the first movement of the symphony. I admit a sneaking sympathy for the latter procedure, but I think the Western way is better showmanship. And we need showmanship, we musicians, if we are to induce the average American to take any more interest in orchestral music than does the average Englishman or Frenchman.

HEAD STUFFED FROM CATARRH OR A COLD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Opens Air Passages Right Up.

Instant relief—no waiting. Your clogged nostrils open right up; the air passages of your head clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh disappears.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh.

DR. J. E. CANNADAY

I believe eczema can be cured to stay. I mean just what I say: C-U-R-E-D and NOT merely patched up to return again. Remember, I make this statement after handling over half a million cases of eczema and devoting over 20 years of my life to its treatment. I don't care what you have used, nor how many doctors have told you that you could not be cured; all I ask is just a chance to prove my claims. Don't be discouraged but write me TODAY and I will send you a FREE TRIAL of mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will surely convince you as it has me. If you are disgusted and discouraged just give me one chance to prove my claims. By writing me today I believe you will enjoy more real comfort than you really thought this world held for you. Just try it, and I feel sure you will agree with me.

WIFE OF MISSING MAN RETURNS TO GERMANY

Mrs. Harry Brenn, war bride of the Oakville garage owner who has been missing since his garage was destroyed by fire the night of Sept. 25, has left the United States for her former home in Germany. She had been staying with her mother-in-law, Mrs. Florida Adamas, at 3620 Easton avenue, since shortly after her husband's disappearance.

At the time her husband's garage burned, a body found in the ruins was believed to be that of Brenn. Later it was identified as that of Miss Celestine Schneider, which had been taken from its grave in Mount Hope Cemetery. Warrants charging Brenn with arson and grave robbery and Mrs. Brenn with complicity were issued, but those against Mrs. Brenn were withdrawn when authorities became convinced she had no knowledge of the alleged crimes.

Recently a fund of $230 was raised by persons who read in the newspapers of Mrs. Brenn's destitute circumstances, due, in part, to her inability to work because she expects another child, and of her desire to return to her parents in Germany. She obtained a passport soon afterward, and now with her 15-months-old son, Harry, has left the United States. No effort was ever made by Mrs. Brenn to collect her husband's life insurance, which police for a time believed furnished the motive for Brenn's disappearance.

PAY INCREASES FOR FIREMEN PROPOSED

Foristel Prepares Bill Which Would Add Total of $301,920 a Year to Salaries.

Salary increases totaling $301,920 a year are provided for in a bill for an ordinance which Edward W. Foristel, attorney for the City Firemen's Union, has prepared for submission to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, with a view to having it recommended to the Board of Aldermen for passage.

It provides for increasing the 78 captains from $170 to $195 a month, 78 lieutenants from $150 to $195, 55 engineers from $150 to $175, 55 assistant engineers from $140 to $175, 594 ordinary firemen from $140 to $165, and 62 watchmen from $115 to $140.

The reason for proposing to make the salaries of captains and lieutenants the same and engineers and assistant engineers the same is that under the two-platoon system the duties of lieutenants are the same as those of captains and duties of assistant engineers are the same as those of engineers.

A bill pending before the Legislature calls for an increase of 100 men each year for three years on the police department, at an increased cost of $175,000 a year.

REYNOLDS VERDICT IS ACCIDENT

Driver Testifies at Inquest into Death of Editor of The Squib.

A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned yesterday in the case of Thomas Y. Reynolds, 78 years old, of 414 Market street, editor of The Squib, a weekly anti-prohibition paper, who was struck by an automobile truck in front of 2025 South Broadway, Wednesday, and died at the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium Thursday.

The driver of the five-ton coal truck, Robert Wilbanks, 21, of 704 North Twenty-fifth street, East St. Louis, testified that he had slowed down to six miles an hour while driving south on Broadway, for a street car crossing, and was picking up speed when Reynolds stepped from in front of an automobile parked at the west curb. Wilbanks said he applied the brakes, sounded the horn, and turned toward the east, and that the front part of the truck did not strike Reynolds. Two witnesses corroborated this.

New Way to Wave the Hair Becomes Popular

That most women are quick to appreciate anything that will enhance their attractiveness is shown by the greatly increased demand for liquid silmerine since its remarkable hair-curling properties became known. Druggists everywhere report large sales for this product.

Women are enthusiastic over liquid silmerine, particularly because it enables them to acquire a curliness which is beautifully natural in appearance, and not have to burn the life out of the hair with a hot iron. Also that it is a beneficial dressing for the hair. The liquid is so agreeable to use, being neither gummy nor greasy, and it is easy to apply with a clean tooth brush at night when the hair is done up. The pretty wavy and curly effect in the morning is most delightful. As it takes only a little silmerine to produce the desired effect, a few ounces will last for weeks.

STUPENDOUS SUCCESS OF MENTHO-LAXENE

For Stubborn Wracking Coughs

Has Earned It a Front Place in Many, Many Homes Here

ITS MIGHTY HEALING POWER QUICKLY PROVEN IN COUGHS DUE TO COLDS, FLU, GRIP, BRONCHIAL ASTHMA, WHOOPING COUGH, SPASMODIC CROUP, HUSKINESS, HOARSENESS, TOO.

Mentho-Laxene is needed in every family.

Every family can afford to save Three Dollars on Cough Medicine—

And a single bottle saves anyone Three Dollars.

Mentho-Laxene is highly concentrated, pure medicines, and mixed at home, with sugar syrup, or strained honey, makes a great big Full Pint of Cough Syrup—the most pleasant, most efficient, most prompt that can be obtained.

Quick Relief Experienced Surprises Everybody

The very first dose relieves; and repeated, it soothes, penetrates and heals, with volatile vapors, the tender, inflamed and "raw" mucus membrane of the nostrils, throat, bronchial tubes and delicate air passages, while the laxative, purifying, antiseptic qualities enter the system through the stomach, bowels and blood, and loosen up the phlegm secretions, and drive from the body the foul corruption and waste matters that clog the system, whenever you catch cold. This DOUBLE-ACTION MEDICINE goes right to the root of the trouble. It not only checks a cold, it not only is the quickest-acting, best cough syrup—but it is a system cleanser and tonic—laxative—and that is why it has so many patrons and grateful friends.

Mentho-Laxene eliminates the conditions that permit colds, distressing, painful coughs, disgusting catarrh, with its attendant headache, hoarseness, tickling in throat, clogged nostrils, and other mild, but unhealthy symptoms of congestion. Mentho-Laxene has a "double action"—for it relieves congestion of colds and aids in elimination of destructive toxins from the system.

Non-tubercular people who have endured chronic bronchial coughs for years, and who have tried "this, that and the other remedy" in vain, have received benefits from Mentho-Laxene in a few days and have fully regained their normal condition after a few weeks' use of this fine, quick-acting, pure medicine.

BE KIND TO YOURSELF—by reading the testimony of grateful citizens. Be kind and good to your children by learning what other mothers and fathers have learned—that Mentho-Laxene has saved their little ones from suffering, and perhaps from croup, fever, pneumonia and chronic lung trouble. Every letter published is voluntary—and not a cent has ever been paid for a single one. They are the outpourings of grateful hearts, charitable hearts, too, because they want others to get the help and health that they have gotten through Mentho-Laxene.

REWARD:—The Blackburn Products Co. hereby offer a Reward of $1000 if every letter published is not the genuine unsolicited expression of the users of their medicine, given without pay of any kind.

ST. LOUISANS ENTHUSIASTICALLY PRAISE MENTHO-LAXENE

Vine Grove Av., Mother Outspoken for Mentho-Laxene. Says, "It Does Wonderful Work."

Gentlemen: I have used two bottles of Mentho-Laxene Cough Medicine and find that it does wonderful work. My children are subject to spasmodic croup and I find Mentho-Laxene better than any doctor's prescription I've ever used. On receipt of my last bottle of M. L. I received a trial tube of Mentho-Laxene Triple-Strength Salve, and this little tube without a doubt done miraculous work, but when I wanted to buy a tube, our leading drug stores hadn't heard of the salve, so my druggist requested me to write and have a salesman visit him and he would order the salve. Now, gentlemen, any part of this letter, with my indorsement, can be used as a testimonial. Respectfully, Mrs. J. A. McAllister, 3106 Vine Grove Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

Marine Avenue Lady Gladly Testifies Truth About Mentho-Laxene

Dear Sir: Seeing your Mentho-Laxene advertisement in a paper, I decided to try it, and it surely is all that one could possibly expect of a cough medicine. I would use no other. You may use this as a testimonial if you care to. Wishing you success. I am sincerely, Mrs. A. Harrison, 3750-A Marine Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

"Almost Past Breathing" First Dose Mentho-Laxene Gave Grateful Relief

Dear Sirs: I am pleased to recommend Mentho-Laxene as the finest cough and cold medicine I have ever known. I, for one, believe it alone saved my life as I was almost past breathing, owing to a severe cough and cold. When I saw your advertisement in the Post-Dispatch I sent to the nearest drug store and purchased a bottle. The first dose relieved. It was like magic almost, and now I am well and feeling fine. I praise it to all my friends. Yours respectfully, Fannie Redelle, 914 La Beaume Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

MAYOR ENDORSES MENTHO-LAXENE

Mr. Andrew Lastine, Five Times Mayor of Marne, Iowa, Writes to Help Bronchial Sufferers. Suffered 15 Years. All Other Remedies Failed.

Dec. 16, 1922.

Gentlemen: In order to help you in your good work and advise others what good Mentho-Laxene has done for me: I am a man, 70 years of age, and buying stock is my occupation. I have been troubled by coughing spells for over 15 years prior to using your medicine and I tried nearly every known cough medicine there is on the market without any relief; and worse than that, it ruined my health, until a few years ago I was reading, in the Omaha World Herald, Dr. Lewis Baker's advice to people, who, like myself, was troubled with irritation in the bronchial tubes, causing the cough. He always recommended Mentho-Laxene. I went and bought a bottle, thinking it would perhaps be like the rest of the dope I had been taking. But I was very much surprised, for the very first dose gave me relief. That time we made a syrup of it and take it in concentrated form as I find it acts more quickly and a person don't have to take so much, for I am like the children, I don't like medicine any too well. I don't know how many bottles I have used, but we always keep a supply of it on hand. My wife always looks to it to see that I have plenty on hand. She, too, remembers when I had to sit up nights, coughing and neither she or I got any rest or sleep. It is therefore a pleasure for me to recommend Mentho-Laxene to a suffering fellow-being. I have lived here for over 30 years and have served my town in all different offices. Have served as Mayor for 5 terms (10 years), so I am well known here, and if this will be of any help to others you are welcome to use it. I am respectfully yours, Andrew Lastine, Marne, Iowa.

"Loving mothers make it—children gladly take it."

Dear Sirs: The first dose of Mentho-Laxene given my daughter gave her very great relief, so we have used it steadily from that time on. I have 12 children living. Three are married and two of them each have five children. They, too, now use Mentho-Laxene whenever they are attacked by colds or coughs. It has saved all of us many a doctor's bill and much suffering.—Mrs. Lawrence Klasner, 28 Queen St., N. S. Pittsburg, Pa.

Mr. F. P. Sickles—"Most Terrible Coughs—Gave Up in Despair

"In Two Days Cough Was Gone and in Two Weeks Was Completely Cured."

"About two years ago I was taken down with a terrible cold and it ran into pneumonia. After getting up I had a most terrible cough. I tried most everything in vain and gave up in despair, until a man from your state gave me a little of your Mentho-Laxene. In less than two days my cough was gone, and in two weeks was completely cured. We have been trying ever since to locate you. My daughter of the Dressler Studios of this city found your address at last, and have just received a consignment of the Mentho-Laxene, the BEST PREPARATION IN THE WORLD, and may your days on earth be many and keep on with the good work—but ADVERTISE more! Get it before the people! You can use this testimonial and welcome, for if I can ever do anything to assist you in any way let me know and I will appreciate it. Very truly yours, F. P. Sickles, 415 So. Iron, Centralia, Wash."—Oct. 24, 1921.

Carnegie Lady Says "Most Promptly Effective Cough Medicine I Have Ever Known"

"I have been using your recipe for making cough syrup of essence Mentho-Laxene for a long time and have found it the best to be had any place, as it never fails to stop the most obstinate cough. Anything I can do to get others to give it a trial I will do. I'm never without it, and generally keep an extra bottle of the essence, as my friends come to me the second time for it, after I have given them a trial, and then I explain how cheap they can make it at home. Because of my enthusiasm, Mr. Maroney tells me in fun that I am the "Carnegie Free Drug Store."

"It is so cheap, so effective, so pleasant and so promptly curative, while it is free from sedative and narcotic drugs, that it is an ideal syrup for children and adults of all ages. I will conclude by wishing you the best success in the sales of your most excellent Mentho-Laxene. I remain, very respectfully yours, Mrs. A. Maroney, 1409 Cubbage St., Carnegie, Pa."

Wife Reports Arkansan Missing.

Mrs. Lulu Boyce, Box 521, Blytheville, Ark., has asked the Post-Dispatch for assistance in finding her husband, Arthur L. Boyce. She writes that she has not heard from him since Jan. 29, when he bought a railroad ticket for Jonesboro, Ark., saying he would write to her. He has relatives here.

SURVEYS OF CITY SEWER SYSTEM ARE STARTED

Plans to Be Made for Construction and Reconstruction Work Under Bond Issue Program.

Surveys of the sewer system of the city have been started by department engineers of the Board of Public Service to make plans for construction and reconstruction work proposed under the $8,000,000 bond issue for sewers, voted as part of the $87,372,500 public improvement program authorized Feb. 9.

Starting of the sewer improvements will depend on the decision made by the Citizens' Supervisory Committee on the order in which the public improvements will be built in the 10-year construction program.

The condition of some of the older sewers is such that there should be no delay in starting work, Director Fisk, of the Department of Streets and Sewers, stated yesterday. Minor breaks are occuring almost daily, he said, in urging the sewer project should be among the first undertaken.

At present the city has 887.6 miles of sewers, of which 180 miles were built between 1850 and 1877. Most of the sewers built in that period were of brick, with lime mortar to hold the bricks together, and breaks and washouts occur with great frequency in these sewers, Fisk said.

All Sections of City Affected.

The proposed improvements affect practically all sections of the city, through reconstruction to safeguard against breaks, construction of sewers to care for districts not now sewered, and construction of relief lines to relieve overcharging in districts where the sewers are inadequate to carry the load in storm periods.

Breaks in the old sewers in the downtown districts may produce heavy property damage, Fisk said. When these breaks occur at a considerable depth, undermining of the streets and scouring out of great holes extending to the foundations of adjoining buildings may result before the break is discovered, he said. This could happen, he added, when the sewer line was not blocked sufficiently to force the water up through the street at once.

He mentioned the St. Charles street sewer, four by five feet, built in 1853, as one needing early attention. At points in the downtown district this sewer is from 20 to 35 feet below the street level. A bad break, he said, might cause the undermining of building foundations, except those built with deep piers, before it could be checked. The Olive street sewer was also mentioned as a hazard, due to its condition. A total of $2,550,000 is to be spent on such reconstruction in all sections of the city.

The city sewers discharge through 125 outlets, 64 into the Mississippi River and 61 into the River des Peres. Many of the Mississippi River outlets are in such condition that heavy storms may cause further breaks and washing out of land on the river front. The sewer plans provide $300,000 will be spent in repairing these outlets.

Surveying parties were at work the last two days in the district where the North Baden public sewer is to be built, at a cost of $450,000. This sewer will serve a district north of West Florissant avenue and extending from the city limits east to Baden. This district now contains a population of more than 5000 without adequate facilities.

Another district without adequate facilities which will get a public sewer, at a cost of $160,000, is west of King's highway and south of Arsenal street.

Eleven relief sewers of varying sizes, estimated to cost $4,390,000, will be built in various existing sewer districts of the city. The districts lie in a territory between O'Fallon Park on the north, Meramec street on the south, the Mississippi River on the east and Taylor avenue and King's highway on the west. The districts include the Southern Arsenal, Ohio, Joab, Rock Springs, Western Mill Creek, Camp Springs, Biddle, Elliot, Warne, Western Rocky Branch, Ferry street and Prairie avenue.

Another condition that will be remedied through the bond issue work is the flooding of streets and low ground, during heavy rains, in more than 75 areas in the city. These areas range in size from one or two blocks to a dozen blocks. This flooding has resulted from inadequate street inlets for carrying off the storm drainage.

Approximately 1000 additional inlets are to be installed, or [illegible] ones enlarged, as soon as a [illegible] the work is authorized by the Supervisory Committee. The cost of this inlet installation is estimated at $150,000.

The Orpheum's featured act is that of Karyl Norman, advertised as "The Creole Fashion Plate." He is a female impersonator of the Eltinge type, who sings, dances and wears opulent gowns. Next week the Orpheum will present Germaine Mitty and Eugene Tillio, dancers, who made a sensation with the Ziegfeld "Follies" a few seasons ago in New York. The Woodward Players, at the Garrick, are presenting Maude Fulton's "The Brat," with Miss Virginia Springer making her debut as a member of the stock company.

George Kelly, author of "The Torch Bearers," is a brother of Walter Kelly, the famous "Virginia Judge" of vaudeville. It is related that some years ago George Kelly was present at an amateur theatrical performance in a Western city. The leading woman's acting was particularly atrocious. After the play, Kelly heard a local estheta gushing over her. "We're going to lose you," he purred. "New York will claim you." This impressed Kelly as a comic situation, which he developed into his first full-length play. It was produced last August at the Little Theater, New York.

"The Torch Bearers."

ACCORDING to the story, a business man returns to his home in a middle Western town to find that his wife has become infatuated with amateur theatricals. In fact, a few minutes after his arrival, a tragedy is rehearsed in the living room of his house, under the direction of Mme. J. Duro Pempinelli, who once wrote a magazine article on "Method in Acting as Distinguished From Technique." This act has been praised as possessing "sufficient wit to furnish almost all the playhouses in New York."

The second act shows the performance itself, and satire becomes burlesque. Every mishap possible occurs; cues are missed, properties are forgotten, scenery falls down, lines are fumbled, one of the actors faints, an auditor is borne forth unconscious, and the villain loses half his mustache. In the third act the author delivers his "message"—a preachment against theatrical amateurs in general. The original cast is promised, including Mary Boland as leading woman. One of the producers is Miss Rosalie Stewart, a former St. Louis girl, who has risen to a place of power in vaudeville management.

"Gold Diggers" is slang for the pretty salamanders of the show world who are represented as "digging" their gentleman friends for all they can get and paying back as little as they can—except at the muzzle of a marriage license. There are three acts, entitled "When they get up in the morning," "When they stay up till morning," and "The morning after."

Story of "The Gold Diggers."

SUCH thread of story as there is concerns the efforts of a millionaire uncle, a rigid moralist, to rescue his nephew from the clutches of a show girl whom he supposes to be an insatiable harpy, but who turns out to be a domestic saint and whom he promptly marries himself. The nephew is really in love with another girl, whom the supposed harpy has been befriending. In the present cast are Charles Hammond, David Glassford, Thomas M. Reynolds, Day Manson, Harry Alexander, Richard W. Haines, Harry D. Shook, Walter Haggerty, Lorraine Lally, Winifred Barry, Cora Williams, Daisy Rudd, Ursule Hollande, Edna Bennett, Katherine Walsh and others. This week's matinees will be on Thursday (Washington's Birthday) and Saturday.

The American's announcement for next week is "Captain Applejack," with Wallace Eddinger and Mary Nash, which will be followed by George White's "Scandals," with Paul Whiteman's Cafe de Paris orchestra, W. C. Fields, Lester Allen and others. Walter Hampden will play at the Shubert-Jefferson during the week of March 4, in "The Taming of the Shrew," "Hamlet," "Macbeth," "The Merchant of Venice," "Romeo and Juliet," Charles Rann Kennedy's "The Servant in the House," and Philip Massinger's the storm drainage.

Approximately 1000 additional in-lets are to be installed, or existing ones enlarged, as soon as a start on the work is authorized by the Supervisory Committee. The cost of this inlet installation is estimated at $150,000.

"Torch Bearers" and "Gold Diggers" Purport to Picture Stage Life

Former a Witty Satire on Amateur Theatricals; Latter Reveals Show Girls as Virtuously Plundering the "Johns."

IT chances that two comedies which purport to depict stage life, amateur and professional, will be shown here this week, both opening tonight. "The Torch Bearers," by George Kelly, a satire on uplifters of the drama and the "Little Theater" movement, comes to the Shubert-Jefferson. "The Gold Diggers," Avery Hopwood's most prosperous opus, arrives at the American, more than three years after its initial production at the Lyceum Theater, New York, on Sept. 30, 1919. David Belasco's production is promised intact, with at least three members of the original cast. These, however, are not the principals, who were Ina Claire, Bruce McRae and Jobyna Howland. By a coincidence, Miss Claire and Mr. McRae appeared here last week in "The Awful Truth." Miss Claire's role is taken by Gertrude Vanderbilt.

The Orpheum's featured act is that of Karyl Norman, advertised as "The Creole Fashion Plate." He is a female impersonator of the Eltinge type, who sings, dances and wears opulent gowns. Walter Hampden will play at the Shubert-Jefferson during the week of March 4, in "The Taming of the Shrew," "Hamlet," "Macbeth," "The Merchant of Venice," "Romeo and Juliet," Charles Rann Kennedy's "The Servant in the House," and Philip Massinger's Elizabethan comedy, "A New Way to Pay Old Debts."

At the Orpheum.

IN addition to Karyl Norman, the Orpheum will present one of the funniest of vaudeville teams, William and Wolfus, in "From Soup to Notes;" Earl Lindsay in "Dance Creations of 1923," a revue of seven scenes with a chorus of eight girls; the Weaver brothers, handsaw musicians, in "Arkansas Travelers;" Percy Bronson and Winnie Baldwin, in a new skit called "A Happy Medium," by Bryan Foy and Monte Price; Vincent O'Donnell, diminutive vocalist; Hall, Erminie and Brice, in "A Night on Broadway," and Mehan's trained dogs.

"The Brat," at the Garrick, tells of a writing member of an aristocratic family who takes into his home a girl from nowhere as a study for his literary work. She is quite able to hold her own against the womenfolk, and finally carries off the younger son to wed and reform him. Miss Whitmore returns to the cast in the name part. Miss Springer, a Missouri girl, who graduated with honors from the American Academy of Dramatic Art in New York, and who has played in stock, vaudeville and the films, joins the company this week to play sec-

Ethel Barrymore's Herself Again in Sutro Comedy

By HEYWOOD BROUN,
Drama Editor of the New York World.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.

ETHEL BARRYMORE comes up smiling. Her appearance Monday night at the Longacre in Alfred Sutro's play, "The Laughing Lady," was triumphant. This comedy takes her out of the night air and into sophisticated surroundings where she is entirely at home. The play falls entirely within her range.

As a matter of fact, the Sutro play calls for only a small part of Miss Barrymore's equipment. There is ample opportunity for a display of her admirable talents in comedy, the wistful background which animates comedy, and the tug of feeling tightly reined. We felt, however, that it was a pity that a woman who creates, rather more than anybody else on the stage, the illusion of downright courage and moral honesty should be called upon to play a character who turns out to be one of the most odious prigs we have ever seen on the stage. Fortunately, the revelation of the flabbiness of Lady Marjorie is reserved until the last act, and even when it happened we didn't believe it for a moment.

Dramatically it at least served the purpose of providing us with an altogether unlooked for surprise. Mr. Sutro has written an exceedingly deft and sparkling comedy and we went along with almost no suspicion that he was a hopelessly muddle-headed moralist until the thing broke with the suddenness of a thunderstorm.

The Wife's Proposal.

BRIEFLY, we have a young English woman who is divorced by her husband on grounds which are circumstantial but untrue. The plaintiff realizes her innocence as soon as he has had his day in court. He also comes to know that he is violently in love with his wife, and, in fact, he proposes remarriage. "You can't have your cake and divorce it, too," says Lady Marjorie. But she has other reasons which make her unwilling to go back to the same husband. He bored her intolerably. And in the mean time she has fallen in love with the brilliant middle-aged lawyer who cross-examined her so relentlessly during the trial. He is equally in love with her, but unfortunately he is married to a woman who has shaped and made his whole career.

Mrs. Farr, the lawyer's wife (magnificently played by Katharine Emmett), comes to Lady Marjorie to discuss the situation. She admits that she loves Farr piteously, but she adds that the thing which bothers her most is the effect his marriage to Lady Marjorie might have upon his career. Her solution of the difficulty is that things shall go on outwardly as before and that Farr and Lady Marjorie shall have an affair. This seemed to us to meet the conditions admirably. We were moved not only at the emotion of Mrs. Farr, but at her sound common sense in dealing with a difficult problem.

To our surprise and horror, Lady Marjorie immediately ceased to act like a reasonable human being. She is outraged at the proposal. Instead of discussing the matter, she begins to talk like a person in a musty play. She befuddles the man who loved her with quibbles such as the suggestion that it isn't love which he feels for her, but an emotion which goes by an uglier name. We assume that Lady Marjorie had lust in mind.

What They Are Doing in the Movie Studios

A pistol duel in which no shots are fired may sound like a paradox that is essentially lacking in the dramatic. In "The Enemies of Women," Cosmopolitan Productions new super feature, however, just such a duel takes place and it is said to give to the screen one of the most dramatic scenes ever filmed.

The principals in this strange duel in the picturization of Vicente Blasco Ibanez's great romance are Lionel Barrymore, who portrays the leading role of Prince Lubimoff, and William "Buster" Collier Jr., who plays Gaston, soldier son of Alicia, Duchess de Delille, with whom Lubimoff is in love.

Believing Gaston to be a youthful lover of Alicia, whose vanity causes her to hide the fact that she has a 16-year-old son, the jealous Lubimoff insults the youth. The field of honor is resorted to as a means of settling the affair and pistols are the weapons chosen. Lubimoff and Gaston pace off, but the latter shoots into the ground. As Lubimoff is about to fire his eyes catch the medal-bedecked breast of his youthful opponent. Overcome at the thought that he is about to fire upon a man who has fought for him and other slackers, he throws away his pistol and dashes madly for his villa.

Featured with Barrymore in "The Enemies of Women" is Alma Rubens. Others in the cast, in addition to Collier, include Pedro de Cordoba, W. H. Thompson, Gareth Hughes, Gladys Hulette, Mario Ma-

"The Christian," "Nobody's Money" Featured in Films

"The Voice From the Minaret," "Forsaking All Others" and "The Town That Forgot God" Also Showing Here.

"THE CHRISTIAN," adopted from Hal Caine's famous story which was one of the notable successes of the speaking stage 20 years ago is the feature picture at the Delmonte for the week starting today. As a prologue a choir of 30 voices will be heard.

For "The Christian" director and principals were sent to England to make exteriors in London, at Cambridge, at the Derby at Epsom Downs and on the Isle of Man, where the climaxes of the story take place. The author gave his assistance to the director in obtaining the correct atmosphere, and in getting the consent of the London officials to photograph the big mob scene in Trafalgar Square—the first time such permission had ever been granted.

The story of "The Christian" is well known to readers and playgoers—it concerns the efforts of John Storm, become a Christian Socialist, to live as Christ would live, and his struggle to free himself from his love for Glory Quayle—he meets the usual end that comes to all reformers and prophets—is mobbed to death.

Richard Dix plays the lead and opposite him is Mae Busch. Other players are Phyllis Haver, Gareth Hughes, Mahlon Hamilton, Joseph Dowling, Claude Gillingwater, Cyril Chadwick, Beryl Mercer, Harry Northrup, Robert Bolder, Milla Davenport, Alice Hesse and Aileen Pringle.

Norma Talmadge and Eugene O'Brien are reunited in "The Voice From the Minaret," this week's offering at the Grand Central, West End Lyric and Capitol Theaters. The picture is based on the novel by Robert Hitchens, author of "The Garden of Allah."

The story has as its various backgrounds the society life of Bombay, the romantic sands of the desert, and a somber English home where a husband and wife, hating each other, wage a duel of love and wits. The triangle revolves about an English Lord in Bombay, his beautiful wife and a young man who has pledged his life to the church.

When the wife learns of her husband's infidelity she leaves him to return to England, but meets the hero on the ship and decides to make a short trip with him into the desert on a missionary venture. Here they fall deeply in love, the woman ready to forget conventions and the man eager to forget his vow to the church. They are saved by a Bishop who appeals to the woman to return to her husband.

Later they meet in England, when the young man occupies a pulpit. The husband grows suspicious and lays a plot to trap them. This leads to a dramatic climax.

Arthur Geary, Municipal Opera tenor, appears at the Grand Central in "Bits of Opera."

The Missouri's Own Jazz Band of Forty is featured at that theater this week.

The principal picture will be "Nobody's Money," a Paramount comedy, starring Jack Holt and Wanda Hawley. Holt has the role of a supposed book agent who helps out two young writers who have got themselves into trouble through the creation of an imaginative author. The book agent and his pal, Eddie, as his secretary, take command of the situation. After a long succession of humorous events he comes into possession of $20,000, which proves to be nobody's money. Julia Faye has an important part. Stuart Barrie plays the novel organ solo, "When Francis Dances With Me." In addition to the special jazz concert, the 40-piece band plays the "William Tell" overture. An added attraction is the appearance of Mort Livingston, tenor.

"Forsaking All Others," a Universal seven-reel feature, starring Colleen Moore and Cullen Landis, and Baby Peggy, the wonder child of the screen, in her first screen drama, "Peg of the Movies," forms the double program for this week at the Rivoli Theater.

"Forsaking All Others" is a dramatic story of mother love which was so great it could not share a son's affection with any other woman. June Elvidge, Sam de Grasse and David Torrance are in the cast with important roles.

Baby Peggy in "Peg of the Movies" gives her impressions of Charlie Chaplin, Harold Lloyd and other prominent screen players. Three other short novelty subjects are also on the Rivoli program.

"The Town that Forgot God," in which features the screen's greatest storm scene, opens a second week at the Liberty.

Recitals in Lead as Orchestra Makes Tour

WITH the Symphony Orchestra absent this week for concerts in Jefferson City and Kansas City, musical interest will center about a recital to be given at the Odeon tomorrow night by Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, and a duo-piano recital to be presented Saturday night, also at the Odeon, by Guy Maier and Lee Pattison, whose appearance last season with the orchestra caused much favorable comment.

Prior to its departure, the orchestra will give a popular program this afternoon at the Odeon, with Mrs. Rose Goldsmith Mortimer, soprano, as soloist. She will sing the Massenet aria, "Il est doux, il est bon," from "Herodiade," and a group of songs. The orchestral selections will include Thomas' overture to "Raymond," Bizet's first suite, "L'Arlesienne;" Tschaikowsky's "Elegie," and Chabrier's Rhapsody, "Espagna."

The orchestra will give matinee and evening performances Wednesday in Jefferson City, presenting Michel Gusikoff and H. Max Steindel as soloists. The Kansas City concerts will be on Thursday afternoon, for children, and Friday night. Pablo Casals, 'cellist, will be soloist at the evening concert, playing the Saint-Saens concerto in A Minor, Op. 33. The orchestral number will be the "Academic" Festival Overture of Brahms, Schubert's "Unfinished" symphony, the Strauss tone-poem, "Death and Transfiguration," and Chabrier's "Espagna."

The orchestra will return Saturday morning for the fourth Post-Dispatch concert for children, at the Missouri Theater. The next regular concerts fall on March 2 and 3. A Wagnerian program will be played, with Mme. Margarete Matzenauer as soloist.

Schumann-Heink's Program.

THE program to be given by Mme. Schumann-Heink is announced as follows: Recitative and aria, from "La Clemenza di Tito," Mozart; "Hear Me, Ye Winds and Waves," Handel; "In the Silence of Night," Rachmaninoff; "Thy Warning Is Good," Grieg; "Der Wanderer" and "Heidenroeslein," Schubert; "Traum Durch die Daemmerung," Strauss; "Mutter an der Wiege," Loewe; Waltraute's scene from "Goetterdaemmerung," Wagner; "Spinnerliedchen," from the Reimann collection, and several songs in English. Charles Carver, basso, will assist with a group of airs, and Katharine Hoffman will be at the piano.

The program promised by Messrs. Maier and Pattison ranges from classic to jazz. It includes the Bach-Bauer Fantasia and Fugue, in A Minor; Franck's Prelude, Fugue and Variations, Saint-Saens' Scherzo, Op. 87, and Variations on a Theme by Beethoven; Casella's "Pupazetti," in three movements—Serenade, Berceuse and Polke; Rachmaninoff's "Barcarolle," Arensky's Valse and Scherzo, Edward Burlingame Hill's "Jazz Study" and Iljinsky's "The Orgy."

A paper on "How Composers Write" will be read before the Morning Etude Club Wednesday morning at Baldwin's Hall by Lillian Craig Coffman, who will present a group of her own works. Compositions by Anna Craig Bates and Clara E. Thoms will also be given.

Child Prodigy to Be Heard.

A 10-YEAR-OLD pianist, Frances Elizabeth Emberson of Columbia, Mo., will be presented at Hotel Chase Saturday afternoon, under the auspices of the Music Department of the Women's Chamber of Commerce, in joint recital with Mrs. Charlotte Burton Stocton, violinist, and Miss Concordia Bode, vocalist, both of St. Louis. The child has been a piano pupil since the age of six. She is a daughter of R. H. Emberson of Missouri University.

The soloists for the Pageant Choral Society's production of Gounod's "Redemption," on March 13, at the Odeon, will be: Mrs. Karl Kimmel, soprano; Miss Thelma Hayman, contralto; Richard Crooks, tenor, and Richard Hale, baritone. The two former are St. Louisans, and the latter are New Yorkers. • • • Miss Isa Kremer, a noted interpreter of ballads in many languages, will be presented in a recital at the Odeon on the evening of March 2.

The prize in the annual song contest at Lindenwood College has been awarded by the music faculty to Miss Ruth Alexander of Ardmore, Ok., for a setting of verses written by Miss Margaret Taggart of Wichita, Kan.

Charles Galloway will give his monthly organ recital of the Washington University extension course at Graham Memorial chapel, on the university campus, from 3 to 4 p. m. today. His program includes Bollins' "Concert Overture in C Minor," Wallace's Choral Fantasia on "Heinlein," Rheinberger's Sonata in F minor No. 7; Mailly's "Invocation," and Franck's "Piece Heroique."

"Miss Amie Guth Punshon, who was recently a soloist at a symphony popular concert, will sing the role of Carmen with the Schubert Club of East St. Louis, tomorrow afternoon.

but she was far too much of a lady to say it. Lady Marjorie does demean herself to use the words "mistress" and "furtive," but only through clenched teeth.

Four People Unhappy.

HOWEVER, Marjorie trips over all these words completely and is frightened by them into the silliest arrangement possible. She decides to go back to the husband whom she does not love, and she sends the ardent lawyer back to the wife whom he does not love. We can imagine ever so many things more calculated to soothe the feelings of a wife than to have her husband slink home and say, "I'm going to stick to you because she doesn't want me."

Likewise it is difficult to think up any torture more excruciating for a man than to live with a wife who is absolutely convinced that he is an utter fool. Through the ingenuity of Lady Marjorie the unhappiness of all four people in the muddle is assured for life. And upon this Mr. Sutro blandly brings his curtain down in the seeming belief that he has made a contribution to the sum of human wisdom and felicity.

However, we are dealing at somewhat excessive length with a small though important phase of the play. Before the moralizing sets in there is abundant wit, a fast-moving story and a succession of strikingly dramatic situations. An excellent company has been gathered for Miss Barrymore. McKay Morris is exceptionally fine as the dull husband of Lady Marjorie. Katharine Emmett has fine feeling, and there is a sharp humorous sketch by the brilliant Violet Kemble Cooper. Cyril Keightly is a little below this, but plenty good enough as Farr the lawyer. It's a good play, but poor doctrine.

"Rita Coventry," After Julian Street's Novel, Monday Night.

A COMEDY dealing with the tantrums of a prima donna will be produced Monday night at the Bijou Theater. It is entitled "Rita Coventry," and has been adapted by Hubert Osborne from a novel of the same name by Julian Street. The leading role calls for a diva who can sing, and in this part Miss Dorothy Francis has been cast. In her support will be Luis Alberni, Eugene Powers and Grace Filkins.

On Monday night also the following openings are due: "The Sporting Thing to Do," by Thompson Buchanan and starring Emily Stevens, at the Ritz; "Hail and Farewell," by William Hurlburt, at the Morosco, with Florence Reed leading the cast; "You and I," a Harvard prize play, by Philip Barry, at the Belmont, with H. B. Warner and Lucille Watson, and "The Lower Depths," by Gorky, to be repeated by the Moscow Art Theater players at Jolson's Fifty-ninth Street Theater. On Tuesday night, "Anything Might Happen," a farce comedy by Edgar Selwyn, is to be presented at the Comedy, with Roland Young and Estelle Winwood in leading parts.

At the fourth annual dinner of the Theater Guild, to be held next month, it is reported a proposal will be made that 2000 theater-goers each contribute $100 for the purchase of a new theater for this organization. The Garrick is too small to afford proper working space. . . . J. Hartley Manners recently took a thrust at the interests controlling the theaters, describing them as "glorified janitors." It is understood that Manners had to post a guarantee of about $4000 a week in order to obtain the Vanderbilt Theater for "Humoresque," in which Laurette Taylor is to appear in two weeks.

"Johannes Kreisler" Closes.

THE Selwyns are making a fortune for themselves and Channing Pollock in "The Fool," but are said to have lost $65,000 on "Johannes Kreisler," which was withdrawn tonight. Other plays which fell by the wayside this evening were "Listening In," "Mike Angelo," "The Humming Bird," "Passions for Men" and "Jetta's Atonement."

The Equity Players have a success in "Why Not?" by Jesse Lynch Williams, which will move a week from Monday to the National, supplanting "Will Shakspeare," which is to conclude at that time. . . The next Equity play will be "Roger Bloomer," by John Howard Lawson, with Henry Hull in the title role. . . . Porter Emerson Brown has a new play, "Ladies for Sale," which is now shaping out of town. It deals with pauperized aristocrats in Vienna after the war, and the principal part is played by Carlotta Monterey.

Morris Gest announces that he is bringing Max Reinhardt to America next November, to direct six plays in English, with American casts. . . . "Peer Gynt," at the Garrick is a hit. The Garrick is sold out for several weeks in advance. . . The Moscow Art Theater, during the present week, encountered its first rough going in the matter of attendance since its arrival here. There were rows of empty seats instead of files of standees.

The Russians, by the way, when asked what American play they would like to see, made signs for Eugene O'Neill. So a special performance of "The Hairy Ape" will be given Monday night at the Plymouth, with Louis Wolheim again in the stokehold. It is stated that O'Neill's plays are to be seen this year in London, Dublin, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, Rome, Budapest, Madrid, Stockholm, Moscow and Amsterdam.

FIERY, ITCHY SKIN QUICKLY SOOTHED WITH SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied, the itching stops, and after two or three applications the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

A small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur may be had at any good drug store.

Syrup Pepsin Loved By Hosts of Babies

Half a teaspoonful will make a fretful youngster happy and playful

THE mother has her choice of many remedies for her baby's minor ills, but she should be careful which remedy she selects lest she do the child harm. What might be safe for herself may do injury to an infant. You will find that if the little one cries and doesn't want to play that its bowels are constipated. First look carefully to the diet and give the child one-half teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You will then see results in a few hours. You will not have to force it on babies or children: they actually ask for it, it is so pleasant-tasting and free from griping.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics. The ingredients are stated on the package. It is a mild, gentle vegetable laxative that everyone finds effective and pleasant. It is better for you and yours than purgatives, coal-tar drugs, or salt waters and powders, which may concentrate the blood and dry up the skin; or mercurial calomel, which may salivate and loosen the teeth.

Use a safe laxative like Syrup Pepsin, and especially for the children, for invalids, growing girls, nursing mothers, elderly people, and persons recently operated upon who need bowel action with the least strain. Mrs. Lillian Brenington of Woodruff, S. C., always gives her children Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and Mrs. A. E. Blondin of Muskegon, Mich., will not have any other laxative in her home. Your druggist will supply you, and it only costs a cent a dose. Try it in constipation, colic, biliousness, flatulency, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds.

ANY FAMILY MAY TRY IT FREE
Thousands of parents are asking themselves, "Where can I find a trustworthy laxative that anyone in the family can use when constipated?" I urge you to try Syrup Pepsin. I will gladly provide a liberal free sample bottle, sufficient for an adequate test. Write me where to send it. Address Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 515 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois. Do it now!

Have You Ever Caught Fish in the Choppy Seas Off the Florida Coast?
It requires skill, patience and perseverance to hook and land one of the large eight-foot sail-fish weighing about 70 pounds.
To do this in a rough or choppy sea from the rear of a small gasoline launch, with a regulation light tackle, 15 thread line and a nine-ounce rod, is no easy task; that is why it is so interesting and exciting.
To be successful in one's daily work or business one must be just as interested and must have skill, patience and perseverance just the same as in fishing.

WHY PILES SHOULD BE CURED

Piles do not appear suddenly, but creep upon the unsuspecting victim like an assassin at midnight. Often before one has any suspicion of its presence, the disease has gained great headway in the system. One symptom after another appears—they may at first be slight, but nevertheless they pave the way for Piles and a life of almost endless misery. Frequently even the slightest change from the normal mode of living opens wide the system to the inroads of this treacherous disease.

If you are sedentary in your habits—if you do not take sufficient exercise to keep every portion of the body in proper working order—if you are accustomed to late hours and high living—if your bowels do not move regularly every day—or if you are afflicted with Indigestion or Dyspepsia—any one of these is sufficient to cause and promote the growth of Piles.

Whether from one cause or another the outcome is sure and unalterable, unless the Piles are quickly cured. If you now have Piles, and allow them to continue their treacherous course without interruption—and unless a cure is quickly effected, they will quite likely develop into Incurable Diseases, such as Ulceration of the Bowels, Cancer and Consumption—any one of which is extremely dangerous.

DR. HENRICH'S TREATMENT FOR PILES

is entirely different from any of the so-called "Pile Cures" which make their appearance from time to time. Invariably these salves, suppositories, tablets, etc., are for external application only and in some instances they will relieve the pain and suffering for the time being, but the Pile Tumors are still there—the pain will reappear as soon as the effects of the application gradually wear away. Piles Can Be Cured permanently only by my Mild Medical Method, a Direct Treatment, which removes every Pile Tumor from the system by going to the root of the disease. I always obtain prompt and satisfactory results, because my searching examination brings to light the nature and extent of the trouble. My experience in Curing Piles and other Rectal Diseases extends over a long period. My facilities are of the best and my Treatment is most perfect. So remember that "The Henrich Cure is Safe and Sure."

My charges are very reasonable and in reach of any working man or woman. I especially invite those men or women, who have been treated without results elsewhere, to call and be examined. Examination and Advice is FREE and carries with it no obligation to engage my services. Call as soon as possible, any day except Sunday.

DRINK WATER IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Tablespoonful of Salts if Back Pains or Bladder Is Irritated.

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in the efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges.

To help neutralize these irritating acids; to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

A SIMPLE WAY TO REMOVE DANDRUFF

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

CLEARS COMPLEXION AS IF BY MAGIC

No Longer Necessary to Be a Victim of Unpopularity on Account of a Bad Complexion.

Very often a simple, blackhead or irritation of the skin is simply nature's way of warning you that you are careless, and is reminding you that you must take care of your skin, clean it of the dust and grease which collect in the pores, as they can throw off impurities from the system, which otherwise collect, and then fester, causing blackheads, pimples and other face ruiners.

Women who endured these distressing things for years and who never seemed to be able to find anything which would really get rid of them are now using Black and White Cleansing Cream because it really keeps every one of the little pores cleaned out, healthy and active in getting rid of the things which ordinarily cause pimples and sore skin.

By using Black and White Cleansing Cream regularly you make your skin soft, smooth and lovely. Then, instead of putting on just any face powder in the mornings, first use the Peroxide Cream, which keeps the skin clear, free from surface grease and makes your Black and White Face Powder stay on evenly instead of making your face look "pasty" and "over powdered."

German Play Uses Papier-Mache Costumes

BERLIN, Jan. 25.

THE play of the moment here is "Savonarola," produced by Carl Meinhard and Rudolph Bernauer, authors of "Johannes Kreisler," a drama in 42 scenes now running in New York. It is not so much the matter of the play as the manner of its presentaion which is interesting and original. The stage settings and costume designs are by Paul Chelitschev, a Russian. Some critics have denounced the production with all the violence at their command while others praise it extravagantly.

The dresses which the characters wear are solid structures, built either of starched material stretched over wires, or, more probably, of papier-mache or cardboard. The folds made by drapery, the shadows thrown by light, and solid objects like rosaries and swords, are painted on them. Everything is designed for pictorial effect, and so long as a character remains motionless all is well. But as soon as any attempt at motion is made this kind of garb verges on the ridiculous. The actor's movements are hampered; he appears stiff and ungainly. Some, in fact, are not made to move at all.

Pope Alexander VI is concealed within a painted effigy of a bloated, seated figure, far larger than life-size, and only the actor's head and hands are seen. One believed, when one first beholds the Sforza holding a council of state, that he, too, was a "fixture." Upon his head was balanced a wheel-shaped embellishment at least two feet in diameter, pierced with a spoke-pattern and painted to represent metal. His body was encased in a huge suit of impressionistic armor, all curves and angles and jutting corners. But he did manage to stagger, as it seemed, to his feet at the end of his speech, and he even turned his back upon us to show that he was complete from whatever angle he was beheld.

Garment Sticks Up.

SAVONAROLA himself wore a costume which was not quite so grotesque and monumental, and which allowed him some freedom of movement. When he walked or stood he made an imposing figure, but I think it was a mistake to allow him to lie down in his cell, for then his garment refused to lie down with him and remained stuck up from his feet like a crinoline.

Chelitschev in other respects conforms to the conventions with which graphic art of the same school has made us familiar. One shoulder of a suit of armor is angular, the other curved. One Wellington boot has a crease down the front like a trouser-leg, the other is cylindrical. All feet are larger than those of the largest policeman ever seen, and are shaped like bricks. The Pope's crown is bent sideways, and the courtier's sword is twisted into the shape of the letter S. It is evident, from this one achievement, that Chelitschev has clear and definite ideas of what he wants to do, and shows much skill in execution.

The first scene is described as the garden of the Dominican Monastery at Bolonga. No garden is to be seen, however, for the whole stage is in darkness except for three spotlights which shine on Savonarola and his two companions. All three face the audience, standing like statues, and Savonarola delivers a long speech. The time, he says, is out of joint and he is the man to set it right. The Prior opens a gate for him and he stalks out into the world to reform it, followed by his faithful adherent, Brother Sylvestro.

Duke and Pope.

THE next scene shows a room in the palace at Milan. Seated within a small, dome-shaped structure tucked away in the extreme corner of the stage we see Ludovico Sforza, Duke of Milan. We gather from him that Savonarola has begun his campaign for he announces to his two courtiers that the interfering monk must be crushed. He is also of the opinion that the Pope must be crushed, and that the King of France, who is about to invade Italy, will succeed.

By a transfer of the spotlights to the opposite extreme corner of the stage we are then taken to the Vatican, where Pope Alexander VI is seated on his throne. His views on the King of France naturally do not coincide with those of Sforza, and as far as Savonarola is concerned, he declares that he does not propose to do anything. He explains that he is old and fond of a quiet life.

Then follows a big scene, for which the whole stage is used and adequately lighted. The little dome-shaped thrones in which sat the Pope and Sforza still remain in the corners. But the Pope's has been swung round on a pivot, so that it now looks solid, and Sforza's is inhabited as to the upper story by three Florentine nobles. The scene represents Florence, now under the dominion of Savonarola. Crowds group themselves statuesquely about the stage, on steps, and along a bridge which stretches high up across the rear of the stage. People pass slowly. A fine lady is (symbolically) stripped of her finery. A gambler has his dice taken away from him. A worthy worker preaches the simple life. The nobles in the upper story angrily draw a curtain and are lost to view.

Savonarola's Curse.

THEN Savonarola himself appears and curses the citizens and the city in good set terms for 10 minutes by the clock. He reduces the adoring crowd to a groveling mass at his feet, and the curtain falls. It rises again on the same scene. The King of France has arrived in Florence. Savonarola persuades him that his true mission is to conquer the Turks, and so succeeds in ridding Florence of him.

Up to this point Savonarola is in the ascendant. Now begins his fall. The author, however, shows us no steps in the transition. After another brief visit to the Pope, who is at last persuaded to take action against the monk, we are shown Savonarola in his cell at Florence, sick and overcome with remorse. His own announcement that he has been trying to do God's work by the devil's means, provides the only clew to his downfall. The populace, now his bitter enemies, besiege the cloister, and he gives himself up. In the last scene he and his two followers are condemned to death by the Pope's emissary and are led—not away, but down steps descending through the stage—to execution.

WHAT THEY ARE DOING IN THE MOVIE STUDIOS

Joroni, Paul Panzer and Betty Bouton.

Alice Brady and a company of Paramount players recently returned from a fur trading post in Northern Canada where they had been for more than a month making scenes in "The Snow Bride." The company worked in the vicinity of Tem-Kip, a fur camp on Lake Temiskaming, 500 miles northwest of Montreal, in temperatures ranging from 30 to 40 degrees below zero. Frost-bitten noses, ears, fingers and toes were not uncommon among the members of the troupe.

Almost immediately after completing "The Glimpses of the Moon," Bebe Daniels had to be operated upon for appendicitis. The operation was performed at the Roosevelt Hospital, New York.

Anna Q. Nilsson and Cyril Chadwick will complete the quartet of principals in Herbert Brenon's first production for Paramount, "The Rustle of Silk." Betty Compson and Conway Tearle will be featured. Miss Nilsson has been a featured member of the casts of several recent pictures, including "Pink Gods" and Cecil B. de Mille's latest, "Adam's Rib." She will play the role of Lady Feo in the screen version of Cosmo Hamilton's novel.

Anita Stewart has signed a contract to be featured by Cosmopolitan Productions and has gone to Los Angeles to begin work. The first picture in which she will appear is "The Love Piker." William Norris, who created such a sensation as King Louis XII in "When Knighthood Was in Flower," and who also plays Cappy Ricks in "The Go-Getter," will have one of the principal roles.

Earle Williams, Alice Calhoun, Wanda Hawley and Cullen Landis will have the principal roles in "Masters of Men," Vitagraph's coming special adapted from Morgan Robertson's great sea novel.

Colleen Moore, the young leading woman in "The Ninety and Nine," studies classical dancing in odd moments. Which probably is why screen critics praise her graceful pantomine.

"Babe" Hardy, the "10-ton comedian," who has played in many comedies, is in the cast of Larry Semon's "No Wedding Bells."

LECTURES ON SOCIAL SERVICE

Course to Open March 1, When Dr. G. B. Mangold Will Speak.

A course of lectures will be given for women at the Missouri School of Social Economy, 2221 Locust street, on Thursday morning at 10:30, beginning March 1. Registrations for the course may be made at the school this week. The first lecture will be by Dr. George B. Mangold, director of the School of Social Economy, who will speak on "Child Welfare."

Mrs. H. C. January, executive secretary of the Missouri Consumers' League, will speak on March 15 on "Working Women in Missouri." Other lectures will be by Miss Bessie McClenahan on "Problems of Poverty" and "Social Centers and Settlements," and Miss Catherine Mathews on "Hospital Social Service."

Lovely Hair Growth Now

Miss Lonsdale's hair was nearly gone. Every time she combed or brushed her hair a lot of it came out. The rest was thin and unhealthy.

Numerous treatments, lotions, etc., were tried with little or no benefit until Miss Londale's father got her some KOTALKO. Then all traces of dandruff disappeared, the hair began to grow strong, long and silky. Now at the age of 19 she has beautiful hair.

Women of all ages are amazed at the marvelous power of Kotalko—the true hair grower.

Men who were bald have had amazing results by using Kotalko—the true hair grower. For children's hair it is unequaled. Full directions accompany each box of KOTALKO.

These two portraits are from actual photographs of Mr. John H. Brittain, who had a large bald surface upon his head. He used the wonderful compound, now known as KOTALKO, in its improved form, and a full growth of luxuriant hair was developed. Absolute proofs by affidavits and other data are on file. Many others have testified to similarly wonderful results with the aid of KOTALKO. Get a box today

From Photo of Mrs. Mary Little

SAYS SHE WAS BALD

Several years ago I had lost all my hair. I was bald. My head was as bare and shiny as the outside of a milk bowl, and now at the age of 36 I have hair like you see in the photo.

My scalp had been prescribed for by a doctor and I tried various things but no hair came. Then my head was examined by a hair specialist, who gave me a treatment, but no hair could be made to grow.

One day I saw an advertisement of Kotalko and started using it. Lucky day for me. Soon I saw hairs starting to appear. I said nothing until a little later when others noticed how I was getting a new crop of hair.

The hair grew steadily, in nice, natural shade and silk-like, yet strong.

The photo is just as you asked, my hair being loose. It is well down over my shoulders now. If you had asked for a photo with my hair done up, it would look much nicer, you know. Just imagine me with a bald head, having to put on a wig!

(Signed) MRS. MARY LITTLE.

Matters of Curre
St. Louis Lov

The City Art Museum is to be congratulated upon its newest purchases. All selections have not been completed from the collection of objects brought West for the consideration of the museum, since much time is required in the contemplation of them, and it would be impossible for the board to have made its entire choice of the ancient glassware as well as of the metal work in the short time which has elapsed since the arrival of the objects. However, selections of the ancient metal work and pottery have been made, and these are now the property of the museum.

One of the most important acquisitions is a Sixteenth century enamel plate from the collection of John Edward Tayor. The plate is of metal, enameled on both sides. The pattern is in blue and white, with gilt tracings. This speciment is exceedingly rare.

A pair of Sixth century (A. D.) pottery vases found in Syria also have been purchased. These vaces are of characteristic shape and design, and have a turquoise glaze. They are so similar in shape, size, pattern and material that it is believed they were found in the same tomb, where they had been companion pieces. They will be placed appropriately on either side of the larger Roman vase of similar character, already owned by the museum.

Chinese Girdle Clasp.

One of the largest and finest Chinese gilded-bronze girdle clasps known is the one just procured by the museum. It is an oddly shaped object, fashioned somewhat like an exaggerated shoe-horn. One end evidently was hooked over the girdle, while arrangements of the back of the clasp might indicate that other draperies of a Chinese ceremonial robe was looped through it. The clasp is richly inlaid with turquoise and is quite heavy. It is of the Tang dynasty, (618-906).

Two examples of Mohammedan art of the Thirteenth and Sixteenth centuries are included in the list of new possessions. The first is a mosul candlestick of brass, inlaid with silver. Its base is large and spacious, and may have served as a receptacle. The deep sides of the base are covered with inscriptions from the Koran. The other candlestick, Ispahan, Sixteenth century, is engraved with an all-over design, having inscriptions only around the top. Similar in character is the Hindu Eighteenth century metal bottle, damaskened with silver.

A Chinese silver tazza is interesting. It is shaped like a bowl with a handle protruding from the center of the bottom. The outer surface of the bowl and also the base is covered with lacquer, dark red in color, and carved in intricate patterns. It belongs to the Ming Dynasty. Belonging to the same period is the octagonal steatite cup also purchased. It is a beautifully symmetrical object, of lovely color and fine workmanship.

Two Hindu Necklaces.

Two Hindu necklaces complete the list of positive selections from this group of objects. As has been told, they at one time belonged to the collection of Lockwood De Forest. One is individualized by its clasp of peacock design. Seven strings of tiny pierced gold beads are suspended at various lengths from either side of the heay clasp, allowing the strands of beads to fall in graceful loops of graduated length upon the breast of the wearer. Each of these individual beads is less than a quarter of an inch in diameter, yet each is perfect, and the workmanship finished. The other necklace is a bit less pretentious, although possessing qualities that differ from those of the first. The second nacklace is a series of small placques in wrought gold, in which can be traced a highly conventionalized motif of a bird. Originality is shown here, in that no such bird actually lives, and hence not only the maker's mechanical skill was at work when he executed this necklace, but his imaginative inspiration, as well.

Textiles and Laces.

In gallery 25, textiles and laces recently acquired by the museum are grouped before being dispersed to their various departments. They will remain several weeks in their present location, and then will be re-arranged.

Four Hindu sarees of the eighteenth century have been selected from the lot brought West, and purchased. They are those of the best colors, finest work and in the best state of preservation. The saree is a garment worn in the eighteenth century by Hindu women. It is some 10 or 12 feet in length, a straight strip of cloth about 50 inches in width wound round and round the lower part of the body. One end is ornamented with a border, and it is apparent that it is this end of the cloth which completed the wrapping and which was visible.

The museum now owns an interesting specimen of Chinese petit point embroidery. It is a generous sized material, probably used for an altar cloth. Its colors are vivid and the needlework is easily followed.

The purpose of the collection of laces which the museum is just starting is chiefly educational. An effort will be made to obtain characteristic and typical examples of the best known laces, tracing their evolution. At the present time, three examples of early Flemish lace and three of Louis XV and XVI French, have been obtained from the collection of Prof. Ashley of Amherst, in addition to six important pieces of Italian lace. Three of these are collar pieces, the largest and to many the most

An effort will be made to obtain characteristic and typical examples of the best known laces, tracing their evolution. At the present time, three examples of early Flemish lace and three of Louis XV and XVI French, have been obtained from the collection of [illegible] Ashley of Amherst, in addition to six important pieces of Italian lace. Three of these are collar pieces, the largest and to many the most beautiful of which is the Venetian point plat. Probably worn as a waist front is a fair-sized rectangle of Venetian Coraline lace. It is said to have been originated by a young maiden, whose lover brought her a piece of coral from the sea. Commemorating the fanciful loveliness of the token, she made a pattern in her lace similar to the delicacy of the coral.

Venetian Rose Point Cuffs.

Two Venetian rose point cuffs recently brought from New York complete the collection of laces at the present.

A double panel of cloth decorated in patterns by using the process of wax and dye shows the original batik. This piece is from the Island of Bali, and is of the seventeenth century. Batik was originated in Java three centuries ago, when much decoration of garments and draperies was done by that method.

The progress made by the museum in the past year, and already in 1923, is marked.

Bohnen to Remain Another Week.

On account of several commissions for portraits which Carl Bohnen has received in St. Louis, his visit here will be continued another week, although his exhibition at the Vandervoort galleries has been closed.

Definite arrangements for the next exhibition at the Vandervoort galleries have not been completed. Ross Crane, director of the Better Homes Bureau and manager of the exhibitions of paintings, hopes to hold a show of works of St. Louis artists soon. Crane, who has been for some time an art lecturer, admires much of the work being done in St. Louis and hopes to assist in promoting public interest and appreciation of their achievements. In his gallery talks on Mondays, he often refers to various local artists' works illustrating how paintings can be correlated with furnishings, draperies and art objects in enhancing and completing decorative schemes in the home.

On the north wall of the lounge of the Hotel Chase, two large paintings familiar to St. Louisans are hung on either side of the entrance into the dining room. One is the large Blommers and the other the Rosa Bonheur, both of which a little over a year ago, were passed in the auction of the Bixby pictures. It is approprite that these beautiful paintings be placed here, if only for a little time.

Will Rogers the Cowboy Humorist Says—

By Will Rogers.

(Copyright, 1923, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

WELL, they brought our Soldiers back from Germany last week. Would have brought them back sooner but we didn't have anybody in Washington who knew where they were. We had to leave 'em over there so they could get the Mail that was sent to them during the war. Had to leave 'em over there anyway; two of them hadn't married yet.

Savannah certainly gave the Boys a great welcome, but imagine how welcome they are going to feel the first payday over here, "before and after taken"—Home.

Since I wrote you all last week, an awful lot has happened at the Studio in Washington, D. C. You know out where they make the Movies, the place we make them is called the Studio. We are a great deal alike in lots of respects. We make what we think will be two kinds of Pictures, Comedy and Drama, or sad ones. Now you take the Capitol at Washington, that's the biggest Studio in the World. We call ours, Pictures, when they are turned out. They call theirs Laws, or Bills. It's all the same thing. We often make what we think is Drama, but when it is shown it is received by the audience as Comedy. So the uncertainty is about equal both places.

The way to judge a good Comedy is by how long it will last and have people talk about it. Now Congress has turned out some that have lived for years and people are still laughing about them, and as for Sad productions, they have turned out some that for sadness make "Over the Hills" look like a roaring farce.

Girls win a little State Popularity Contest that is conducted by some Newspaper; then they are put into the Movies to entertain 110 million people who they never saw or know anything about. Now that's the same way with the Capitol Comedy Company of Washington. They win a State Popularity Contest backed by a Newspaper and are sent to Washington to turn out Laws for 110 million people they never saw.

They have what they call Congress, or the Lower House. That compares to what we call the Scenario Department. That's where somebody gets the idea of what he thinks will make a good Comedy Bill or Law, and they argue around and put it into shape.

Then it is passed along, printed, or shot, or Photographed, as we call it; then it reaches the Senate or the Cutting and Titling Department. Now, in our Movie Studios we have what we call Gag Men, whose sole business is to just furnish some little Gag, or Amendment as they call it, which will get a laugh or perhaps change the whole thing around.

High-Priced Gag Men.

Now the Senate has what is considered the best and highest priced Gag Men that can be collected anywhere. Why, they put in so many little gags or amendments that the poor author of the thing don't know his own story.

They consider if a man can sit there in the Studio in Washington and just put in one funny amendment in each Bill or production that will change it from what it originally meant, why, he is considered to have earned his pay. Take for Instance the Prohibition Production that was introduced in the Congress or Scenario Department as a Comedy.

Well, when it come up in the Senate, one of the Gag or Title Men says: "I got an Idea; instead of this just being a joke, and doing away with the Saloons and Bar Rooms, why I will put in a Title here that will do away with everything." So they sent around to all the Bars in Washington and got a Quorum and released what was to be a harmless little Comedy—made over into a Tragedy.

Then they put out a Production called the Non Taxable Bond, or "Let the Little Fellow Pay." Well, it had a certain Vogue for awhile with the Rich. But it flopped terribly in the cheaper priced houses.

Another one they put out a lot of you will remember was called the Income or Sur Tax. It was released under the Title of, "Inherit your money and your Sur Tax is Lighter."

The main Character in this one was a working man on salary, with no capital investment to fall back on, paying more on his income than the fellow who has his original Capital and draws his money just from interest. That Production has been hissed in some of the best houses.

Bighearted Congress.

They started to put on a Big one that everybody in America was looking forward to and wanted them to produce called, "The Birth of the Bonus," or "How Could You Forget So Soon!" But on account of Finances they couldn't produce that and the "Non Taxable Bond Production" both, so they let the Bonus one go.

They are working on two dandies this week. One is called, "Refund, Refund, I am always refunding You." It's principally for British Trade.

Then they got a Dandy Comedy; well, it's really a serial as they put it on every year. Everybody in the whole Studio is interested in it and get a share of it. It's really their yearly Bonus in addition to their Salary. It's called, "Rivers and Harbors," or, "I'll get Mine."

They got some of the funniest Scenes in there where they take 56 million Dollars of the People's money and they promise to make a lot of Streams wide enough to fish in. Now I saw a Pro Release of it and here are some of the Real Titles. In Virginia, their Gag Senator has thought of a River called the MATTIPONI. In North Carolina, their Title writer, Overman, thought of a name, the CONTENTNEA CREEK. But the funniest Title in the whole Production is the CALOOSEHATCHIE, in Florida. It's located right in the Fairway of a Golf Course and Congress must move it or in two years it will be filled up with Golf Balls.

Then they have a scene applying for funds to dredge TOMBIGBEE CREEK, and the BIG SUNFLOWER, in Mississippi. Well, that's money well spent to do that, as they may find some of the missing population.

And there's the CLATSKANIE in Oregon. Now what I am wondering is how our Navy is to make the Jump from the Harbor of Tombigbee to the Docks in Oregon on the Clatskanie. Of course, that's a different appropriation or production, and will be arranged later.

A Harbor on the Verdigris.

Now I am off my Senators from Oklahoma, especially Robert Owen, who is part Cherokee Indian, like myself (and as proud of it as I am). Now I got names right there on my farm where I was born that are funny, too, and Owen don't do a thing to get me a Harbor on the VERDIGRIS River at OOLAGAH, in what used to be the District of COOWEESCOOWEE (before we spoiled the best Territory in the world to make a State).

Right across the river from me lives Jim TICKEATER. Now, suppose a foreign fleet should come up there. We can't ask those Turtles and Water Moccasins to move out without Government sanction. If they haven't got enough water in there to fill the harbor (we are only 18 miles from NOWATER, Okla.), why, we will have to ask all the Neighbors to train their Corn Liquor from their stills in there for a couple of days. Then we could float the Leviathan.

Of course, I don't get anything done for my Harbor, because my River really exists.

Now, Folks, why patronize California-made Productions? The Capitol Comedy Co. of Washington, D. C., have never had a failure. They are, every one, 100 per cent funny or 100 per cent Sad.

They are making some changes in their cast down there and later I will tell you about that. Also something about the Director.

So long, Folks, I will meet you at the Naval Maneuvers on CONTENTNEA CREEK next year.

No matter how long you've had your corns, how bad they may be, whether hard or soft, or what you have tried, believe this—"Gets-It" will end corn pains at once, and quickly you can lift the corn right off the toe or foot, with the fingers. Makes a Family Supply of Cough Remedy Really Better Than Ready-Made Cough Syrup, and Saves About $2. Easily and Quickly Prepared.

If you combined the curative properties of every known "ready-made" cough remedy, you probably could not get as much real curative power as there is in this simple homemade cough syrup, which is easily prepared in a few minutes.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with syrup, using either plain granulated sugar syrup, clarified molasses, honey or corn syrup, as desired. The result is a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for three times the money. Tastes pleasant and never spoils.

This Pinex and Syrup preparation gets right at the cause of a cough and gives almost immediate relief. It loosens the phlegm, stops the nasty throat tickle and heals the sore, irritated membranes so gently and easily that it is really astonishing.

A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough and for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness and bronchial asthma, there is nothing better.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, and has been used for generations to break severe coughs.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with full directions, and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Child's Hair With

If you want to keep your child's hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Many soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing as this cannot possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten the hair with water and rub the Mulsified in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

BEAUTY SPECIALIST TELLS SECRET

A Beauty Specialist Gives Home-Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair.

Mrs. M. D. Gillespie, a well-known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

"These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look 20 years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

480 PERSONS ON LIST OF WITNESSES FOR HERRIN TRIAL

180 for State and 300 for Defense — Expected That Large Number of Them Will Not Be Called.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

MARION, Ill., Feb. 17.—The State of Illinois has begun its second attempt to convict some of the men charged with taking part in the Herrin massacre of June 22 in which 21 non-union men were killed or mortally wounded and as many more were shot and maimed, but recovered.

Six men are on trial this time, charged with the murder of An[illegible] Mulkavich, a guard at the Lester strip mine. The defendants are a mixed lot, ranging from Hugh [illegible], member of the Executive Board of the United Mine Workers of Illinois, acknowledged leader of the Williamson County miners and a figure of some prominence not only in the State, but in the international miners' organization, to [illegible] Brown, a negro miner. In between are Otis Clark, whose assertiveness has made him something of a leader in the county and who is admitted to have been in command of the mob prior to the killings, Bert Grace and Oscar Howard, who are alleged to have been his lieutenants in the killings, and [illegible] Fontenetti, who appears to have played a less significant part. Mulkavich was one of the 47 men who defended the Lester mine when it was besieged by hundreds of union miners on June 21 and held out through the night, but who laid down their arms at dawn and surrendered under a flag of truce and their captors' pledge of safe conduct.

Mulkavich a War Veteran.

It was war of a sort up to that point and Mulkavitch was used to war. He was born in Russia, but was a citizen of the United States, 29 years old, when he enlisted at Erie, Pa., Dec. 15, 1917, for the World War and was assigned to the 305th Signal Corps of the Eightieth Division.

He was 20 months in the service and a year in France. He was in the Somme offensive, at St. Mihiel and in the Meuse-Argonne offensive. He was honorably discharged June 9, 1919, with "excellent" rating as to character.

Mulkavich had his discharge papers in his pocked that morning when he and his comrades surrendered to a superior force. These papers, certifying his service to his adopted country, did not save him from being shot to death, along with other prisoners, in the power-house woods to which they were taken by their captors, but his body was at least spared the ignominy of burial as an "unknown." His grave at Herrin is marked by a cross, erected by former service men.

Eighteen men were indicted, charged with killing Mulkavich, but nolle prosequis were entered as to 12, who, however, are under indictment in other cases. The dismissal of the 12 was because of the unwieldiness of trying such a large number. The evidence in the present case is strong as to the six men retained as defendants.

Case Against Willis.

The prosecution expects to show that Willis planned the attack and siege at the mine and that arms and ammunition were obtained in his name and by his authority and that when the prisoners were being marched toward Herrin he met the mob in an automobile near the power-house woods and conferred with the leaders just before the prisoners were taken into the woods and shot.

It is expected that the defense will either attempt by alibi testimony to show that Willis was not the man who met the column or that he sought to prevent the massacre which followed.

Clark is admitted to have been the leader of the mob up to the time that it reached Crenshaw Crossing and is alleged to have made a speech there advocating the "stopping of the breed," but is claimed by the defense to have abdicated the leadership at that point in opposition to the plan of killing the prisoners.

The other four defendants are alleged to have taken part in the proceedings which culminated in the killings in the woods. The State's proof will not relate to any of the occurrences after these killings.

Testimony as to Rifle.

There was testimony in the first trial that Bert Grace took a rifle and ammunition from a Marion merchant before the killings and returned the rifle, without the ammunition, after the killings. It is expected that he will be connected more definitely with the attack on the mine.

Oscar Howard is alleged to have assisted Clark in taking J. W. McDowell, superintendent of the Lester mine, from the line of prisoners and killing him.

Brown is alleged to have been the negro who took an active part in the riot, wearing an overseas helmet, but one of the witnesses in the former trial testified that this negro said he had been in the war and that killing prisoners was not right.

There will be testimony that Fontenetti was in the mob of captors.

480 Witnesses.

The State has 180 witnesses. There were 40 names on the indictment and a supplemental list of about 140 was served on the defense a few days before the beginning of the trial. This list included a few newly-discovered witnesses who were not listed for the former trial. It is not expected that nearly all of these will be used however. The defense has about 300 witnesses, but will not use all of them. Most of the defense witnesses are miners, who are paid $10 a day for testifying. The defendants receive the same pay during the progress of the trial.

The opening of the second trial last Monday was in striking contrast to the opening of the first trial Nov. 7. On that November day the courtroom was crowded and there was a vibrant expectancy of drama to come. Throughout that long trial there was much of the tenseness which characterized its beginning. But the return of a verdict Feb. 19 of not guilty as to each of the five defendants in that case has been followed by a great deflation of interest.

Monday was a dismal day and the beginning of the second trial was depressing. There was rain, ranging from a drizzle to downpour. The old Courthouse was chill and damp. The lawyers were perfunctory. The Judge was long-suffering. The dedendants were bored. The small audience was listless.

State's Difficult Task.

The State had a difficult task when, Nov. 7, it put five men on trial, charged with the murder of Howard Hoffman. Not the least of its difficulties was to overcome the widespread belief that nothing would come of the prosecution.

Now, at the beginning of another trial, its task is much more difficult because the jury in the first case failed to convict and because the belief has become more fixed in the public mind that no jury can be found in Williamson County that will convict the men who are alleged to have committed the Herrin crime.

But failure of a jury to convict in one case does not release the State from the obligation of prosecuting in other cases and the people's representatives took up their task with determination, even if they lacked enthusiasm.

State's Attorney Duty, Assistant Attorney-General Middlekauff and Assistant Attorney-General Glenn and their assistants plan to try the present case with the same thoroughness that was given to the other. They expect to prove that all the defendants took active part in the riot which culminated in the murders.

Defense to Use Alibi.

The defense, assuming that Judge Hartwell's rulings are the same as in the other case, will be permitted to show "provocation and challenge," but the jury, in line with the Judge's pronouncement of "murder or nothing" in the other case, will be instructed that these do not constitute justification or make killing lawful.

The defense will be alibi or denial of participation. At the last it will be put to the jury, as it was in the other case. That other jury, when instructed by Judge Hartwell that the killing of the 21 men was murder or nothing, decided that it was nothing.

The verdict, it is expected, will turn upon whether the alibi testimony for the defense will receive sufficient credence to create the "reasonable doubt" which the law provides for the protection of accused persons.

Getting a jury is expected to take longer than before because of the extensive publicity given to the other trial. The difficulty, as in the other trial, is increased by the fact that to be eligible one must not only have no opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the particular defendants, but also as to the "lawfulness" or "unlawfulness" of the killings.

One Never Heard of Case.

The lawyers for the State were almost in despair at the start of this case over the chance of getting truthful disclaimers of opinion from any except mentally deficient persons, but it was interesting that in the panel of 24 veniremen examined the first day there were several who declared that they had no opinion. There was one who had never read of the case.

Four of the five men on trial in the first case were held without bond. All the present defendants are out on bond. The prosecution consented, after the verdict in the first case, to the release on bond of the four who had been acquitted but who were held under other indictments, and some others. The attorneys feel there is some advantage in having them free. In jail they were heroes and were accorded unusual privileges. The jurors' dormitory was in the same building. Often, during the many weeks that they were under the same roof their voices mingled in song. That and many other little things contributed to the fellow feeling which it was naturally the great desire of the defense to create and foster.

No statement has come from the jurors in the first case as to how they arrived at a verdict of acquittal, but it is assumed that, under the instructions of Judge Hartwell, which excluded every defense except alibi, the jurors took seriously the alibi testimony for the defendants to at least the extent of permitting it to create in their minds a reasonable doubt.

KSD ON THE SCREEN RADIO WEEK FEATURE

Showing at Missouri Theater Also Will Include Wonderful Diagrams of How Radio Works.

The most thorough exposition and exemplification of the workings of radio ever provided for the St. Louis public will be a feature of "radio week," which will begin at the Missouri Theater the night of next Saturday, Feb. 24, and continue up to and including the following Friday, March 2.

An outstanding feature will be the exhibition each night of a motion picture entitled "The Wonders of Radio, Showing Post-Dispatch Broadcasting K S D in Action." Not only will this film show every phase of the broadcasting from K S D, but in addition it will include a complete series of wonderful moving diagrams explaining and visualizing the manner in which radio waves are generated, sent out on the air and collected into the receiving instruments. One who sees these diagrams need no longer be mystified as to why and how he is enabled to pick up the broadcasting on his receiving set at home. Each step of the process is made remarkably clear in the moving diagrams.

Thousands who have nightly listened in on the K S D concerts have never seen a great broadcasting station in operation. This film will give them their first opportunity to do so. The motion pictures, made especially for "radio week," thoroughly cover every operation at K S D station. The room on the second floor of the Post-Dispatch Building, where the nightly concerts originate, will be shown with a concert under way. The announcing, the performer and the signing off will be shown, so that everyone who sees the picture may know just what goes on in a studio. The broadcasting station on the roof of the Post-Dispatch Building also will be shown in all its working details.

To make the process even more clear, the film will be supplemented by a stage presentation. There will be a setting which will in effect be a reproduction of the K S D broadcasting station and from this setting a musical number will actually be sent out by radio in full view of the audience. Yerkes' Flotilla Band will be the featured musical attraction of "radio week" at the Missouri. Each night one number by the band or one of its soloists will be broadcast from the studio on the stage. This will involve the installation of the necessary amplifying apparatus on the Missouri stage. When K S D broadcasts the Symphony Orchestra concerts from the Odeon all of the necessary equipment except the microphone is hidden under the stage. At the Missouri it will be in full view.

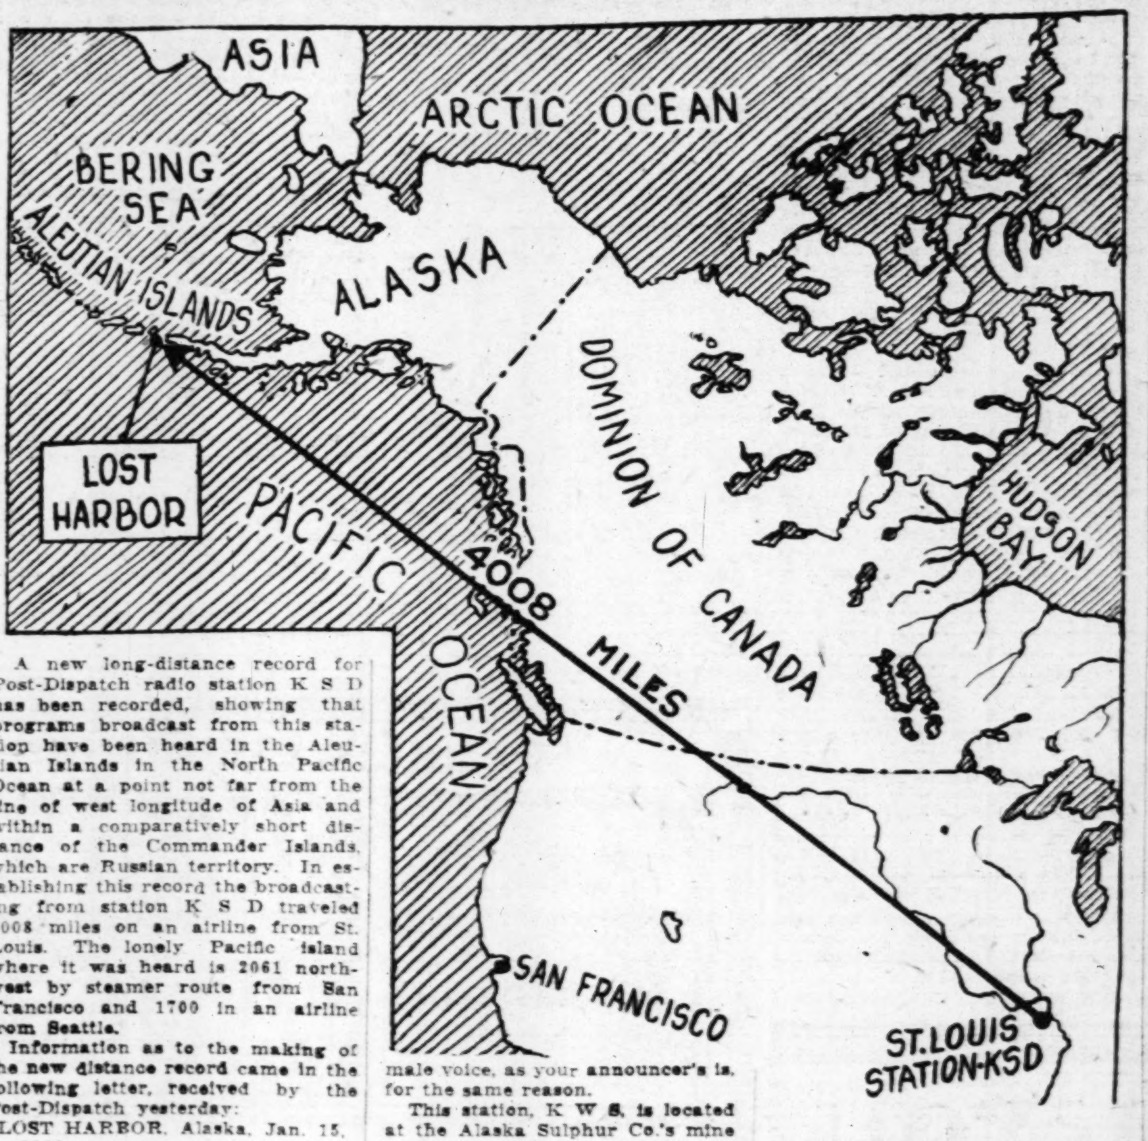
The specail radio week picture and broadcasting features at the Missouri will begin each night shortly after 9 p. m. between the first and second shows.

The broadcasting of the regular concert from the Post-Dispatch building will be discontinued while the musical number is being sent out from the theater. Then the K S D station will again be switched on and the regular program continued.

These screen and stage features of radio week will be supplemented at the Missouri, throughout "radio week" by dealers' exhibits of radio merchandise in the spacious lobby and on the Mezzanine floor of the theater.

As the nights of Sunday, Feb. 25 and Thursday, March 1 are silent nights for K S D station the broadcasting feature will be eliminated, but the film exemplifying the workings of radio and the operation of K S D will be shown at all the matinee and evening performances throughout the week.

K S D Heard 4008 Miles Away, on Island Between Alaska and Asiatic Coast



A new long-distance record for Post-Dispatch radio station K S D has been recorded, showing that programs broadcast from this station have been heard in the Aleutian Islands in the North Pacific Ocean at a point not far from the line of west longitude of Asia and within a comparatively short distance of the Commander Islands, which are Russian territory. In establishing this record the broadcasting from station K S D traveled 4008 miles on an airline from St. Louis. The lonely Pacific island where it was heard is 2061 northwest by steamer route from San Francisco and 1700 in an airline from Seattle.

Information as to the making of the new distance record came in the following letter, received by the Post-Dispatch yesterday:

> LOST HARBOR, Alaska, Jan. 15, 1923.
> Dear Sirs:
> You may be interested to know that your concerts are often received in this lonesome section of the world and, due to the location, are appreciated in proportion. Your late program of Jan. 1 was received without noticeable fading for three-quarters of an hour. The music was excellent, but the negro dialect was not so agreeable, aside from the novelty of hearing a female voice, as your announcer's is, for the same reason.

Akun Island of the Aleutian group is 54 degrees north of the equator and is between 165 and 166 degrees of longitude west. The easternmost point of Asia is on the 170th parallel of west longitude.

The program to which the letter refers was the midnight program of Jan. 1. The artists were Mrs. Ursie Capen, soprano; Miss Verna Day, violinist; Miss Ruth Kelso, reader, and Edgar Shelton, pianist. The station signed off at 2:08 a. m. Jan. 2.

Worth Knowing.

Sealing wax can be used for holding in place the turns of wire on home-made sets. Three or four spots of sealing wax along the outer edge of the windings will take care of the tendency of the wire to come loose due to shrinkage of the form.

The Electrical Scale.

Universal electrical terms are easily understood by using a simple water analogy. Volts, or p[illegible] are equivalent to pounds p[illegible] Amperes are equivalent to [illegible] measuring volume. Watts are [illegible] power units, or volts times a[illegible] Ohms are the resistance unit.

An Indication From the B[illegible]

When a weird blue glow is [illegible] in a tube, it is an indication th[illegible] voltage of the "B" battery should [illegible] reduced.

LONG DISTANCE RADIO

"PWX" the call letters of the large broadcasting station at HAVANA, CUBA, can only be heard by a "real" radio receiver.

A "REAL" Radio Receiver, to our mind, is one that first of all is highly sensitive and selective. It must be capable of exceptionally fine tuning. It must have a minimum of complicated controls and adjustments. It must not "squeal" and "howl" at the slightest touch.

A "REAL" Radio Receiver is an electrical device, the constants of which must be scientifically and electrically correct to the smallest detail. It of necessity must have been designed by experts. It must be assembled so that it can be perfectly operated and handled by the novice. It must be entirely capable of tuning out local interference and receiving exceptionally long distances.

RADIO FOR THE AMATEUR AND EXPERT

AMATEUR STATIONS TO LOG ALL INTERFERENCE

Members of A. R. R. L. Will Co-operate in "Policing the Air," and Securing Data.

A plan of national scope to log all interference on broadcast wave lengths was announced by F. H. Schnell, traffic manager of the American Radio Relay League, at the Second Michigan Convention of the A. R. R. L. in this city. The league proposes to appoint observing stations, Mr. Schnell said, the operators of which will listen every evening between the hours of 7 and [illegible] p. m. and keep a record of all interference of any nature everywhere in the United Sttaes. The plan will become operative in the near future.

Interference in receiving is a question of general moment to all those interested in radio at the present time. It was what Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, referred to when he declared there was an urgent need for a means of "policing the air." It was one factor back of the active support of the White bill.

"The greatest interfering medium on the part of the amateur today," Mr. Schnell said on opening the convention, "is the spark transmitter, which we are happy to say is fast becoming extinct. Next in line is the tube transmitter employing a frequency of alternating current which is unfiltered. The amateur is doing his best to eliminate this undesirable feature by rectifying his alternating current."

"Another form of interference undoubtedly comes from the naval and commercial spark stations, who also operate on wave lengths supposed to be 300 or 450 meters, but since the spark transmitter frequently has a poor decrement, or is incorrectly tuned, this wave interferes with the broadcast wave of [illegible] meters. No one really knows how much interference, nor what percentage of it, is being caused by these various interests. The American Radio Relay League will gather the data by means of observation stations throughout the country.

"When the first radio law was enacted in 1912, the officials at Washington, upon advice received from the best informed radio men in the country, passed a law giving the amateur a wave-length not to exceed 200 meters, a decrement of [illegible] a power input not to exceed [illegible] watts, meaning he must have a [illegible] per cent pure wave. This was [illegible] the amateur in the conviction that he could not transmit more than a city block. But the amateur has conquered the 200 meters, he has conquered the city block, the continent, the Atlantic and the Pacific Oceans and for this he has used less than one kilowatt.

"The problem of interference must be readjusted in conformity with the tremendous growth of the radio science, Mr. Schnell explained, and will be eliminated to a great extent by improvements in receiving apparatus and the adoption of c. w. (continuous wave) in code transmission. The amateur has been blamed for interference for which he is in no way responsible and the A. R. R. L. by means of observing stations intends to gather the exact [illegible]

"Don'ts" for Radio Amateurs.

Don't think that any wire is dead.

Don't let the antenna touch any other wire.

Don't be too curious; leave well enough alone.

Don't try to experiment with the aerial during a lightning storm.

Don't fail to throw the lightning switch to the outside ground when receiving.

Don't think the vacuum tube is an electric light; bright tubes don't mean loud signals.

Don't experiment with a radio transmitter unless you are absolutely certain of what you are doing, and have first procured a license.

KELLOGG HOPES FOR ACTION ON RADIO BILL

Difficulty in Getting Bill Before Senate Anticipated in View of Other Pnding Legislation.

The radio bill, which was referred to the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee last Monday may be passed this session of Congress, Senator Frank B. Kellogg of Minnesota believes.

An effort to hold a meeting of the Senate Subcommittee on Radio on Saturday failed because of a lack of a quorum, but the White bill, which has already passed the House, will be taken up by that committee Wednesday, it is announced.

Senator Kellogg, who has been interested in radio legislation for over a year, is making every effort to secure passage of this much needed legislation. He is being aided by Congressman White of Maine, who will meet with the Senate committee to give the members the benefit of his extensive knowledge gained through the recent public hearing in the House.

Senator A. B. Cummins, chairman of the Senate Committee, who has been ill for some time, is expected back in the Senate Tuesday, and it is believed by the supporters of the White bill that his presence will aid materially in securing the attention of the Senate.

Considerable difficulty in getting the bill before the Senate, even after it is reported out by the committee, is anticipated in view of the other pending legislation, including the ship subsidy, British debt settlement and other bills urged for immediate consideration. Supporters believe, however, that within a few days the Senate will have arrived at a position where the legislation for consideration this session will be definitely decided upon, and they believe the radio bill will receive consideration before adjournment on March 4.

A Suggestion for the Lead-In.

The lead-in can be brought to the radio room by cutting a board the same width as the window frame and fitting it below the window similar to a window screen. In this way the window can be lowered, thus keping out the cold blasts of winter weather. A hole is cut in the board large enough to hold a porcelain tube insulator through which the lead-in passes.

ONE YEAR OF HEALTH RADIO BROADCASTING

Educational Health Talks Inaugurated in N O F; Gain in Popularity and Interest.

On the first anniversary of its broadcasting, the Public Health Service announced that since its inauguration a year ago on N O F, the service has grown, until today 10 stations in the nine states and one in Canada are carrying its educational talks. It is unique in that it is the only national health radio service in the world. Its messages are not only heard by thousands, but are being used extensively in the foreign-language press in both America and Europe. For the first time a call is being made for replies from listeners-in to determine exactly how extensive is its scope and how its 102 broadcasts are received.

Radio Questions Answered

All questions must be accompanied by the name and address of the sender.

Q. When I first "tune in," signals are loud and clear, then in just a few minutes, they become weaker and weaker, and finally die out altogether. What causes this?
C. W. B.

A. Your "A" battery needs recharging. While idle, batteries have a tendency to recuperate a small amount of their energy, but when placed on discharge, it lasts but a few minutes. If dry cells furnish the current for your tube, they will have to be replaced with new ones.

Q. (1) I have a two-wire antenna 52 feet long, and have room to add 15 more feet to its length. Would doing so increase the efficiency of my set? (2) Should the far ends of the aerial wires be connected together? (3) What make of 'phones are the best for use in a victrola "loud-speaker?"

A. (1) Yes. (2) It is advisable. (3) The "best" make of receivers is largely a matter of personal opinion, however, those having a mica diaphragm seem to give the greatest satisfaction.

Q. What would be the next improvement on a crystal detector receiving set consisting of a variocoupler and 23-plate variable condenser? Would an aerial 175 feet long give better results than one 85 feet in length?
P. H. P.

A. Suggest that you compromise by increasing the length to about 120 feet.

Q. Will "peanut" tubes give the same results in a two-stage amplifier as the standard 6-volt tubes? (2) Can they be substituted for the 6-volt type in a standard make of receiving set?
M. G.

A. (1) They will function, but the volume will not be quite as great as when the 6-volt tubes are used. (2) Yes.

GERMANY HAS FOUND SOVIET TO BE COSTLY ASSOCIATES

Anticipated Business Results From Signing of the Brest-Litovsk Treaty Never Materialized.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

BREST-LITOVSK, Poland, Jan. 17—March 2 will be the fifth anniversary of the treaty of Brest-Litovsk. Joffe and Radek and their Bolshevik associates penned their signatures unwillingly to the hateful paper after Gen. Hoffman had pounded the treaty table and announced the Germans would advance immediately on Petrograd and Moscow if the Bolsheviki delayed longer.

That treaty was superseded by the treaty of Rapallo, which Germany and Russia signed so unexpectedly during the Genoa Conference last spring. But the business relations that Germany hoped would result in an exchange of considerable amounts of German manufactured goods for Russian raw materials have been disappointing. German business men cannot deal with the Bolshevist trade commissions any more successfully, apparently, than the business men of other nations which have not established treaty relations with Lenine's government.

It takes money or raw materials to carry on business. Bolshevist Russia lacks both. Its meagre shipments of grain from a country that is starving, and its slight exportations of wood, flax and other raw materials have been a grave disappointment to all Europe. Germany has found the Bolshevists costly and unsatisfactory associates.

The promises of peace and prosperity that Lenine and Trotzky made to quiet the clamor caused in Russia by the Brest-Litovsk treaty have not been realized. Land, bread and peace were their three favorite words five years ago. The peasants have the land, but many of them are starving on it.

Rise of Rodolph Valentino a Great Romance of the Movies

TRUE STORY OF PENNILESS IMMIGRANT BOY WHO HAS BECOME A SCREEN IDOL

Lights on the Career of Youth Who Left His Home at 17 and Came to America 10 Years Ago and, After Experiencing an Unusual Series of Hard Knocks and Buffetings, Found Himself, Through an Extraordinary Combination of Fortunate Circumstances, Famous Almost Over Night Through His Work in One Film.

Now He Is Engaged in a Fight With a Gigantic Combination of Motion Picture Producers That May Seriously Affect His Destiny and Fortunes and Which, Unless Present Legal Rulings Are Modified, Will Keep Him Out of Pictures for Nearly Two Years Longer—Calls It an Effort to Break His Will and Wreck His Ambitions.

ONE of the most interesting figures in the public eye today is Rodolph Valentino, the "great lover" of the moving picture screen, idolized by millions of feminine moving picture fans. So many and so varied are the stories of his origin and his rise to fame, that the Post-Dispatch herewith endeavors to present all the facts that are known about him, eliminating all that is apocryphal or merely romantic. How this young man, now only 27 years old, has climbed to his present conspicuous position, is the greatest of all the romances in the field of motion picture achievement—a field where romantic leaps to fame and wealth have been numerous, though none compares to his.

Valentino's story is particularly interesting at this time because he is engaged in a life and death struggle with a great moving picture combination of producers that threatens to keep him in eclipse from the screen for nearly two more years. Though he is young, and still will be young, when that period shall have elapsed, two years mean much to the fortune and fame of a moving picture actor. In the movies, fame is a fickle lass, who changes her favorites quickly, often overnight, and even such a handsome and competent young man as Valentino may find himself out of step with her after two years. The "fans" may forget him in that time or they may grow accustomed to not seeing him and another or others may rise to take his place in their admiration and affection—arise over night as he did. This story gives both sides in this fight, so that the reader can form his or her own opinion as to whether he or the corporation is right.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.

THIS is the story of the rise of moviedom's "perfect lover," the "Sheik" of the films and of countless feminine enthusiasts, Rodolph Valentino. It is a narrative of a leap from obscurity to fame overnight—an obscurity which the spotlight of publicity has yet to penetrate fully, and a fame that has made the dashing young Italian one of the most talked-of persons in the world.

Is Valentino the cultured Italian gentleman of noble lineage that his press agents claim?

Is he an ordinary immigrant boy who after years of poverty got a lucky break in the movies?

Is his present feud with the Famous Players-Lasky corporation the result of that company's deliberately unfair and cruel treatment, as he charges?

Is his refusal to work out his contract with them an attempt to get more money for his services than he is entitled to under his contract, as they charge?

Is a tenth of the rumors that flood Broadway about his early years in this country true?

Each of these questions has two answers. And while the debate rages, Valentino, although off the screen for months, continues to remain more prominently in the public eye than the most prolific cinema stars.

Here are the main facts of Valentino's life, sifted as well as possible from the rumor and hearsay that surrounds him.

Rodolph Alfonzo Rafello Pierre Filibert Guglielmi di Valentina d'Antongulli (to use his own version of his name and the biographical facts supplied by him) was born May 6, 1896, in the little village of Castellata at the extreme southern point of Italy. His father was Dr. Giovanni Guglielmi, whom Rodolph has variously described as a contractor, an architect, an artist and a veterinary doctor.

Came to America When 18

As a small boy he went to Dante Allighieri College, a boarding school, and later to the Collegio della Sapienze at Perugia. At both schools, Rodolph freely admits, he made little progress in his studies, but at Perugia he did get on the football team.

An attempt to enter the royal naval academy failed when he was rejected for insufficient chest expansion. A course at an agricultural school followed, but Rodolph's aversion to study and extravagant habits made his parents cut off his allowance. Whereupon he left home with just enough money to buy a ticket on the S. S. Cleveland of the Hamburg-American line sailing for New York. He landed Dec. 23, 1913, speaking no English, knowing no one in this country and practically penniless.

It is to Valentino's credit that the greatest offense you can do him is to repeat to him the story that he ran away from home.

"It hurts me," he says, "to have anyone think I would treat my mother so. As a matter of fact, she gave me the money to buy my ticket and spent a week packing my trunk herself so that she would be certain that I should have everything that she could possibly give me."

Laughs at Other Reports of His Origin

But there are other reports about his parentage and the accounts of his early struggles in America differ. He has been called a Greek bootblack, a restaurant bus boy, a farmer son of Italian peasants. One rumor even had it that he was not a foreigner at all, but the son of a man named McGinness in Kentucky. Rodolph laughs at them all.

Anyway, America did not prove the land of promise the 17-year-old boy had expected. For months he could get no work and many a day after his meager supply of money was exhausted he went without food. It was late in the spring that he found a job on the Long Island estate of Cornelius N. Bliss Jr. as a gardener. When Mrs. Bliss returned and decided to turn the garden into part of a golf course, Rodolph's job ended.

It is about the next period of Rodolph's life that the mystery is deepest. He became a dancer around Broadway cabarets and gave lessons while the dance craze was at its height. His youth, good looks and grace made him much in demand.

One romantic story has it that he was working at Reisenweber's, one of the gayest of Broadway's night resorts, which now has a padlock on its door, put there by prohibition agents, when the dancing partner of Joan Sawyer failed to appear one evening. His dress suit was there, however, and in the emergency Miss Sawyer told the good-looking young Italian, who had shown he had some dancing talent, to get into it. It happened to fit and their exhibition was such a success that eventually he became her regular dancing partner.

His skill and grace at dancing developed so rapidly that, at various times in the following months, he danced in cabarets and vaudeville with Miss Sawyer, Bonnie Glass and Mae Murray. He was known along the gay white way and in theatrical circles as "Mr. Rudolph," as he did not adopt the name of Valentino until after his appearance in the films some years later.

Only once did his name emerge from the obscurity of these years.

Here it becomes necessary to mention a story that may be responsible for more gossip than was justified. In the course of an investigation of police corruption, in 1916, Valentino, who then was 20 years, was held along with others as a witness. After three months, this distraint upon him was removed on the order of Chief Justice Philbin, who declared that the District Attorney had no legal right or justification for his action. Nothing further was ever heard of the matter.

From the white lights of Broadway Rodolph made his way to California as a dancer in a theatrical company. The company failed on reaching the coast, and once again he was stranded, this time in San Francisco. He decided to try his hand at the movies.

For a long time it was a hard struggle. From time to time he got work as an "extra," or in very small parts, but nothing came of them except a little money for his immediate needs.

RODOLPH VALENTINO, who appeared during the past week at the Delmonte Theater in this city with his wife, read the proofs of the accompanying story, and said that it was a fair and accurate presentation of his career.

RODOLPH VALENTINO AS HE REALLY IS.

MRS. RODOLPH VALENTINO.

She is a young woman of great talent in designing settings and costumes for moving picture productions. She early saw that Valentino had talent and good looks for the movies and, from a position of power in a great producing organization, used her influence to get good parts for him. Later, after his divorce from his first wife, she married him.

JEAN ACKER.

She was Valentino's first wife and his marriage to his present wife too soon after his divorce from her brought unpleasant notoriety and legal complications.

JOAN SAWYER.

To her, according to the romantic story told in New York, Valentino owes his first chance to become a cabaret dancing star. Her partner failed to appear one evening at the cafe where she was dancing and she picked Valentino, then a humble employe of the place, but known to have dancing talent, to substitute. He made good and became famous.

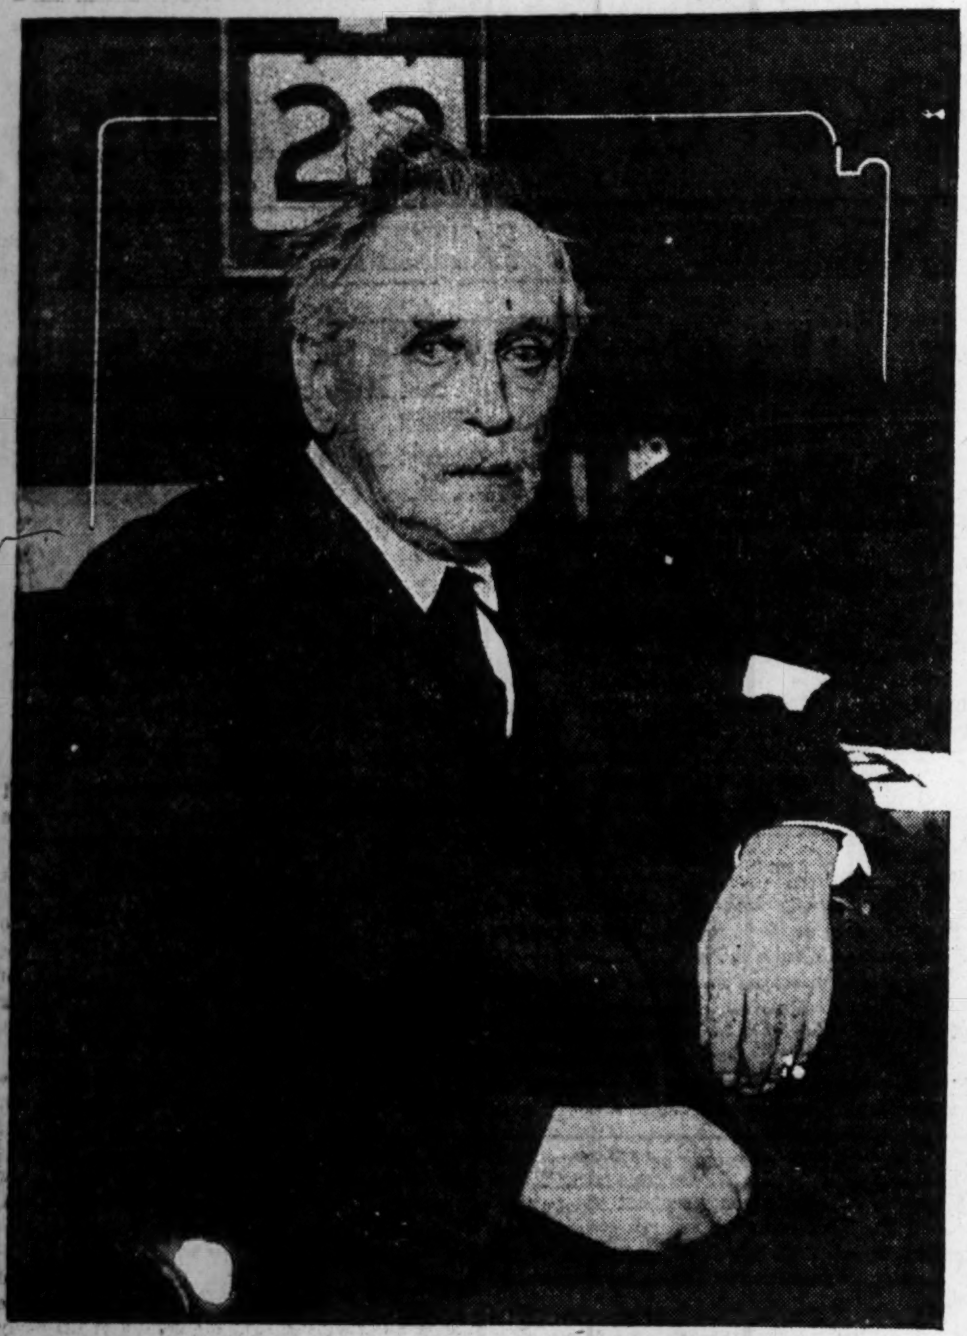
JUNE [illegible]S.

To her, Valentino ascribes a large measure of his success. As author of the scenario from Ibanez's great war book "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," she was instrumental in providing him with his first great screen opportunity. His work in this part made him famous the world over.

Three Employers Tell Why They Gave Million-Dollar Concerns to Employes

"A SIMPLE ACT OF JUSTICE—THEY DESERVED TO GET THE BUSINESS THEY HAD BUILT UP"

Example of Henry A. Dix, Who Transferred $1,000,000 Clothing Mills to His Workers, Emulated Within a Month by Isidor Heller, Also a Garment Manufacturer, and Gustav Hottinger, Founder of World's Greatest Terra Cotta Plant—All Expressed Desire to See Former Companions in Toil Enjoy Rewards for Faithfulness and Long Service.



GUSTAV HOTTINGER.

WHEN Henry A. Dix, founder and president of the Henry A. Dix & Sons Company of New York, announced on Dec. 26 that he had voluntarily scratched his name and the figures $45,000 from the payroll of his $1,000,000 garment manufacturing concern, turning it over, "lock, stock and barrel," to his employes who had helped him to build it, his action was taken as simply an isolated instance of a wealthy and benevolent employer's tribute to his erstwhile companions in toil. But when, less than a month later, two other big concerns, both capitalized well above the million mark, passed from the hands of their founders into those of their working staffs there arose occasion for reflection.

Here three industrial leaders had voluntarily stepped down from the chairs of presidents and said to their 461 employes:

"You step up. I have made enough money to keep me in comfort and you have earned the opportunity to make some for yourselves."

The example of Henry A. Dix had been emulated, no doubt, with far more dispatch and effectiveness than he ever hoped it would.

Hardly had the details of his transaction become known until there came the announcement that the great Northwestern Terra Cotta Company of Chicago, a $4,000,000 firm, had been turned over to 86 of its employes—old employes who had witnessed its climb to munificence from the humble beginning of a clay yard, housed in a dingy little frame structure on one of Chicago's side streets. Its founder and president, Gustav Hottinger, had decided that he had accomplished what he set out to do and could get more joy out of its future with it in the hands of those who had helped him to realize his dream.

Then, upon the heels of this transfer, came another. This time it was in the garment industry again and it was Isidor Heller, head of I. Heller & Co. of New York, who abdicated in favor of his men. His $1,000,000 manufacturing plant with its established trade and good will passed to 65 workmen, while Heller, as he expressed it, will "look after them as a father looks after his children and enjoy seeing them enjoy the fruit of their labor before I die."

"Not Benevolence; Simply Justice"

What were the motives of these three men who thus put aside the ties of blood for those of common toil and who ignored the claims of legal heirs in order that diligence of service might have its just reward? Probably the statement made by Dix when questioned as to his philosophy best expresses the views of the others also.

"It was not a gift," he said. "It was a sale. It was not benevolence; it was simple justice. I think a hundred or more reporters have asked my motive as if there were something hidden away. There is not. The transaction is a sale, not a gift, and the sale is made to these men and women who have helped me in my business because I thought it was due them. My compensation is their loyalty over many years.

"I did not know what would become of them if I sold the mills to someone else and that thought bothered me. So I am selling the business to them. That's all; just a sale. I hope that other employers who wish to retire may do the same thing for those who have been loyal to them. It would make everybody happier. I am happier now than I have been for a long time.

"Money? I have enough of it. Why should I want more? Many years ago I limited the expansion of my business. In 1914 I was a millionaire. What is there I could buy with more money? I like a simple life in the country, and I do not need more money for that. But I can do something for these boys and girls who have been true to me and my business for so many years. I can help them most effectively in this way.

"Twice during the last year I could have sold out this business for more money—much more money. Once the papers were all drawn up for the sale to a relative of a big Boston department store owner. The lawyers and the man were in the office. But I said to myself: 'What are you doing? These boys who have been here for so many years—what will they do?' And right then and there I decided that I would not sell to anyone except these boys. I intend to help them as much as they need me. My pay will be only 50 cents a year and if they want to they can pay me that in installments."

Giving Them What They Helped to Make

His sentiments were echoed by Hottinger and by Heller.

"For many years," the former said to a correspondent recently, "it has been my wish that some day I might be able to turn over to those old-time faithful workers, who started when the company was practically nothing, the concern they helped to make. The time has come when I want to rest. It is possible now to achieve the wish I have entertained for so many years, so that's why I am doing it. These veteran employes deserve the business opportunity that this offer of mine implies and my sincere hope is that they may realize its fullest possibility for money making and industrial success."

Heller also refuses to view his transaction as any unusual or remarkable occurrence and he emphasizes the point that it is simply a matter of justice.

"It was not for the sake of hoarding wealth for myself that the Lord has let me live for 60 years and prosper," he declares. "He had a mission for me and I am now fulfilling that mission, or part of it. Perhaps it is because I have harbored the idea so long that it has come to stand to me as one of the duties of my life. If I ever felt that the business was my own, it was so long ago I have forgotten about it. I have always regarded it as common property, owned by all of us, of which I was the chief administrator. I thought over various methods of making the transfer, especially the most obvious one of decreeing by will this disposition of it after my death. But recently I began to think I would rather do it while I was alive. That way I can stay around to see that my former employes settle into their new relationship with one another without friction or squabbles which might very well develop where such an act is to be carried out by trustees after the death of the one who wants the distribution made.

"I don't believe this movement is going to stop with me. I know several men who have been working on plans similar to mine of turning their wealth over to those who have helped them make it."

Old Employers Now Advisers Only

So all three will retain connection with their firms only as advisers, and as unpaid advisers at that. They will observe the progress of the new corporation with a watchful eye, but their income from the business which their life work has built up is over. In the future they must depend upon their accumulated resources. Executives for the reorganized corporations have been chosen from among the workers and these will assume control of the plants.

Two of the transactions—those of the Dix and Hottinger concerns—involve entire reorganizations with reissues of stock in amounts governed by the position and term of service of the employe. The plan of Heller fundamentally is a division of all the profits of the firm among all members of the organization by a committee selected to make the apportionment.

A group of employes of the Dix concern called together by Mr. Dix to hear the announcement of the plan for making them partners in the firm.

The six employes who are to direct the Dix concern in the future are men who have remained with the firm because they felt that they had found the best place to work. Now that he has done something for them and far more than they ever had expected, they are starting to work on the new venture with enthusiasm.

Not only these six, but every employe who has served three years or more and others who are yet to complete the three-year period of service in the future will share in the $150,000 issue of Class A common stock to the extent of $3000 to $5000 each. About 120 are already eligible to take stock and a great many more may share the privilege soon. Eventually the employe-stockholders will select the officers of the company and every individual will have a personal interest in seeing that the work of turning out goods is done efficiently. It is not improbable that the Dix business may become a woman's business entirely, because about 300 of the 350 employes are women, and only women's garments are manufactured. To aid them in their work of reorganization Dix has also extended a loan of $250,000.

Three Romances of Business

Romantic is the story of how these three philanthropists got their start in business, how they caught on and held on in spite of adverse circumstances until their industries had carried them to complete independence. Two of them—Dix and Hottinger—were foreigners, too, and had thus an added handicap.

It was in Krementchug, Russia, some 35 years ago, that Dix first ventured into business for himself, and it was an incident of this occasion that implanted in his mind the determination to play square with his employes if he should ever have any. He had been a clerk in a small dry goods store, but had been able to save but little money from his salary. When, eventually, his employer decided to retire and the store was offered for sale, it was almost without hope of success that the clerk approached his employer with an offer for the business—an offer that looked meager indeed beside the sums that other merchants were ready to pay. But to his surprise the older man took him up with a reply something like this:

"You have stood by me faithfully in the hope of becoming my partner and I don't know what your fortunes might be if I should leave the reward for your efforts to another employer. You may have the store. Pay me what you can and the rest when you can. I hope that you, too, will do the same for your employes some day."

On Jan. 1, 1888, the papers were signed transferring the business to the erstwhile clerk and Henry Dix never forgot that occasion. Eight years later, when the anti-Semitic wave swept over Russia and Dix resolved to try his fortune in America, he brought the memory of his old employer's generosity with him.

His Idea and Inspiration Grew

Soon after his arrival in America as an immigrant he chanced to alight from a train at Millville, N. J. He liked the place so well that he resolved to bring his family there and open a store. This he did, but the store did not prosper because Dix lacked a sufficient knowledge of English to carry on the business. While he was struggling along, however, he noticed that the wrappers, or "mother hubbards," worn by a great many women of the community were of cheap and shoddy material. He saw at once a field for the manufacture of better garments and he quickly acted upon his hunch. In a few days he had closed his store, bought a few machines and started in the manufacturing business on a very modest scale.

"The first years were very hard," he said to a correspondent recently in relating his early experiences. "The buyers were not ready to accept a higher-priced garment of this kind. In those days I only made 20 dozen garments a week, sometimes fewer; but gradually my product came to be recognized as standard. While my son, Mark, was in high school he went out to get orders, and the very first order was from the John Wanamaker store in Philadelphia. It was for six dozen wrappers at $10.50 a dozen, and the order was signed by Robert M. Wilkinson.

"That was just a start. After the Millville factory had been established others were started at Bridgeton and Somerville, N. J., and in 1907 we came to New York. From that time forward the plants and their output have steadily expanded."

The benevolence of Henry Dix has not ended with his generosity to employes. He has been a regular and liberal supporter of numerous charities for several years. In memory of his wife he has given away his Mount Kisko estate, valued at $250,000, a maintenance fund of $150,000 and $50,000 for a new building, all for the unfortunate poor of his race. Recently, as a further bequest in her memory, he gave $100,000 to the United Hebrew Charities.

Such is the man who has virtually given away his business, lent the new owners $250,000 in working capital and is now ready to retire at 72 to enjoy the "simple life."

Hottinger's rise to fortune was fully as notable and fully as romantic. Like Dix, he had to labor under the disadvantage of an alien tongue, but when he came to America from Austria, about 1875, he brought with him $1000 and a great vision. He had earned the thousand dollars by the sweat of his brow in the clay pits around Vienna. As for the vision, that was something that didn't cost anything. It was something even a clay digger might have, only Hottinger had a determination of realizing it.

In those days cities were built in dull red blocks of rambling and sprawling structures. Hottinger had a vision of great towering and glistening business palaces. He believed that some day men would vie with each other in making their stores more beautiful and substantial. That meant the development of a more beautiful building material.

World's Largest Terra Cotta Plant

As he turned over the clods of clay in the pits in the course of his daily toil he saw the possibilities of terra cotta and his conviction that it would revolutionize the building industry grew. Soon after he landed at Ellis Island he made his way to Chicago and there entered a partnership with two other men who believed with him that clay was not so commonplace that it might not be made beautiful. The three of them pooled a thousand dollars each, rented a small frame shack at Lincoln avenue and Wells street and began the development of a terra cotta plant. As is usually the case, the new product did not meet with a welcome, but in spite of reverses they refused to quit. They continued to work hard at their idea and within a few months after the trio had begun pottering with clay in the little frame shack the demand for their product had grown so that they were justified in employing half a dozen workmen.

The volume of business steadily increased. It was necessary to enlarge the plant; that was done. More workmen were added to the payroll and the output gradually outstripped that of competing firms. Eventually the business was moved to the huge plant at 2525 Clybourn avenue, where the concern is now located. It is now said to be the largest terra cotta plant in the world and its assets are estimated at $4,000,000.

Today the visions of Gustav Hottinger are being realized in the great terra cotta skyscrapers that are becoming more and more in vogue in all large cities and the market that looms before the new owners of the Northwestern company is a gratifying one.

Heller's firm has had its most rapid rise in opulence within the last 10 years, during which time it has specialized in the manufacture of clothing for stout women.

The circumstances which led up to the selection of this line were described to a Post-Dispatch correspondent not long ago by the founder of the business. It was not a matter of choice, but of necessity, it seems, although since that time it has brought Heller a tremendous fortune.

"I have always been engaged in the manufacture of women's dresses," he said, "but about [illegible] years ago my health broke down and my physician told me I had the choice between giving up my business or becoming a nervous wreck. I decided I would have to get out of the actual grind of business, so I took in a partner and left him in charge of the plant while I spent a few months in Colorado. When I came back my business was a wreck. Our season had been a failure and we had lost money and customers. My competitors had taken my trade away and I saw a hard struggle ahead in rehabilitating myself. Then came the idea of specializing in 'stouts.' So I reorganized my business, found there was a constant and steady demand for larger sizes in stylish cuts and I outstripped my competition in short order. Now the business is independent and I am retiring with enough to keep me comfortably for the rest of my days. I want my employes to have their share of the profits their faithfulness has earned.

"I am not a socialist nor a believer in socialism. I have never busied myself in political or sociological movements, but I have always felt that the producer of wealth, the man whose intelligence and energy are thrown into an enterprise and help to make it successful, has an inherent right to a greater share of the profits than a mere salary. I would call it a matter of humanitarianism."

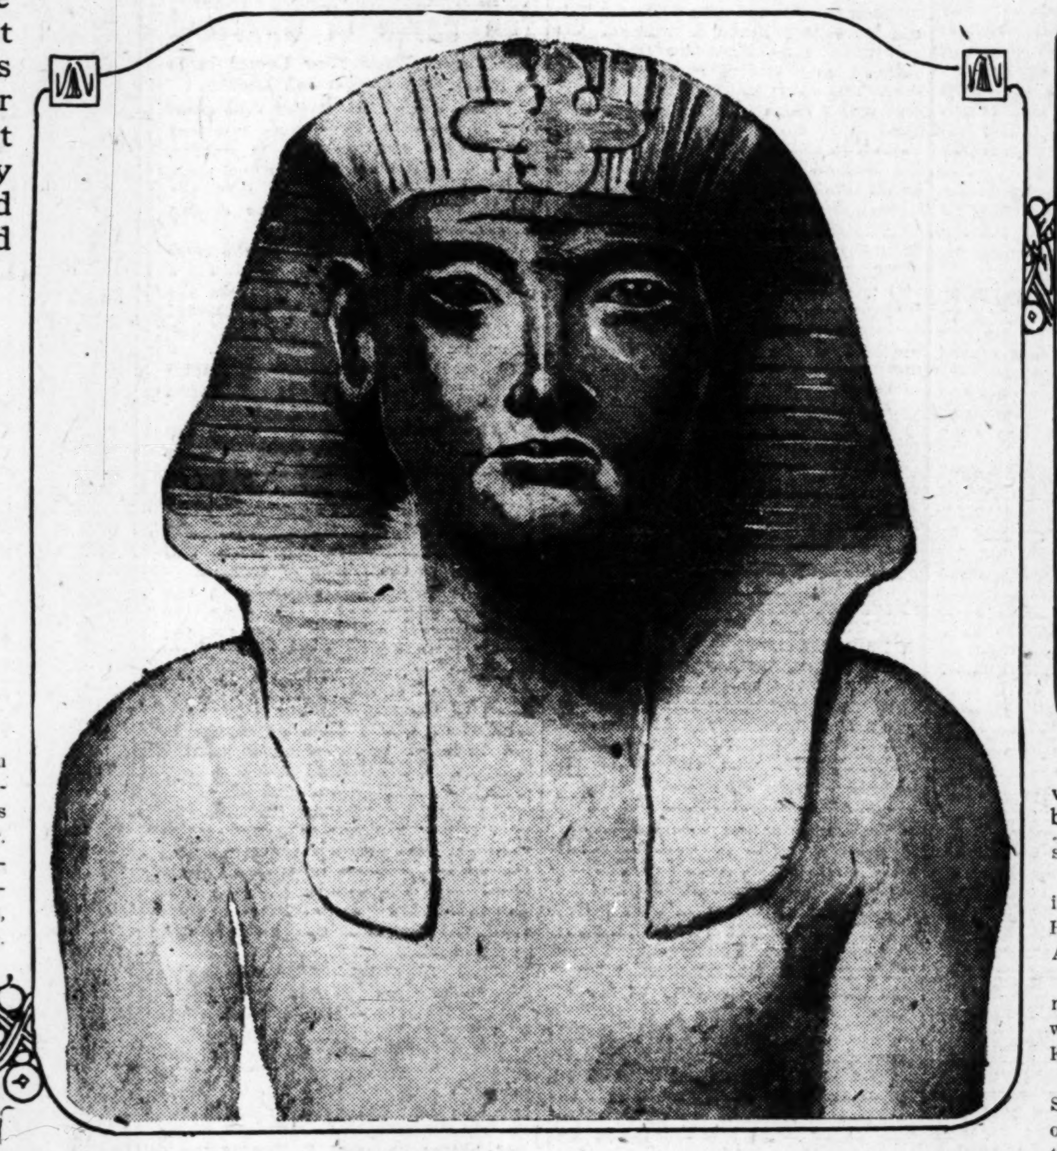
Tutankhamen and His Times and Why His Tomb, Just Opened, Is So Rich in Treasures of His Reign

HIS YOUNG WIDOW'S ROMANCE WITH HITTITE PRINCE, AN HEREDITARY ENEMY, A FACTOR

Famous Archaeologist Suggests That Probably Wealth of the Dead Monarch Was Hidden There by Rebellious Court Functionaries to Keep It From Falling Into the Hands of Strangers—Famous in the History of His Country for Restoring the Ancient Gods of the People and the Great Temples After His Royal Father-in-Law, a Pacifist, Many of Whose Teachings Foreshadowed Those of Christ, Had Destroyed All Idols and Ordered That Only One God Should Be Worshiped.



Photograph of the bust of the statue of Tutankhamen in the Museum at Cairo, Archeologists who have seen the images of the Pharaoh taken from the tomb at Luxor say they are alike. They probably were made from the same death mask, as were all funerary statues in those days.

One of the two beds taken from the first chamber of the tomb. It is of wood and what appears to be closely woven wicker work. The objects seen strapped to the bed are bows in wrappings and bronze gilded walking sticks.

A NEW chapter in the romantic story of ancient Egypt and the kings and courts and pageantry of long ago is expected to be written this week when Howard Carter and Lord Carnarvon, with their staff of Egyptologists, assemble and digest the data brought to light Friday with the entry into the mortuary chamber of Tutankhamen and the discovery of the sarcophagus of the once powerful Pharaoh.

Interesting were the scenes that attended the entry into that one remaining unexplored chamber. A notable assemblage, attracted to the tomb by the recent finds of fabulous treasures, waited in agitated suspense at the entrance while the investigators, after breaking the seals of the inner door, made their way into the last compartment and flashed their electric torches upon the great canopy in which the ancient monarch's body has rested for 3300 years in the Valley of the Tombs of the Kings.

Far and wide about Luxor, at Thebes, Alexandria and at Karnak, all of ancient origin, and each with wonderful old tombs of its own, a tense excitement prevailed as the time for the entry into the last chamber approached, and it was not confined to archeologists and tourists. The natives, many of them illiterate, looked forward to the event with an awe akin to that which the expected resurrection of a deity might inspire.

The opening of that third chamber was an occasion of tremendous import for Luxor, as, indeed, the other work of exploration has been. Tourists will flock to the ancient city's necropolis and fabulous will be the prices they will pay for trivial fragments of pottery dug from the pits. A mummified skull or foot or hand, picked up in the valley that is filled with the royal dead of antiquity will be worth its weight in gold to the curiosity seekers.

Daily, while millions of dollars' worth of royal treasures are being carried from the newly opened tomb up the face of the cliff to the cave where a laboratory has been set up, the natives search the debris thrown out by the excavators for precious fragments of pottery. To them the curios of the ruins mean more than the gold-trimmed chariots and the jeweled throne chairs for these vast treasures are beyond the comprehension of their imagination.

A tray of relics from Tutankhamen's tomb, all of which have been carefully numbered and catalogued. The box is held in the hand of Howard Carter, American archeologist, who is conducting the search with Lord Carnarvon.

Even Experienced Archeologists Amazed

But not only is the simple-minded populace awestruck. The investigators themselves—scientists who have penetrated into the treasure houses of more than one ancient sovereign—find it hard to believe their eyes as, one by one, gorgeous pieces of royal furniture, priceless works of ancient art, and dazzling, bejeweled ornaments continue to come from the recesses of the burial place, further enhancing the collection which already stands unrivaled as the greatest archeological find in history.

Nowhere, from Greece, Rome or from the site of ancient Babylon, have such treasures come to light and nowhere in Egypt has a yield of such artistic and historical importance—not to speak of intrinsic value—been unearthed. Here are some of the most notable of the hundreds of articles already taken from the antechamber:

A magnificent gem-studded throne, unequalled anywhere or at any time as a work of art.

Two life-size statues of the King, with the feet inclosed in massive golden slippers.

Used chariots of the King, inlaid with gems and ivory.

Perfect specimens of the Pharaonic Queen's robes, one a delicate and daring creation of diaphanous beads.

Priceless alabaster vases and an alabaster wine cup of the King.

Wands of office bearing the finest gold filigree work.

Historical stone inscriptions of momentous importance, throwing light upon an age that had hitherto been veiled in darkness.

One of the greatest revelations, both from an artistic and historical viewpoint, is that of Tutankhamen himself from his life-sized statues found guarding the door of the inner chamber. One sees a handsome, calm and kindly, yet forceful, countenance—obviously a true portrait, because it was obtained by means of plaster casts, familiar to the Egyptians of that remote age, though not known to Greek artists until a thousands years later.

Importance of the Artistic Finds

The magnificent throne probably is artistically, historically and archeologically the most eloquent of all—a gem of workmanship transcending all other objects in the priceless collection. When it is remembered that it was made more than 3000 years ago, when its wondrous beauty of design and workmanship are considered, its finders have declared, it may be justly described in the words of Prof. James Henry Breasted as "one of the wonders of the world: the work of a master artist of all time, compared with whom the greatest artists among the Greeks and of the Italian Renaissance of the Louis XIV period are mere hacks."

The discovery of the delicate and ravishing bead net robe, which was undoubtedly the property of the Queen, points to the survival of a custom which even in Tutankhamen's day, had become ancient. In the thirtieth century B. C., it is said, the physician of King Zozer, worried by the chronic melancholia with which the monarch was afflicted, ordered the most beautiful women of the district to dress in these diaphanous bead robes and row the King in his barge around the sacred lake of Karnak. It appears that the fashion enjoyed long popularity with Egyptian Kings, but the garments of Tutankhamen's Queen are said to be the only perfect specimens of the daring costume now in existence.

What explains the vast richness of the treasure deposit in this particular tomb—the tomb of a King who evidently died in early manhood before he had opportunity to attain either the power or prestige of some of his ancestors? Though Tutankhamen maintained his court in splendid style, there is nothing in his career to indicate that his fame entitled him to a mark of respect so far transcending the homage paid to other Pharaohs. What, then, was the reason for all this tribute to a youthful ruler?

Presence of Such Treasures Explained

Prof. Flinders Petrie, noted Egyptologist of University College, London, has advanced a theory which, he believes, goes far toward solving the problem. His opinion is that there was more than the funeral custom behind this deposit.

In a recent issue of "Ancient Egypt," an English publication, Prof. Petrie deals with some letters discovered at Boghaz which shed considerable light upon events that followed the death of the young monarch and suggest to him a plausible reason for the vast array of royal treasures being in the tomb of Tutankhamen instead of in those of some of his more celebrated predecessors.

Among the letters are two from Dakhamen, the 29-year-old widow of the young ruler, appealing to the Hittite King (a neighboring monarch) to permit one of his sons to marry her and become ruler of Egypt. The reason for the widowed Queen's appeal is set forth in the letter, which reads in part as follows:

> "My husband is dead; I have no children; your sons are said to be grown up. If to me one of your sons you give, and if he will be my husband he will be a great help to me. Send him accordingly and thereafter I will make him my husband. I send bridal gifts."

There evidently was confusion or distrust in the mind of the Hittite King, Prof. Petrie comments, for he sent his secretary to Egypt, enjoining him: "A true report do you bring back why she has written the letter to me, and as to the son of their ruler, what has become of him."

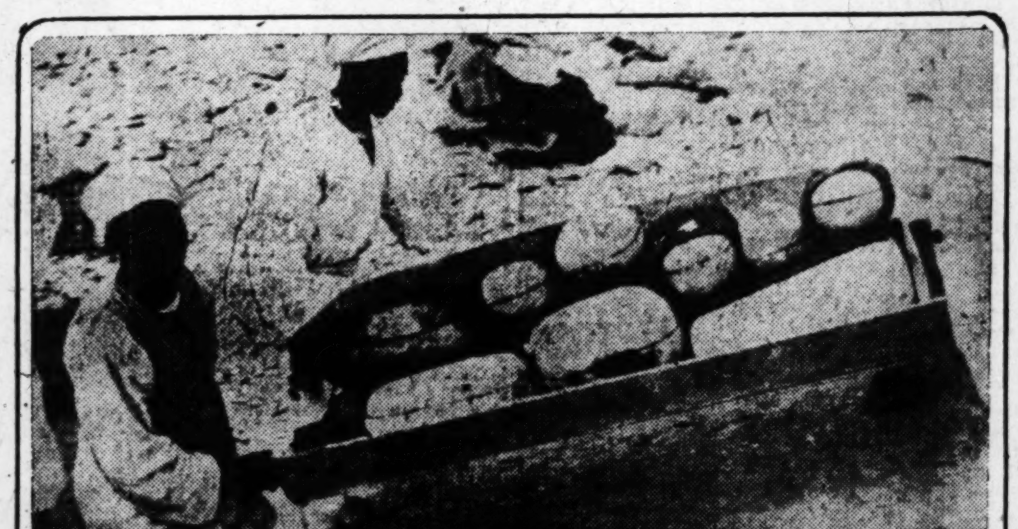
Dakhamen then repeated her request, it appears, explaining that her husband was dead and that she had no son and adding: "So to me one of your sons give and he as my husband in the land of Egypt shall be King."

It seems that the bargain was carried out in spite of strenuous opposition on the part of powerful persons at the Egyptian court and that the widow selected a son of the Hittite King to be her husband.

"The bearing of this piece of evidence upon the recent finds in Luxor," Prof. Petrie says, "is to my mind that it supplies a clew to the mystery of the extraordinary richness and variety of the finds. What probably happened was that, when a stranger, a Hittite and an hereditary enemy of the Egyptian people, came to rule over the land, all the royal treasures were piled into Tutankhamen's tomb, so that they might not fall into the hands of the stranger."

What became of the Queen and her Hittite husband are questions which, the archeologists believe, may be answered when the tomb has told its complete story. There are many other facts as well concerning the life and reign of Tutankhamen which historians are expecting to clear up when all the inscriptions have been taken from the sepulcher. So far these facts have been veiled in uncertainty.

The Hittites, to whom frequent reference is made in the Old Testament, were an ancient and warlike people who inhabited an ill-defined domain in Syria to the north of Palestine proper, but overlapping part of the region occupied by the Israelites. In the times of the Pharaohs, when the provinces of Egypt were extended into Asia Minor, they constituted the northernmost enemies of the conquerors and were powerful enough to give Tethmosis I cause to vaunt his success in subjecting them to tribute.



Natives carrying embalmed beef—the original "canned willie" of army fame—from the sepulcher, where it had lain for some 3300 years. The beef was packed in small white boxes, 40 of which were found in the antechamber of the tomb.

A chest of fabric clothing of the period of Tutankhamen's reign, being carried out by native workmen.

Later, when the Egyptian provinces were breaking away during the reign of Amenophis IV, the Hittites were among the most savage of the Asiatic invaders.

A suggestion of their power and evidence of the respect in which they were held by the Syrians to whom they were sometimes hostile, is seen in II Kings (7:16), where we read:

"For the Lord had made the hosts of the Syrians to hear a noise of chariots, and a noise of horses, even the noise of a great host; and they said to one another, Lo, the King of Israel hath hired against us the kings of the Hittites, and the kings of the Egyptians, to come upon us. Wherefore they arose and fled in the twilight, and left their tents and their horses, even in the camp as it was, and fled for their lives."

It also appears from Biblical allusions that there survived in Palestine for many hundreds of years a detached Hittite population which with other minor tribes, such as the Amorites, the Canaanites and the Jebusites, maintained amicable relations with the Hebrews in spite of their religious differences. In Judges (3-5) is seen evidence that they frequently intermarried:

"And the children of Israel dwelt among the Canaanites, the Hittites and the Amorites. And they took their daughters to be their wives and gave their own daughters to their sons and served their gods."

Palestine Once Hittite Land.

In Joshua (1:4) is found a promise to him of Hittite territory—"from the wilderness and this Lebanon even unto the great river, the river Euphrates, all the land of the Hittites." The Encyclopedia Britannica here comments that the term "wilderness" is of geographical ambiguity, but that the promise is usually taken to mean that Palestine itself was part of the Hittite land before the coming of Israel, and an apostrophe of Ezekiel (16:8) to Jerusalem, "Thy mother was an Hittite," is quoted in confirmation.

The fact that the Hittites sometimes served under the Hebrew Kings is revealed in the account of David's maneuvers to gain possession of the wife of Uriah, an Hittite. In Kings (9:20, 21), appears testimony that Israel in the time of Solomon made a determined effort to destroy the remnants of the Hittite race within its borders and made bondsmen of the survivors:

"As for all the people that were left of the Amorites, the Hittites, the Perizzites, the Hivites and the Jebusites, who were not of the children of Israel; their children that were left after them in the land, whom the children of Israel were not able utterly to destroy, of them did Solomon raise a levy of bondservants unto this day. But of the children of Israel did Solomon make no bondservants; but they were the men of war, and his servants, and his princes, and his captains and rulers of his chariots and of his horsemen."

Thus are the Biblical Hittites linked with those of the days of Tutankhamen.

The reign of Tutankhamen, who was the last Pharaoh, except one, of the Eighteenth Dynasty, is believed to have begun about the year 1350 B. C., when he came to the throne of Egypt through his marriage, at an early age, to one of the daughters of Amenophis IV, a peace-loving monarch and dreamer, who has been described as "the first individual in history."

Little, apparently, is known of his parentage or of his life prior to the beginning of his reign, but it is evident that he grew up in a period that marked Thebes' greatest splendor; that he witnessed as a child the construction of some of the ancient world's most magnificent temples, and that about the scene of his boyhood there revolved a court gaiety rivaled throughout all history for its opulence only by the courts of Bagdad as described in Arabian Nights. His age at the time of his marriage and the details of his early connection with the court remain obscure.

All evidence now available indicates that the job which the young King found upon his hands after his marriage and ascension to the throne was far from a pleasant one. His royal father-in-law, it appears, had been a pacifist and pacifists 3300 years ago had about as much trouble with their universal peace theories as pacifists do now. At any rate, they didn't prosper in their attempts to keep their empires solvent while they devoted their attention to reforming the world through disarmament and new religions. Tutankhamen, on becoming King, was immediately confronted with the problem of rehabilitating a bankrupt kingdom and re-establishing his royal credit among his subjects. The stage set for him demanded a reactionary, so Tutankhamen became a reactionary with a vengeance.

The Reign of Tutankhamen

A review of the reigns immediately preceding his own best discloses the conditions with which he was called upon to deal.

About the year 1400 B. C., Amenophis III succeeded his powerful and warlike father, Tethmosis IV, to the throne and became ruler over the wide dominions the latter had acquired through wars of conquest. The ruling passion of Amenophis, however, was for architecture rather than war, and he used the stream of gold poured into his coffers by subject states in a building program which marked a new epoch in history with the construction, of the greatest of Egyptian temples. Luxor was his creation and long avenues of rams and pylons were added to the architectural splendor of Karnak.

His sway was long unquestioned. Rulers of great kingdoms beyond the rivers, Mitanni, Assyria and Babylonia, sought his friendship and gave their daughters to him in marriage.

His favorite wife, however, was a woman of humble origin named Taia, who came from a foreign land and who brought with her a secret hatred for Egypt and the old Egyptian gods. Several daughters were born to Amenophis and Taia, but it was not until 25 years after their marriage that a son was born. The boy was sickly and weak and slightly deformed, but he was destined to become a powerful King and the most remarkable character in the long line of Pharaohs. This son was Amenophis IV, who later changed his name to Akhenaton. When he became King at the age of 18 the Queen-mother, Taia, remained the power behind the throne.

Just what her influence had to do with the uprising that he soon brought about is not certain, but it is believed that her foreign blood caused her to inspire in her son the idea of a new religion.

At any rate, Akhenaton had hardly mounted the throne when he began a determined war upon Egypt's old gods. He stripped the temples of their images of the old-time warlike and bloodthirsty god, Ammon, and forbade the worship of idols throughout the land. He even decreed that the names of the old deities should be effaced from the tombs of his ancestors and laid down drastic edicts against the offering of living sacrifices.

The new religion he taught was one that literally foreshadowed the teachings of Christ 1300 years before Christ was born. He held that Aton,

RODOLPH VALENTINO'S RISE TO STARDOM A ROMANCE OF THE MOVIES

Such parts as he did get usually were villains of one kind or another. His first chance to play a sympathetic role, he relates, was in a picture that became involved in a lawsuit soon after being finished, and never was released.

While struggling along in this way he was married. He tells about it in one of the affidavits filed in his litigation with Famous Players.

"On Nov. 4, 1919," the affidavit states, "I married one Jean Acker, a motion picture actress, in Los Angeles. Six hours after our marriage she deserted me and went to live with a woman friend with whom she has liver ever since except that a month after my marriage she spent one night with me and left again the next morning.

Tells How Jean Acker Deserted Him.

"For three months I tried to persuade my wife to return to me and then we grew estranged and meant nothing whatever to each other. My wife was making $200 a week and I was not at all successful financially at that time and made less than she did.

"Since we were totally estranged by no later than March 1, 1920, I lived as a single man and waited for the year to expire as required by California laws to institute an action for divorce. My wife instituted an action for separate maintenance after my success in 'The Four Horsemen,' and I seemed to be a financial asset to her. I instituted an action for divorce which she bitterly contested.

I did not know Miss Winifred Hudnut, whom I have since married, at the time, and did not feel any personal friendship or attachment for her for a long time after the divorce."

The story of Mrs. Valentino No. 1 differs from this widely. She is now playing in vaudeville under the name of Valentino and while in New York recently said that the divorce was obtained while she was ill and unable to defend the action.

Valentino's first real chance came in July, 1920, when he was cast as the dancing hero in the Metro picture "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." It was released the following March. The rest is screen history. His success was sensational and he was "made" over night.

He gives all the credit for this opportunity to Miss June Mathis, who wrote the scenario for the film and saw in him the ideal type for the part.. After "The Four Horsemen" he had the movie world at his feet. His success in the film was due largely to a picturesque dancing scene in which he was the chief figure.

He was given the leading part in another Metro picture, "Uncharted Seas." Nazimova, who was a star under the same management, was preparing to apper in "Camille." Her art director and costume designer was Winifred Hudnut, known in the picture colony as Natcha Rambova. Largely through her influence, the rising young Valentino was given the chance to play Armand to Nazimova's Camille. Again his work was a great success.

Present Wife Helped Him to Rise.

His association with Miss Rambova, who afterward was revealed as the stepdaughter of Richard Hudnut, the widely known perfume manufacturer of New York, and her help during the making of the picture resulted in their marriage.

Before this occurred, however, Valentino left Metro and went to work for Famous Players. He made three pictures under their management—"The Shiek," "Moran of the Lady Letty," and "Beyond the Rocks." He was then offered and accepted a contract for three years at $1250 a week.

"At that time I knew nothing of the motion picture business," he said in a recent interview. "I only knew the acting end of it and not much of that. Until then I had only worked on a picture to picture basis, so I had never investigated how big contracts were made.

"I thought my portrayal of the Shiek, as I was forced to play it, was ridiculous. I could not play that man naturally, but must make him like a college freshman. The other two pictures were unsuited to me. I am too Latin to play an Anglo-Saxon convincingly. Still I was happy in my association with the company as they always treated me very courteously.

"The moment I signed my contract, the attitude of the company changed. They knew they had me tied up unfairly, and so they determined to break my will before I had time to learn to protest."

Valentino's affidavits are full of instances of alleged unfair treatment by the company. In one of them he also sets forth a statement of how he spent his salary up to the time "I ceased to work for the company." To show that $1250 a week was not sufficient for him to live on he gives the following list of expenditures:

Weekly payment on home, $278.

Weekly payment to company for advances made, $250.

Weekly payment to bank on loans, $250.

Salary to secretary, $25.

Cost of answering "fan" letters, $200.

Wages to butler and cook, $41.50.

Household expenses, $50.

Gas and oil for cars, $15.

Board of two riding horses, $16.

Foreign representative, $25.

Interest on property, $30.

Dresser, $15.

Commission to professional broker, $125.

Total, $1850 while the salary was only $1250.

In the midst of his difficulties with his employers came his marriage to Miss Hudnut in Mexico. Of this his affidavit states:

"On May 11, 1922, I left Palm Springs, Cala., with a party including Miss Hudnut. We proceeded to Mexicali, Mexico, where I was married to Miss Hudnut. * * * Before our departure for Los Angeles the newspapers had made much capital of what they termed my bigamous marriage and there were rumors that criminal action would be taken against me.

"Upon my arrival in Los Angeles I went to my home and Mrs. Valentino went to her home and we did not reside together. A conference was held with Famous Players-Lasky officials and my attorney, and they demanded that Mrs. Valentino immediately proceed to New York.

Says His Wife Was Mistreated.

"Naturally Mrs. Valentino and myself were very much distressed. We had both done what we had done without any wrong intent whatsoever. The court had decided over my first wife's objections that I was justified in obtaining a divorce and Mrs. Valentino and myself had contracted the second marriage in the same honorable spirit in which men and women usually marry. * * *

"The company provided Mrs. Valentino with a ticket and a lower berth, which they charged to me, and she was compelled to make the four-day trip without any protection or any privacy where she could hide her sorrow. * * * It is customary for motion picture stars and executives to take this trip in a drawing room or a compartment because they are in public life and it is recognized that they must have privacy.

"The brutality on the part of the company in sending Mrs. Valentino East in a lower berth would be more apparent perhaps to one in the motion picture business knowing the conditions and practices thereof. * * * On her trip East she was being constantly annoyed by newspaper representatives who would not leave her in peace."

Valentino further relates that when he was arrested May 20, 1922 on a charge of bigamy the company refused to furnish the $10,000 bail and it was put up by Thomas Meighan. He was cleared of the bigamy charge, June 5.

The affidavit continues:

Near Prostration From Strain.

"My distress at my separation, almost at the altar, from my wife, my sympathy for her own grief and the troubles of my litigation were heavy, but I continued to act without any delays in 'The Young Rajah' and the quality of that picture * * * will gauge the sincerity of my efforts.

"Then came letters and telegrams from Mrs. Valentino of extraordinary treatment that she was receiving from the New York office of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. The brutality of this treatment was such that I nearly broke down under the strain. I protested to Mr. Eyton about the conditions and asked that the company send me to New York for the next picture, so that I could see Mrs. Valentino. He said: 'We ought to reduce your salary. You are getting too much money, anyway.'

"At this time I wrote a letter to the president of the company. * * * He never answered it. * * * I left Los Angeles, as before stated, on Aug. 10, 1922."

By this act, the company charges, he breached his contract. They asked and were granted an injunction forbidding him to work for any other

The Value of Charcoal

Few People Know How Useful It Is In Preserving Health and Beauty.

Nearly everybody knows that charcoal is the safest and most efficient disinfectant and purifier in nature, but few realize its value when properly prepared and taken into the human system for the same cleansing purpose.

Charcoal is a remedy that the more you take of it the better; it is not a drug at all, but simply absorbs the gases and impurities always present in the stomach and intestines and carries them out of the system.

Charcoal sweetens the breath after smoking, and after eating onions and other odorous vegetables.

Charcoal effectually clears and improves the complexion, it whitens the teeth and further acts as a natural and eminently safe cathartic.

It absorbs the injurious gases which collect in the stomach and bowels; it disinfects the mouth and throat from the poison of catarrh.

All druggists sell charcoal in one form or another, but probably the best charcoal and the most for the money is in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges; they are composed of the finest quality Willow charcoal powdered to extreme fineness, then compressed in tablet form or rather in the form of large, pleasant tasting lozenges, the charcoal being sweetened to be smooth and palatable.

The daily use of these lozenges will soon tell in a much improved condition of the general health, better complexion, sweeter breath and purer blood, and the beauty of it is that no possible harm can result from their continued use, but on the contrary, great benefit.

Many physicians advise Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges to patients suffering from gas in stomach and bowels, and to clear the complexion and purify the breath, mouth and throat. They are also believed to greatly benefit the liver. These lozenges cost but thirty cents a box at drug stores, and you get more and better charcoal in Stuart's Absorbent Lozenges than in any of the ordinary charcoal tablets.

Safeguarding Your Estate

Continued Existence

WHEN considering the appointment of an executor and trustee for your estate, you naturally think of some friend or relative who can assume such duties.

Your selection will depend on the maturity, experience and business judgment of the individual.

In most cases the individual you select would be somewhere near your own age. Consequently it would be an even chance that you would outlive him, which would necessitate revising your will and naming a new executor. If he should outlive you, his ability to administer your estate might be impaired through age or through decline in physical and mental strength.

You can provide against the uncertainties of individual life by appointing the St. Louis Union Trust Company to care for your affairs. Our experience, financial responsibility and continued corporate existence assure to your estate a proper administration.

RODOLPH VALENTINO'S RISE TO STARDOM A ROMANCE OF THE MOVIES

company or individual. Under its terms he is tied up until the contracts expire late in 1924—almost two years hence. Yet Valentino is undaunted.

"I cannot work for the Famous Players-Lasky corporation," he states. "I cannot endure the tyranny, the broken promises, the arrogance or the system of production. I cannot forget the cruelty of the company to Mrs. Valentino. I cannot look forward to a sure eclipse of what promises to be a lasting career of great success, provided that I am permitted to make productions consistent with my drawing power."

Says He Was Subjected to Petty Annoyances.

Other charges againts the company contained in the affidavits are that while making "Blood and Sand" he was not given a dressing room on location, but was forced to make his changes under a blazing sun in an open car; that his Toreador costume was so tight he could wear no underclothing and that, consequently, he suffered great humiliation and embarrassment; that while at the studio he was compelled to lie down to rest ona concrete floor in the embroidered costume which weighed 50 pounds because the company would not furnish him a proper dressing room or a couch.

The Famous Players Corporation's reply to these charges is a denial and a counter-charge that Valentino's head had become so swelled that he had hallucinations of mistreatment when, in reality, the treatment he was receiving was only such inconvenience as picture actors on location must always expect when they realize they cannot have such luxurious surroundings as they are provided with when working in the studios. It contends that Valentino imagined these things because he was looking for a chance to break his contract because he had a very large offer from a source that would have ignored him but for the vogue among picture fans that the corporation had created for him through its powerful and far-reaching publicity organization.

Although Valentino at no time makes mention of a desire for an increase in salary as being a reason for his leaving the company's employ, he includes a list of screen stars and their salaries at the time he was receiving $1250 a week. It follows:

Alla Nazimova, $10,000 a week and a share in the profits.

Thomas Meighan, $5000 a week.

Alice Brady, $4000 a week.

Dorothy Dalton, $5000 a week.

Norma Talmadge, $10,000 a week.

Constance Talmadge, $4000 a week.

Mary Pickford (when with Famous Players long prior to 1921 and when movie actors' salaries were much smaller), $10,000 a week. She is now making her own pictures and taking all the profit or loss.

Mary Miles Minter, $8000 a week.

Gloria Swanson, $4500 a week.

William Farnum, $10,000 a week.

Robert Warwick, $3000 a week.

That Valentino's popularity with feminine movie fans has not abated because of his absence from the screen is evident in a recent occurrence in a New York vaudeville house where his first wife was playing under the name of Mrs. Rodolf Valentino. She received so many threatening letters from women who were jealous of her bearing the name of their beloved "Sheik" that the police were called in to investigate.

She also charged that at every performance there was noise and talking in the most dramatic spots in her act, and that this was an attempt to force her off the stage. Women sympathizers of Rodolph's also gathered about the stage door and shouted unfriendly words after her as she stepped into her motor car.

Valentino has announced that he will try to have her restrained from using his name in her stage work. She in reply contends that she is entitled to it, even after the decree of divorce becomes final and he is free to marry Miss Hudnut again.

Rodolph himself is on a vaudeville tour. He is forbidden by injunction to appear in any act, but he delivers a lecture and his wife dances with another partner. It gives his admirers a chance to see him in person.

A far cry from the time eight years ago when he landed as a penniless immigrant boy!

"I am not worried," he says. "The American public is the most fair-minded in the world. I know that my following will not forget me while I am barred from making pictures. The time will come when I shall be able to do that again."

AUTO SHOW SETS NEW RECORD FOR SALES

Hundreds of Cars Sold at Most Successful Show Ever Held.

The sixteenth annual automobile show which passed out last night in the Universal Building at 11 p. m. with the honking of horns and the flashing of headlights was the most successful show ever conducted by the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association.

The show has proven what the leading lights of the industry have preached for the past few months, "that 1923 will be the biggest year in the history." Never before has there been as many saleas made for immediate deliveries as were recorded last week.

Heretofore many of the exhibitors felt well satisfied if they sold only a car a day at the show, feeling that the prospects obtained would more than repay them for the expense incurred. But this year new records were established for both retail and wholesale sales. Several of the firms, particularly those handling a medium-priced car, report sales for immediate deliveries of over 100 cars each.

The show also attracted one of the largest gatherings of out-of-town dealers and factory officials that ever attended a St. Louis show.

Dealers from practically every town in Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois, which is considered as the regular St. Louis territory, registered during the week; while Arkansas, Kentucky, Tennessee, Oklahoma, North Dakota and New Mexico also was represented by dealers from various parts in these states.

Every factory whose products are handled by a St. Louis distributer as well as many others whose lines are not now represented had at least one factory official here during the week. In most cases several officials from each factory took in the show.

Many Dealer Meetings.

The gathering of dealers and factory officials resulted in more meetings being held in St. Louis than has been the case for several years.

Meetings were held by the Mound City Auto Co. for Gardner and Auburn dealers, by the Vesper Buick Auto Co. for Buick dealers, by the Newell Motor Car Co. for Paige and Jewett dealers, by the Southwest Nash Co. for Nash and Lafayette dealers, by the Weber Implement and Auto Co. for Hupmobile dealers and by the Advance Motors for Columbia dealers. Several other firms also entertained a number of their dealers during the week at luncheons at various hotels.

The Mound City Auto Co. held their meeting Tuesday noon at the Marquette Hotel, with Joseph A. Schlect, president of the company, presiding. Russell E. Gardner Jr., vice president in charge of sales at the Gardner Motor Co., Inc., of St. Louis, and William N. Albee, president of the William N. Albee Corporation of Detroit, the advertising agency that represents the Gardner factory, were the principal speakers.

Gardner told the dealers that the automobile industry had passed through two periods and was now entering the third period.

Gardner Production Large.

Gardner told that while the average production increase in the industry during 1922 had been 135 per cent, that of the Gardner Motor Co. had been 600 per cent.

Albee told of the advertising and merchandising plans outlined by the Gardner factory for this year, which, he claims, should enable the dealers throughout the country to more than double the sales this year. He also stated that the Gardner company was the eighth largest of the 32 American builders of four-cylinder automobiles, naming the "Ford, Chevrolet, Dodge, Maxwell, Essex and Hupmobile as being the only manufacturers that build more cylinder cars than the Gardner company."

The Vesper Buick Auto Co. meeting was held at the Melbourne Hotel with President F. W. A. Vesper presiding. E. T. Strong, general sales manager of the Buick Motor Car Co., who was the principal speaker, stated that the plans at the factory call for 200,000 Buick cars for 1923 and a production of 300,000 in 1924.

He also stated that he can see no let-up in business for many months to come and that the general feeling among the industry that prices will start on an upward slant before the year is well advanced.

The Weber Implement and Auto Co. meeting was held Wednesday noon on the second floor of their large building at Nineteenth and Locust streets.

O. C. Hutchinson, general sales manager of the Hupp Motor Car Corporation of Detroit, who was the principal speaker, stated that the 1923 production scheduled called for 40,000 Hupmobiles, but that it was his belief that this quantity will not be sufficient to meet the demands.

The Newell Motor Car Co. banquet was held Wednesday, following a dinner at the Chase Hotel, where one of the new Paige cars was exhibited in the salon.

James E. Newell, president of the Newell Motor Car Co., presided at the meeting of Paige and Jewett dealers, which was addressed by Henry Kron, vice president, in charge of sales of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co.

Paige to Build 65,000 Cars.

Krohn said today that his company has decided on a total production of 65,000 Jewetts and Paiges for the year 1923. He said that this was unusually high, in view of the Jewetts having first been placed in production last April. Since that time 25,000 Jewetts have been sold, Krohn said.

Having been in the automobile industry nearly all of his business life and since the inception in 1910 of the Paige company, a member of its organization, Krohn is recognized as being fully qualified to speak on business conditions in the industry.

He bases his prediction for a prosperous year for the auto business on the Paige and Jewett sales at the Middle-West automobile shows. These were 98 in Chicago, 76 in Detroit and 29 in Cleveland, he said.

Krohn said everything indicated that prices of automobiles would increase during the year. The competitive bidding for labor, which increased wages, the increase in the price of materials and the inadequacy of railroad transportation were cited as causes for the expected increase in prices.

The Southwest Nash Motor Co. meeting was held Thursday at the Claridge Hotel. Charles W. Nash, president, and Earl H. McCarty, sales manager of the Nash Motors Co. of Kenosha, Wis., were the principal speakers.

Nash stated that the sales in the circuit of shows is larger this year than ever before. At the Buffalo show 62 Nash cars were sold at retail; at the Cleveland show, 48, and at the Chicago show, 93 Nash cars and two Nash trucks. He said the Nash sales at the St. Louis show were the largest recorded.

Nash to Build 60,000 Cars.

Earl H. McCarty, sales manager of the Nash Motors Co., declared that the Nash factory had adopted a production schedule of 60,000 cars for 1923. He said the production so far during 1923 exceeded that of the first three months of 1922 and has been far below orders. He advised the dealers to stock as many cars as possible because of the likelihood that prices would advance and told that the Nash factory had abandoned a plan of stocking cars during the winter to meet spring demands because the present demand absorbed the entire production.

Other speakers at the meeting were E. M. Newald, assistant vice president of the Commercial Investment Trust, Inc., of New York City; E. J. Mudd of the National Bank of Commerce, and H. J. Smith, vice president of the Southwest Nash Co.; Frank C. McDonald, president of the company, presided; John A. Harszy, cashier of the Southern Illinois Bank of East St. Louis; Harry Newman of Harry Newmana, Inc., St. Louis Nash dealer; R. F. Worrell of the Worrell-Nash Motor Co., St. Louis Nash dealer, and Charles Luft, Alton Nash dealer.

The Advance Motors Co. meeting Thursday was held at the Chase Hotel. Luke E. Hart, president of the compaany; Robert E. Lee, secretary-manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association and show manager, and N. I. Taylor, sales promotion manager of the Columbia Motors Co. of Detroit were the principal speakers.

Taylor stated that the average automobile dealer spent more time buying used cars than selling new ones. He declared the proper solution was for each dealer to use proper business judgment in determining used-car allowances and to first sell his own product to the prospect before making an allowance on a used car.

He declared that the dealer who handled used cars only took the cream of the used-car business and left to the new-car dealer chiefly the cars which he himself was unable to buy at their proper value.

Tires With 500 Nail Holes Leak No Air

Mr. B. Milburn of Chicago has invented a new puncture-proof inner tube which, in actual test, was punctured 500 times without the loss of any air. Increase your mileage from 10,000 to 12,000 miles without removing this wonderful tube from the wheel, and the beauty of it all is that this new puncture-proof tube costs no more than the ordinary tube, and makes riding a real pleasure. You can write Mr. B. Milburn at 333 West 47th St., Chicago, as he wants them introduced everywhere. Wonderful opportunity for agents. If interested, write him today.

JOHN T. MILLIKEN JR. JOINS BISHOP MOTORS

John T. Milliken Jr., son of the late millionaire chemical manufacturer, during the past week entered the automobile business and is now connected in an official position with the Bishop Motors Corporation, distributers of the Earl and Mercer cars.

Milliken made his debut at the Auto Show where the Bishop Motors exhibited for the first time the new 1923 Earl carbriole and Mercer sport touring.

COLE SEES EXPANSION IN FINE CAR SALES

Great as has been the production and sales of automobiles in 1922, many far-sighted executives of the automotive industry believe there are still bigger years immediately ahead. They point out that the farmers' buying power was not felt in anything like its full measure during 1922.

"Disordered foreign conditions have hurt the agricultural interests more, perhaps, than any other producing or commercial element of this country," said J. J. Cole, president of the Cole Motor Car Co. of Indianapolis, Wednesday while visiting the Hutcheson Motor Car Co. display at the automobile show.

"Statisticians and economists generally do not seem to realize that the farmer is our country's greatest exporter. As a result of the restriction of the export market farmers have been compelled to work their way out. And they are doing it, too.

"Automobiles will be bought in increasing quantities, first because those in rural communities have been held long enough to require replacement, and, second, because the farmer will be attracted to new cars because of the lowered price levels."

DORRIS DISTILLATOR NOW MADE FOR FORDS

The Dorris "distillator," standard equipment on the Dorris car for the past two years, is now being manufactured for use on Ford cars. The distillator for Fords, which is designed by George P. Dorris, president of the Dorris Motor Car Co., made its appearance during the past week at the auto show. The distillator, it is claimed, prevents unvaporized gasoline from entering the combustion chamber of motors and thence descending to the crankcase to pollute the oil there. The unvaporized gasoline is returned to a chamber heated by the exhaust from the motor and there vaporized before it is sent into the combustion chamber.

The Ford distillator was displayed at the show both complete and in section beside the same device complete and in section for the Dorris.

ORTHWEIN MOTOR OPENS NEW CHEVROLET STORE

The Orthwein Motor Corporation, authorized Chevrolet dealer, located at Forest Park boulevard and Boyle avenue, has opened a sales branch on automobile row at 2920-22 Locust street. The new Locust street branch will be used for sales only. The building provides about 10,000 square feet of floor space. The showroom has been redecorated and a new lighting system makes it one of the most highly illuminated stores on Locust street.

The Orthwein Motor Corporation was formed by a number of prominent St. Louisans when the abandonment of the factory's retail store on Forest Park boulevard was decided on. Percy J. Orthwein is president, Webster Tilton is vice president and treasurer and John T. Abeles is secretary. Norman Deroy is store and sales manager of the Orthwein company.

TRAFFIC TRUCK CLIMBS MUNICIPAL COURT STEPS

A 6000-pound capacity Traffic truck created quite a sensation at the Municipal Courts Building Friday afternoon by driving up the long flight of steps from the curb to the door of the building. The truck, which was loaded to capacity, assended the steps with driver at the wheel. The driver then left the truck, which backed down the steps slowly on compression.

The feat was performed to demonstrate the new dual transmission now in use on Traffic trucks. The transmission, which is in reality two transmissions in one, has 10 speeds forward and six reverse. The lowest speed is geared 171 to 1. The truck has performed similar feats throughout the city.

NEW AIR CLEANER USED ON RICKENBACKER CARS

Replete with advanced touches and refinements in comfort and conveniences, the second series of the Rickenbacker Vibrationless Six, which was exhibited at the Automobile Show last week for the first time by the Diesing Motor Sales Co., newly appointed distributers for Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois, will make its debut in the new sales rooms of the company located at 3623 Washington avenue today.

One of the features of the new model is the air cleaner. The air cleaner purifies the air taken into the motor, removing all injurious particles of dust and other foreign matter which causes carbon and wear, a hot air stove giving the driver perfect control of the temperature of the air entering the carburetor, the installation of Bosch generators, starters and ignition, improved braking with automatic equalizer, a refined clutch, reduction in weight by replacement of aluminum for cast iron in many parts and members, a refined body design and construction of all body models and added comfort with special spring arrangement and the addition of such conveniences as heater and rear vision mirrors as regular equipment are features in the Series B. Rickenbacker.

With three models, a touring phaeton, sedan and coupe, inclosed cars predominate the Rickenbacker production and especial attention has been given again this year to the comfort and durability of the Rickenbacker bodies. Additional conveniences are to be noted in the new bodies, although in appearance the original Rickenbacker distinctiveness is retained.

The new air cleaner and hot stove is a complete innovation of the Rickenbacker engineering corps, and although extremely simple in design, has been proved decidedly efficient and effective. It is a progressive step toward longer life and added economy.

LARGE DEMAND FOR NEW EARL CABRIOLE

The demand for the new Earl cabriole, a five-passenger all-year car, which made its first appearance at the Auto Show last week, has far exceeded any other particular model of car that the Bishop Motors Corporation ever displayed at an auto show, according to the retail and wholesale sales reported by Frank Bishop, president of the company, at the close of the Auto Show last night.

The new model, which is classed as the headliner of the 1923 Earl family, has low, sweeping lines that give the new model a special distinction. It has gray Spanish leather within and gray and black without. The rear quarter windows of plate glass and each door panel can be raised or lowered. The individual seats can be tipped forward at right angles, the back folding flat. The doors are extra wide. Extra equipment ranges from the sun visor and dome light to the touring trunk at the rear, containing two suitcases and a hatbox. The cabriole is complete in appointments. Nickeled straps on the body and strips of maple on the deck protect the finish. It is priced at $1395.

D. M. Shaw, assistant sales manager and in charge of advertising at the Earl factory, who was an attendant at the Auto Show all last week, stated that from the number of orders received from dealers throughout the country since the introduction of the car at the New York show, the factory has arranged to double its production on this particular model over the number originally planned for this year.

Paine, Studebaker Manager.

W. D. Paine, well known in the automobile industry, has recently been appointed manager of the St. Louis branch of the Studebaker Corporation of America, builders of the Studebaker cars.

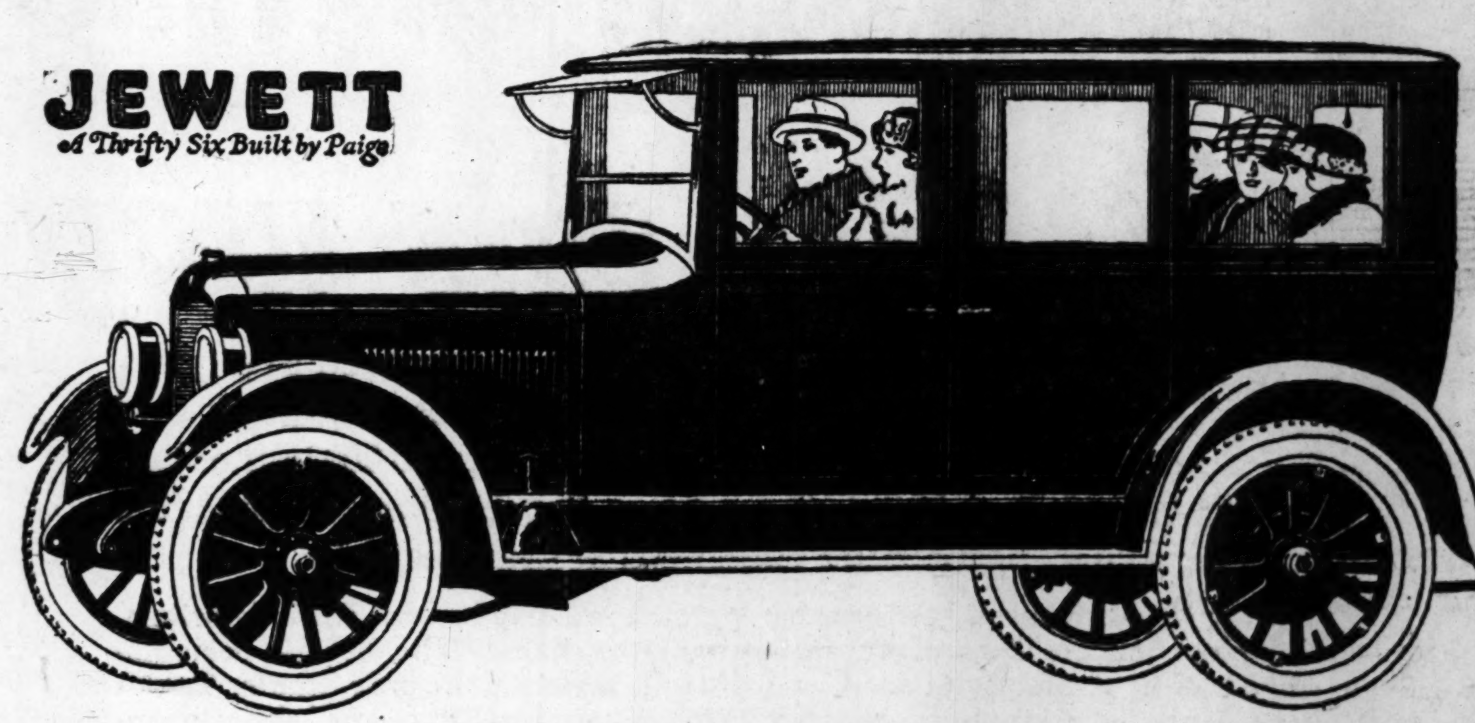
JEWETT
a Thrifty Six Built by Paige



This Jewett Sedan, $1465

Staunch, Powerful, Easy-Handling!

$635
Cash buys this Jewett Sedan.
Balance monthly

This Jewett Sedan has a staunchly built, double-braced body. Steel panels all around—no wall board and fabric makeshift. It is built to ruggedly match the long life of the sturdy Jewett chassis—the finest mechanical job of its size ever produced.

Jewett is the only medium-size, medium-price car built by a maker of high-grade cars. It is designed and built by the makers of the Paige—named after H. M. Jewett, president of the Paige Company—and worthy of his name. It has the staunchness, the performance, the dependability you expect to find in a high-grade car.

Stout Paige-Timken axles, sturdy wheels, rigidly braced six-inch frame—such strength of construction is typical of the Jewett. It is by 200 pounds the heaviest car of its size. And sturdy construction, remember, means long life and easy riding.

Jewett has the most powerful, best-oiled motor ever put into a car this size. It has 3¼ by 5 inch cylinders, delivering full 50 horsepower. So much power that in spite of its 2805 lbs. of weight, we will match the Jewett performance against any car at any price.

Jewett's high-gear range is from 2 to 60 miles per hour, or better. Jewett accelerates from 5 to 25 miles per hour in 7 seconds. Try it with any other car! And at all speeds the Jewett motor is smooth and silent. Its high-pressure oiling system sends a gallon of oil every 46 seconds to all main and connecting-rod bearings.

Long life is as sure in the Jewett motor as in the Jewett chassis. Metal never rubs metal—films of oil defeat friction at every point. Smooth silence and freedom from the penalties of wear are assured. No such motor in any other car at this price.

Jewett is the easiest handling car you ever tried. It has a new type clutch and transmission, the envy of all. It is the one car no one has to learn to drive. Gears shift instinctively—as fast as you can move your hand without clash or pause. And so smooth is the clutch that you cannot make it jerk the car.

Please let us show you this wonderfully performing, staunchly built Jewett Sedan. Sit behind the wheel yourself and put this Jewett through its paces. Let your family test its soft cushions and easy riding qualities and real roominess. We will send a car for you any time.

WHY TUTANKHAMEN'S TOMB IS SO RICH IN ROYAL TREASURES

the sun, was the source of life and therefore was the seat of divine power. The sunshine he called the smiles of Aton and living animals, he believed, embodied Aton's spirit, as did men. All life, then, was sacred, according to Akhenaton's belief, and it was a crime against Aton to shed blood in war or religious ceremony. History has pointed to him as a prophet living 3000 years ahead of his time—the first man in the era of written records who stood for spiritual qualities.

Where all the other Pharaohs appear as destroyers and conquerors, fading out of view in the vague reaches of antiquity with beat of war drum and rumble of chariot, he passes by as the poet, the dreamer and the idealist.

Akhenaton's esthetic nature rose in revolt against the sight of the somber clad priests at Thebes, chanting their hymns and prostrating themselves before the images of Ammon and he sickened at the smell of the burning flesh of sacrifice. When still a boy he gained the idea that a world of universal peace and charity was a possibility, and he determined to set up a new city as the seat of his religion, where there would be no reminders of the old gods and where coercion of the Theban priests would not be necessary. Thereupon, he reduced Thebes from a city of unparalleled splendor to a drab town of the provinces and built his capital on the edge of the desert, where Tel-el-Amarna now stands. And he called it Ekhaton, "The City of the Sun." There white palaces of marble sprang up, temples blazed in the sun and chariots of gold raced over the broad driveways. Armies were disbanded and court attention turned to the advancement of art and learning. It was thus that the first attempt at Utopia was made 3300 years ago.

But the world was no more ready for the millennium 3300 years ago than it has been since that time. There was no escaping the war god. A few years passed during which the peaceful King lived according to his creed. He wrote poems to Aton, sang of the sun's brightness and appeared with his daughters at court functions, but at the same time he allowed his empire to crumble. Neighboring rulers, who had courted his warlike father's favor, now, selfish, covetous and vengeful, regained their courage upon seeing his nation without an army and began to overrun his provinces. From the outlying territories came the reports of burning cities, the cry of refugees and the appeal for troops to repel the barbarous invaders.

Akhenaton held to his pacifist policy. All should be lost or won on that issue alone, he resolved, and he refused to muster armies or to shed a drop of blood in protecting his subjects. They were left to their own salvation.

As a result, provincial rulers refused to pay further tribute to support his court. Industries all over Egypt lagged. Trade was at a standstill and his efforts to get money from his rebellious subjects only increased their discontent. His dream of Utopia had been a dismal failure. Just when his empire was going to pieces, the disappointed King died in the seventeenth year of his reign. As he had no sons, two of his sons-in-law were in line to succeed him. The first was Smenkhara, who died after ruling for a year; the second was Tutankhamen.

Restored Old Gods to Favor.

This young ruler had ideas of his own about running a Government, although he probably was not more than 16 years of age at the time of his ascension. He was something of a diplomat as well as a reactionary, so, without abandoning Ekhaton entirely, he set about to restore to Karnak its ancient splendor, with new monuments dedicated to Ammon. He gathered up the straggling army and eventually moved the court back to Thebes. Then, firmly established again, he launched his program of undoing the work of Akhenaton.

He restored the names of the old gods to their wonted places, set up again the shrines which his heretic father-in-law had obliterated and rebuilt the temples from one end of Egypt to the other, reinstating in them the ancient idols. His reactionary measures put new life into the land of Egypt. Many of his subjects, in spite of Akhenaton's teachings, had secretly clung to their old customs and superstitions, and they rallied to the cause of the boy King. Most vigorous among his supporters probably were members of the old priesthood, whose dignity as well as income had suffered with the idealist King's reforms.

Little light is thrown by the available records on the circumstances of Tutankhamen's death, but there is every indication that his reign was only of a few years' duration and that he went to join his ancestors in the Valley of the Kings at an age probably not greater than 19. Substantiation of this belief appears in evidence from the tomb.

Not only do the statues made from casts reveal the face of a youth, but clothing and articles of wear taken from the sepulchre are those of a child. How he came to his death and just what followed his short but brilliant reign are secrets that may now be unfolded after having been locked for 3300 years in the limestone in the Valley of the Tombs of the Kings.

The best washing is done without soap; this way

SAFEST AND CHEAPEST

A SINGLE Staufer's Laundry Tablet is dissolved in a quart of water, the clothes are boiled for fifteen minutes, and the hardest part of washday is over. In 40,000 homes this modern soapless method of washing clothes has replaced the back-breaking, destructive rubbing that soap requires.

The heaviest, grimiest, greasiest work clothes quickly become fresh and clean. The most delicate lingerie renews its dainty freshness. The dirt has been dissolved without the use of soap, and the mild action of the pure Staufer Tablet has cleansed everything thoroughly without harming a thread of the fabric.

No trace of the usual odor of soap lingers about the clothes, but instead there is a fresh, sweet fragrance such as only real clean clothes have. White clothes have been made whiter, colored things have been brightened, and the whole easy process has cost but one-half as much as the soap you would have used.

You can buy Staufer's Laundry Tablets at any one of the 2810 grocery stores in St. Louis and vicinity. They have been selling them for 26 years. If you live in St. Louis and have never used Staufer's Tablets get one from your grocer and test this wonderful method of soapless washing. If you live outside of St. Louis you can get two full-size packages for 10c by mailing the coupon below.

The following is what a Staufer Laundry Tablet does.

Safely Washes the Most Delicate Fabrics

The most delicate, perishable lingerie can be safely washed with Staufer's Laundry Tablets. Soft, silken, delicately tinted things become fresh and clean and retain all of their appealing daintiness when washed by this soapless method. And they last longer, too, for the mild action of Staufer's Laundry Tablets dissolves the dirt without acting upon the fabric itself. Staufer's Tablets also wash and cleanse the heaviest woolens or the heaviest work clothes by this same soapless process. The grease or the grime disappears and leaves the garments as clean as when new.

Makes Clothes White Without Rubbing

White clothes are made snowy-white by the fine Swiss bleachers contained in Staufer's Laundry Tablets. Things that soap could never whiten become whiter with every washing when Staufer's Laundry Tablets are used. No rubbing is necessary as the dirt is so softened by the Tablets that it floats out into the water and after rinsing leaves the pores of the fabric absolutely clean and sanitary. The bleaching process is absolutely harmless to the clothes as all ingredients of the Tablets are pure and mild, and no trace of them remains after the clothes have been rinsed.

Removes Stains and Sets Colors

Stains are readily dissolved by Staufer's Laundry Tablets, leaving the fabric unharmed and free from the most stubborn discolorations. Colored pieces are brightened and their colors are kept from fading by the color mordants contained in the Tablets. Try washing out some badly stained and soiled clothing by this soapless method and you will admit that you have never obtained such remarkable results with soap. You will be surprised to see how bright and attractive many of your older clothes can be made, even those that now look dingy and faded.

Washes Dirtiest Clothes in Record Time

Heavy, dirty, greasy work clothes can be thoroughly cleansed by the Staufer soapless method by fifteen minutes' boiling with Staufer's Laundry Tablets. Only a few moments' light rubbing is required to work out of the fabric what few particles of dirt may remain in cases of unusual dirty or greasy garments. No back-breaking work—no hard rubbing. The clothes become clean, sanitary and fresh in less than half the time required by the use of soap. And remember—the daintiest things can be washed in the same way with absolute safety.

Keeps the Hands Soft and White

The effect of Staufer's Laundry Tablets on the hands is just like that of a good, mild toilet soap. After your washing your hands are white, soft and soothed. The relief from the usual redness and chapped condition will be a pleasant surprise to women who try the Staufer soapless method for the first time.

As a cleanser for dirty hands when the dirt has been ground into the pores of the skin, the use of the Staufer jelly is especially effective. Oil, grease, dirt and grime quickly vanish and the hands are left soft and white.

Softens Blankets and Flannels

Blankets, flannels and baby's soft woolen things come from the wash soft, fluffy and light when Staufer's Laundry Tablets are used instead of soap. You will be astonished to see how quickly they become clean and sweet. When washing blankets or flannels, especially eiderdown or fine woolen blankets, wash first in strong Staufer suds. Then rinse in a light Staufer suds and finish by rinsing in luke-warm water. Never wring with your hands; instead use an open wringer, shake well, hang up and brush with soft brush. You will be delighted with the splendid results obtained.

One Tablet Makes a Full Quart of Jelly

One Staufer's Laundry Tablet dissolved in a quart of water makes a full quart of the finest cleansing jelly. A little of this jelly goes a long way. It does the washing much better than soap yet is mild and absolutely harmless in every way. And remember—with all these advantages, it costs but one-half as much as soap.

Saves ½ Your Soap Money

Staufer's Laundry Tablets cost but one-half as much as soap and are much more effective. One Staufer's Laundry Tablet equals two cakes of laundry soap, does the work better and saves you at least one-half of the money you usually spend for ordinary soap.

ONE CAKE OF STAUFER'S EQUALS SOAP SOAP TWO CAKES OF SOAP!

Fine in Washing Machines

For washing machines, Staufer's Laundry Tablets give excellent results, and can be used without any injury to metal or rubber in the machine. It is not necessary to use as much of the jelly as you would use of the ordinary laundry soap. The washing will be done more quickly, the white clothes will be whiter — the colored clothes brighter and everything cleaner and fresher than soap could make them. Staufer's Laundry Tablets make a profuse quantity of the finest creamy white suds.

Actually Saves Clothes

Clothes washed with Staufer's Laundry Tablets need little or no rubbing because the dirt is dissolved and the garments need only to be rinsed. This soapless method of washing prevents the garments from being worn out on a washboard, and the particles of dirt from grinding against one another in the fabric.

Has Many Household Uses

Not only do Staufer's Laundry Tablets wash your clothes better, but they do many other household tasks as well. Dishes, cooking utensils, woodwork, floors, furniture and many other things about the house can be washed cleaner and quicker with Staufer's Laundry Tablets. In fact whatever soap will do, Staufer's Laundry Tablets will do better.

Use No Soap!

Remember Staufer's Laundry Tablets are to be used instead of soap and under no circumstances should be used with soap of any kind. Adding soap will only prevent them from giving the best possible results. Be sure to read carefully the directions printed on the inside of each wrapper.

TITLE GUARANTY TRUST BUYS THE SAWYER BUILDING

Second Recent Deal in Chestnut Street Real Estate Taken to Indicate Its Rejuvenation.

STRUCTURE ERECTED EIGHT YEARS AGO

Will Be Altered and Equipped as Title Office — Bond Issue Already Having Effect on Values.

By Berry Moore.

From the attention being focused on Chestnut street, which is the chief center of traffic in the downtown district east of Twelfth street, evidently the consensus of opinion is that this thoroughfare will be rejuvenated with the execution of the civic projects provided for in the $87,372,500 bond issue and the layout of which shows the new courthouse on the block bounded by Twelfth, Eleventh, Chestnut and Market streets.

The Title Guaranty Trust Co. yesterday purchased the five-story fireproof Sawyer Building at 810-12 Chestnut street, occupying a lot 40x90 feet, through the Cornet & Zeibig Trust in connection with the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., represented by William R. Cady, its real estate officer. The price paid was not announced.

Follows Other Notable Deal.

The transaction follows in quick succession the conclusion of negotiations by which the Western Union Telegraph Co. will acquire the southwest corner of Ninth and Chestnut streets for a large structure designed for its own use, as was told exclusively in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch.

The Sawyer Building, which was erected about eight years ago, will be altered and equipped as a thoroughly up-to-date title office. The company now occupies the west half of the first floor and basement of the Title Guaranty Building at Seventh and Chestnut streets, which it has long since outgrown. Possession of the new quarters will be taken a year from next July, when the company's lease of its present quarters will expire.

The company was formed in 1901 by the consolidation of all the title companies in the city and the purchase of all their records, and has in its possession complete records of every parcel of land in the City of St. Louis with plats and references affecting the titles. It has a capital of $1,000,000 and a surplus of $250,000.

The Sawyer Building is occupied principally by real estate offices, contractors and with lodge rooms on the upper floors. The James Maguire Real Estate Co. and the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Trust Co. occupy the ground floor offices. Gus V. Mechin, title examiner, also has offices on the first floor of this building.

Mark Anderson, president of the Title Guaranty Trust Co., anticipates an unprecedented business in the real estate field the ensuing year. This will receive its chief stimulus from the passage of the bond issue, together with the proposed expenditure by the railroads of $100,000,000 for terminals, etc., in St. Louis.

W. U. Building Plans.

The building to be erected by the Western Union probably will be as high as permissible under the zoning ordinance, but will not be less than eight stories under any circumstances. Negotiations for the purchase of the site were conducted by James D. Dockery of John Dockery & Son, Lilburn G. McNair and Edward K. Love. The site has a frontage of 135 feet on Chestnut by a depth of 112 feet on Ninth.

The Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., which is affiliated with the Western Union, recently purchased the entire half block on the north side of Chestnut street, from Tenth to Eleventh streets, as a site for an automatic exchange, negotiations in this instance being conducted by Isaac T. Cook & Co.

According to Fred G. Zeibig of the Cornet & Zeibig Trust, the real estate market has responded to the success of the bond issue with a greatly augmented demand for business and residence holdings in all parts of the city. The disposition of owners, however, is to advance prices or in some instances to withdraw their property from sale, pending developments. This is having the effect of retarding negotiations, especially those involving property adjacent to the proposed Union Station Plaza and the Memorial Plaza which will extend from Market to Olive and from Thirteenth or Twelfth street to Fifteenth streets.

Values Already Affected.

As Market, Chestnut, Pine and Olive will be the chief beneficiaries of the proposed civic improvements, property on those thoroughfares now has a very much greater potential value than before the passage of the bond issue, according to real estate experts. Values of property which will be immediately adjacent to these improvements, will be vastly enhanced as a result, it is believed. The business section east of Thirteenth street, which virtually will form its west boundary, thus confining more or less the leading concerns to the area south of Olive street, will derive the maximum benefit of the civic projects, it is predicted.

Corner plots dominating the Union Station Plaza and the Memorial Plaza will form ideal sites for hotels or for apartment buildings on a large scale. The southeast corner and the northeast corner of Thirteenth and Olive streets will be most attractively situated in connection with the Memorial Plaza. The northeast corner of Thirteenth and Locust streets which was recently purchased through the Mercantile Trust Co. for a 12-story annex to the Jefferson Hotel, will constitute a superb site for that improvement, in that the Public Library and Library Park will be virtually a part of the picture of the Memorial Plaza and building.

Auditorium Site Discussed.

The vacant block from Eighteenth to Seventeenth streets and from Pine to Chestnut is regarded by many as more attractively situated for the Municipal Auditorium than the block on the south side of Market street between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets, as contemplated for this building in the layout of the City Plan Commission. This block, which is owned by the Eighteenth Street Realty Co., of which Isaac H. Lionberger is president, has been exploited as avalable for a large hotel or other structure on an extensive scale.

The prediction is ventured that values on property contiguous to either plaza will be revolutionized with the execution of these civic projects, which will effect a complete physical transformation of the entire district from Twentieth to Twelfth street, and from Market to Olive street.

The widening of Olive street between Grand and Twelfth boulevard is looked forward to as preliminary to the development of this section on a scale commensurate with that east of Twelfth street. Olive street is already challenging the attention of speculators and business concerns, while Market street and Franklin avenue, which are also to be widened, are receiving due attention.

Money Problem Discussed.

Real estate agents fear that if the rate of interest on the bonds for the proposed improvements is higher than 4 per cent, the bonds will absorb much money which otherwise would go into building operations in the form of first mortgages, thus restricting building, financed largely through the issue of first deeds of trust and serial notes secured by first mortgages, according to Oreon E. Scott, president of the Oreon E. and R. G. Scott Real Estate Co. This might have the effect of creating an adverse economic condition. New buildings will have to be erected to provide for the thousands of persons who will be brought to St. Louis in the carrying out of this ambitious improvement program.

Real estate agents are already receiving inquiries from concerns which will have to vacate quarters in the district between Twentieth and Thirteenth streets, but there is a scarcity of places vacant for them as a result of the cessation in construction in the central business district, due to the high cost of construction.

Katz Home in Hampton Park Sold to William P. Anderson

THE GOLDMAN REALTY CO. reports the sale of the Katz home in Hampton Park to William P. Anderson of the National City Bank. This is one of the most attractive homes in the county. Construction is of stucco and brick. The house has 20 rooms with four bath rooms; each sleeping room having its own sun parlor. There is a ballroom on the third floor. The interior was recently decorated. About three acres of ground surround the property. It has a frontage on the Clayton road and the east drive into the park. The consideration was reported to be $75,000. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson expect to occupy the premises in the spring.

60 FLATS TO BE BUILT BY W. JONES CONCERN

Nine-Acre Property on Northland East of Union Avenue Is Bought by Company.

The Walter Jones Real Estate Co. has bought nine acres of ground from W. B. Thompson on Northland and Spalding avenues, east of Union avenue, which they are going to lay out in 60 lots and erect 60 modern flats of four and five rooms. They will start excavating at once. The ground and buildings together will involve about $900,000.

There are about 300 families coming to St. Louis from Cleveland about June 1 and the Jones company intend to have the gerater part of these buildings completed at that time, to take care of some of these. The company also reports that during the last week they have started excavating for seven other buildings —an efficiency apartment at Forest Park and Newstead avenue; two bungalows on Maffitt avenue; three bungalows on Leduc street and one large single flat on Red Bud avenue.

WARREN W. ITTNER JOINS FRANCISCUS REALTY STAFF

The Franciscus Realty Co. announces that Warren W. Ittner, formerly vice president and general manager of the Ittner Brick Co., has joined their sales force.

The sale of a vacant lot on Spalding avenue, west of Euclid avenue, for Lindell Fair Grounds Realty and Investment Co. to Justin A. Naumann and Rose J. Nauman, also is reported.

M. WALTS LEASES BUILDING AT FOURTH AND FRANKLIN

M. Walts has leased a three-story building on the southeast corner of Fourth street and Franklin avenue. The first floor will be occupied by the Walts & Pearl Commission Co. and by a restaurant and lunchroom. Extensive alterations and repairs have been made, arranging the second floor for offices. The lease is made for the account of Minnie Hartman by George H. Streiff, manager of the commercial leasing department of the Mercantile Trust Co.

Weiss-Meyerricks Reports Sales.

The Weiss-Meyerricks Realty Co. reports the following sales: Single flat to Paul Krez; 45 feet of ground to Henry Frielich and 35 feet to A. Mayer, fronting Gravois avenue, in Princeton Place, a new subdivision located at 6900 South on the Cherokee car line.

Sales Reported by H. G. Mohle.

H. G. Mohle has closed the following sales during the past week: 1506 Del Notre, Richmond Heights, modern bungalow on 67 feet of ground, for August H. Kollas to Flora Litz, who will occupy for home; 4533-33A Wichita street, four and five room flat, for Ida Lutz to Sinclair Tousey.

BROWNING-KING WILL MOVE TO 7TH STREET

To Use Hess & Culbertson Quarters — Jewelry Company Moving to Ninth and Olive.

Martin & Breitt, in connection with Isaac T. Cook & Co., have closed a long-term lease to Browning, King & Co. for the basement, the first, second and part of the third floor of the building at the northwest corner of Seventh and St. Charles streets and known as the Hess & Culbertson Building. The Hess & Culbertson Jewelry Co. will vacate the premises about March 1. Martin & Breitt, together with Isaac T. Cook & Co. have leased to Hess & Culbertson the store and basement at the southeast corner of Ninth and Olive streets.

Browning, King & Co. has been in St. Louis for 46 years. Its original store was opened at the southwest corner of Broadway and Pine street March 7, 1877.

This building formerly was a church and was remodeled so that it could be used for commercial purposes.

Browning, King & Co., which has 21 stores in this country, celebrated its 100th anniversary last fall.

Railroad to Double Facilities for Repairing Equipment in St. Louis District.

Preliminary work has been begun by the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway on the erection of shops, just north of Fyler avenue, between the Frisco tracks and the River des Peres, which will double the road's facilities for repairing equipment within the St. Louis district.

The new plant will provide the terminal for locomotives and cars being repaired at the Chouteau avenue shops, now regarded by officers of the road as inadequate to handle alone the heavier work thrown on them by large increases in the rolling stock of the Frisco. The railroad is spending $8,000,000 for new locomotives and other rolling stock, it has been announced.

MAJESTIC HOMES ARE "DEMONSTRATED"

People today demand to see what they are paying for. They demand to know before making decisions. They insist on practical proof by "demonstration." That is why two of our 40 homes have been completely decorated and furnished by the Stix, Baer & Fuller D. G. Co. for public inspection. You are invited to a public reception now being held day and evening in the several completely furnished homes in the 67xx block on Chamberlain av., University City. You will see how practical the arrangement and complete the refinements, how beautiful the colonial design and how perfect the furnishings conform to all. Like the painter's masterpiece, when the last touch has been added, Majestic homes leave nothing to be desired to make a perfect home. Come see for yourself. Buy if you wish on 10 years' time. No second mortgage or renewals. You can afford to own a Majestic home. Go west on Delmar to Kingsland av., 6700 west, north on Kingsland to Olive St. rd., then west 1 block and north 1 block to Chamberlain av., MAJESTIC HOME CORPORATION, Cabany 8300, Delmar 43.

River Protection

Capital wanted to establish a contracting and dredging company, in St. Louis, to take over the exclusive operation of a perfect system of river current control structures, used in connection with river bank protection, reclamation work and the like. This equipment comprises 12 thoroughly tested models operating by the force of water motion (no other power required); properly engineered, will revolutionize to a large extent, straightening and deepening navigable channels, removing sand bars, making "fill ins" for shore protection and dredging by controlled currents at a fraction of the cost of present methods. Numerous contracts immediately available with drainage districts, railroads, municipal water plants, state boards and Federal Government. This is a large proposition and will return immense profits sufficient to interest men who think in large terms. Assistance and co-operation solicited from those who have the acquaintance and personal standing with men and corporations in a business and civic way. For particulars address

Suite 616 Kansas City Life Building,

SAYS POLITICIANS ARE TRYING TO RUN SCHOOL BOARD

Nonpartisan Committee Alleges Factions Have Sought to Dictate Policies for Last Six Years.

CHARGES MADE IN CIRCULAR LETTERS

Campaign Body Seeking Election of Six Independent Candidates Who Were Indorsed.

The charge that for the last six years political factions have endeavored to control the action of members of the Board of Education and dictate the policies of the Superintendent of Instruction, is made in circular letters now being sent out by the Nonpartisan School Board Campaign Committee.

The committee is seeking the election April 3 of six independent candidates who were informally indorsed Feb. 5 at a meeting at the Melbourne Hotel of representatives from 100 St. Louis organizations.

The committee letter declares that the St. Louis school system, prior to 1897, was "subject to political influences under which it seriously deteriorated." It continues: "Conditions became so bad that public opinion was aroused, and for 20 years the schools were freed from party politics. Membership on the Board of Education was filled by men of honor, who were guided solely in their conduct by a high standard of integrity, intelligence and efficiency.

"Factions Again Active."

"For the past six years, political factions have again become active and have endeavored to dictate the policies of the Superintendent, and control the action of the members of the board. It was in order to combat this state of affairs and to arouse public opinion to the need of freeing the Board of Education from such influences, that the Nonpartisan School Board Campaign Committee was organized two years ago. At that time five strong candidates for the Board of Education were submitted to the public at the spring election, and four of the five elected—the Mayor appointing a fifth when a vacancy on the board occurred.

"The Nonpartisan School Board Campaign Committee is again seeking your co-operation in assuring the election of the best possible candidates for the election on April 3, 1923.

"At that time six members, half of the personnel of the board, are to be chosen. This situation will give the citizens of St. Louis an unprecedented opportunity to secure for the schools the services of capable, high-minded men and women. This can be assured only by some united action, and to gain that end, the Nonpartisan School Board Campaign Committee presents for your consideration the names of the following six citizens, who have consented to serve on the School Board:"

"Robert H. Ballman, Democrat, 4016 Green Lea place, banker, six-year term; was educated in the public schools, has lived in St. Louis all his life, and has been especially active in the work of the Harrison School and Yeatman High School Patrons' Association. He is now assistant cashier of the Bremen Bank.

"H. F. Fahrenkrog, Republican, 4550 Adelaide avenue, automobile dealer, four-year term; was recently appointed by the Mayor to fill an unexpired term. He was president of the Harrison School Patrons' Association, and has been deeply interested in securing the cooperation of the parents and teachers for the benefit of the children in the public schools. He is now president of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, and has been indorsed by organizations, especially in North St. Louis.

Dr. Walter H. Fuchs, Republican, 3202 Lafayette avenue, physician, six-year term. Dr. Fuchs has been a practicing physician ofr over 30 years. He was formely a member of the Board of Health, is now a director of the Missouri Social Hygiene Association, and of the City Plan Commission. His candidacy for membership on the Board of Education has been unanimously indorsed by the St. Louis Medical Society.

"Alexander S. Langsdorf, Democrat, 1205 Amherst place, engineer, six-year term; graduated from the St. Louis Public Schools, Washington and Cornell Universities. He was dean of the School of Engineering of Washington University for 10 years, and is now connected with the university in an administrative capacity. He was secretary of Crunden-Martin Manufacturing Co., and for the past seven years has been a member of the City Plan Commission.

"Rachel Stix Michael (Mrs. Elias Michael), Republican, 4383 Westminster place, two-year term. Mrs. Michael is the widow of Elias Michael, former president of Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co., who at one time served as a member of the School Board. Mrs. Michael was educated in the public schools of Cincinnati, and a great deal of her interest and time have been given to the public school system here. She was one of the founders of the St. Louis School of Occupational Therapy, and has given largely to scholarships in the public schools. She was a member of the board of the Public Library, and was recently appointed by the Mayor to fill an unexpired term on the Board of Education.

"Joseph E. Woracek, Democrat 3851 Utah place, leather buyer, six-year term; formerly president of the Central Trades and Labor Union, rendered special service during the war in securing recruits for the army and navy and placing them where their training would be most useful."

The Executive Committee.

The personnel of the Executive Committee of the Nonpartisan Campaign Committee was announced yesterday. It includes: E. J. Russell, Mrs. E. R. Kroeger, Mrs. Evarts A. Graham, Miss M. Genevieve Tierney, Bert H. Lang, B. E. Chappelow, Miss Charlotte Taussig, Miss Mildred McCluney, Mrs. George S. Levis, Miss Katherine Burlingame, Mrs. Charles W. Swingley, Mrs. Virgil Loeb, Mrs. J. PRISON OFFICER DENIES REPORT THAT MEN ABUSE WOMEN

Hollenbeck Declares That Mrs. Kate O'Hare's Statement That Men Mistreat Women Prisoners Is False.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 17.—The statements of Mrs. Kate O'Hare, made in a speech at Oberlin, O., that women inmates of Missouri penitentiary are worked under male employes who are enabled to force attentions upon the women, and that the latter are worked at top speed are false, A. T. Hollenbeck, director of penal institutions, said today.

"The women, of whom we now have only 45, are given work to do to keep them busy," said Hollenbeck. "We have a fixed task for them, but no punishment is inflicted if they fail to make their tasks. They work under the direction of a man who is a quiet gentleman of excellent conduct and the Matron and one other female attendant. Mrs. O'Hare is all wrong when she says that the women in this institution are mistreated. We do have a 'black hole' as she calls it, which, however, is just an ordinary cell, with a wooden door, instead of one with bars. There is a hole about the size of your face, for ventilation and the only furniture is a board about the size of an ironing board, only longer. When women try to assault the Matron or are otherwise obstreperous, we sometimes put them in this dark cell overnight as punishment, just as some parents put unruly children in a dark closet. We do not use it often, however. That is the only punishment inflicted upon women here, aside from loss of the time which would have been deducted from the sentences in the event of continued good conduct."

REPUTED LAST LETTER BY LINCOLN IS FOUND

Note Dated Day Before Assassination Discovered Among Other Datum in Justice Department Files.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Recent discovery in the files of the Department of Justice of several dusty and neglected documents dated 1790 in the handwriting of Edmund Randolph, first Attorney-General, led to a search that brought to light a number of papers of historical value. Outstanding among them was a letter believed to be the last official document written by Lincoln.

Dated April 13, 1865, the day before his assassination, the letter was written on the small, four page folded note paper in use at the White House at the time, and except for the printed words, "Executive Mansion, Washington.....," was in Lincoln's handwriting.

It read:

> Executive Mansion,
> Washington, April 13, 1865.
> Attorney-General,
> Dear Sir,
> Send me a commission for William Kellogg, to be Judge in Nebraska in place of W. P. Kellogg resigned.
> Yours truly,
> A. LINCOLN.

Several other letters written by Lincoln on small paper lined with blue ink, like the penny note books used by school children, also were found.

These letters, together with a number of other valuable papers discovered in the files, will be framed for preservation as a part of the nation's collection of historical documents. They will be kept among the archives at the Library of Congress.

HOUSE SUPPORTS PROPOSAL TO RESTRICT DRUG PRODUCTION

Favorable Report Ordered on Resolution Asking President to Negotiate With Other Nations.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—By unanimous vote the House Foreign Affairs Committee ordered a favorable report today on the resolution by Chairman Porter, requesting President Harding to enter into negotiations with other nations looking to a restriction of the opium, poppy and coca leaf plant to the actual requirements of medicinal and scientific uses.

32 ST. LOUISANS DIDN'T GET BONUS WARRANTS

Half of Number Cashed on Forged Indorsements, Remainder Apparently Lost.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 17.—Thirty-two St. Louisans for whom soldier bonus warrants have been issued and mailed have failed to get their money. Sixteen of the warrants for a total of $2690 have been cashed by others upon forged indorsements. The other 16 for a total of $2360 apparently have been lost. A total of 75 warrants of the approximately 108,000 which have been issued have been lost, their aggregate value being $10,900, while 42 warrants for a total of $6130 were cashed upon fraudulent indorsements.

Those whose warrants have been lost between Jefferson City and the addresses at which the bonus beneficiaries receive their mail will get their money after a delay of a year. The laws of the State provide that where a warrant has been lost if the auditor has been notified to stop payment on it because the rightful person has not received it, the Auditor is authorized after elapse of a year to issue a duplicate. Legislation is pending to reduce this period in the case of bonus warrants to 60 days.

Proceedings in Case of Fraud.

The plight of those whose warrants have been fraudulently cashed is much worse for there is no provision under which duplicates may be issued to them, although their money is in the State treasury awaiting claim. When it is discovered that a warrant bears a forged indorsement the State Treasurer immediately demands that the person who cashed the warrant and sent it to the treasury for redemption return the cash to the bonus fund and take back the forged instrument. If the rightful owner of the warrant then can get it away from the holder, which can be done by replevin process, he can place the proper indorsement on it, present it to the Treasurer and get his money, the forged indorsement not operating to completely invalidate the warrant.

There is talk of legion posts in St. Louis being asked to take up the fight to collect the warrants of these 16 persons who are wrongfully deprived of their bonus money. One St. Louis firm is known to be holding four of these warrants which it refuses to give up, taking the position that it cashed them, hence paid for and intends to keep them. The expense of court action is too high to make it worth while for individuals to undertake it in such cases.

St. Louis Fraud Victims.

The St. Louisans whose bonus warrants are declared to have been cashed upon fraudulent indorsements and the amounts are as follows:

William H. Bierbusch, 5361 St. Louis avenue, $160; William C. Difani, 3716 Delmar avenue, $100; W. H. Hengstberg, 4450A Easton avenue, $120; Mrs. Oliver F. Pentz, 4551A Geraldine avenue, $140; L. J. Kaminski, 5308 Arlington avenue, $250; Raymond Birchfield, 5427 Robin avenue, $250; Karl A. Emich, 5246 Gilmore avenue, $170; M. J. Brosnam, 4327A Ashland avenue, $120; Oscar B. Heywood, 5245 Gilmore avenue, $200; Leslie R. Hanna, 2356 Chestnut street, $110; Joseph E. Hulford, 4324 San Francisco avenue, $220; Charles M. Knecht, 5355 St. Louis avenue, $130; William Kelly, $250; C. E. McCartney, 1329 Temple place, $220; Elmer E. Ross, 3023 St. Vincent avenue, $140;, Porter Weakley, 1017 Morgan street, $110.

Lost Warrants in St. Louis.

Those whose warrants were lost are: Joe Distefano, 4505 Adelaide avenue, $100; Leo M. Albaugh, 2937 Lafayette avenue, $110; William H. Brock, 2612 Pine street, $120; Guy S. Crawford, Ninth and Carr streets, $160; A. A. Gentilli, 2509 Slattery street, $230; Vernie W. Gould, $250; Henry A. Hunter, 3029 Laclede avenue, $120; L. D. Lacy, 1339 Syndicate Trust Building, $220; Mrs. Lillian M. Ryan, $120; August G. Sindelair, 3117 California avenue, $40; Charles Spiess, 1901A North Grand boulevard, $220; Preston O. Abbott, $250; Joseph T. Walsh, 5157 Minerva avenue, $220; Emory S. Prince, 2314 Pine street, $60; Lucisino Cannito, 2920 Brannon avenue, $40; Jack V. Jeff, 3715A Maffitt avenue $100.

STATE'S NEW RADIO TOWER

Marketing Bureau Instals 200-Foot Antenna Upright.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 17.—The State radio station, W O S of the State Marketing Bureau here, has just had installed a new steel antenna tower, 200 feet high, bettering signals and service.

The tower, erected under competitive bid by a large steel company, cost $2306 delivered, erected and painted. The foundation and piers, under contract bid, cost $603.35. The tower, a four-post structure, standing at the northern edge of the Capitol grounds near the State power house, is held together by 1500 riveted bolts, and there are 200 one-foot steps in the ladder leading up to the crow's-nest at the top, which is seven and one-half feet square and four feet deep. Standing 215 feet above the railroad tracks at the botton of the bluff near the river, the tower may be seen for miles. The antenna extends from the topmost point on the tower to the dome of the Capitol, 300 feet above the Missouri River.

GOLDSTEIN TESTIMONIAL DINNER A LARGE AFFAIR

More Than 600 Persons in Gathering to Honor Former Circuit Clerk.

The testimonial dinner to Nat Goldstein, lately Circuit Clerk, held at Hotel Jefferson last night, was one of the largest personal demonstrations ever seen in St. Louis. More than 600 men and women attended the dinner, filling the hotel dining room and occupying several tables in the lobby.

The invitations to the dinner were sent out by a committee which included all the Judges of the Circuit Court except Judges Grimm and Ittner, and a number of lawyers and business men of both parties. Goldstein retired Jan. 1 from the circuit clerkship. He is still a member of the Republican City Committee from the Nineteenth Ward.

Martin J. Collins was toastmaster, and in expressing his own feeling of friendship for Goldstein, he said, "I would cross the Free Bridge in my pajamas to get to Nat if he needed me." He introduced Mayor Kiel, and said that Kiel, "by the Grace of God," would be Mayor for a fourth term.

Praise From the Mayor.

The Mayor praised Goldstein as having "served the public faithfully and well." Following his talk, a telegram from Senator Spencer was read, in which the Senator said Goldstein had been a faithful and efficient public servant, and was "a loyal and patriotic American, whose friendship I am proud to have."

W. Frank Carter, chairman of the recent bond issue campaign committee, and head of the supervisory committee on bond expenditures, paid a tribute to Goldstein and to officeholders as a class.

"Swivel-chair business men talk about men in politics as 'ward heelers,'" Carter declared. "Why, I know men at the city hall who are making sacrifices to hold their positions. I am tired of hearing public officials called crooks and grafters. Business men should know what they are talking about, or keep their mouths shut. They talk about the Courthouse ring and the City Hall gang. Some people think Mayor Kiel is getting rich, but he told me, not long ago, that he didn't think he could afford to be Mayor after this term, as he was having trouble in meeting his monthly bills."

Tribute to Goldstein.

"I have been around the courthouse 32 years," Carter concluded, "and I have never seen a more honest or efficient Circuit Clerk than Nat Goldstein. He's my friend and I apologize to nobdy for it." The last declaration brought loud applause, many of the diners standing up and shouting.

Circuit Jurge Hamilton, former Circuit Attorney Lawrence McDaniel, former Mayor Fred H. Kreismann and John S. Leahy were the other speakers, and there was story-telling by Robert E. Lee. Leahy presented a platinum watch to Goldstein on behalf of a number of friends, and Goldstein, responding wtih some difficulty, said that he regarded the testimonial as "wiping out the notoriety" which the press had given him in connection with political affairs in recent years.

"Every tick is a heart beat," said Leahy in presenting the watch. "The incense of 1000 favors will perfume his pathway through life. The calumnies heaped upon him are false—there has been no more faithful public servant, none more attentive to his duty."

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE CONDEMNS "SLAMS AT TRADE"

Director Says "Political Gallery Propaganda" Is Directly Harmful to Farmers.

"Employment and wages come primarily from business" and any attempt to "strangle, impede and hamper business cannot help but reflect itself upon those who work for a living," the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce says in a letter sent yesterday to State Senator Michael Kinney in protest against proposed increases in the corporation franchise tax.

The letter states that the board is unable to understand the logic of "many of our friends out in the State who regard it as sound policy, or at least as gallery propaganda for their constituents, to take a slam at industrial centers wherever they find them.

"They are particularly hurting and directly harming the farmers of the State and their constituents by such an uneconomic and backward policy," the letter adds. "According to the United States census, 55 per cent of the wage earners of the State are now in the city of St. Louis and employed by the various corporations that our friends out in the State seek to attack.

"Is there any better market for the farmers of Missouri for their produce than these wage earners in St. Louis? A very substantial part of the wages in St. Louis goes back to these farmers, and when they sell their produce in St. Louis they don't have the high freight rate to pay as they would if the shipment went to Chicago or New York."

COUE BACK IN OWN COUNTRY

(Copyright, 1923.)

PARIS, Feb. 17.—Emile Coue returned to Paris from his American tour today, practicing auto-suggestion to the last by curing several seasick passengers on the Olympic coming over. Charles M. Schwab was among those who consulted him at length.

Coue declares his success in the United States encourages him to take up again the fight against the incredulity of French medical men.

CLASH IN HOUSE ALMOST RESULTS IN A FIST FIGHT

Personal Encounter Between Wingo and Jones One of Features of Debate Over Farm Credits Program.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—House consideration of the farm credits program began today with a clash that came near resulting in a fist fight and wound up tonight with open expressions of dissatisfaction by farm bloc leaders over what they characterized as the delay of the Banking Committee in reporting out measures before it.

Representative Anderson, Republican, of Minnesota, joint author of the Lenroot-Anderson farm credit bill, said that with the end of Congress two weeks away, that measure passed by the Senate and approved by the Secretaries of Commerce and Agriculture, had disappeared in a fog and was likely to fail because the committee "seemed unwilling to report it out."

Defending the committee, Representative Mondell, Wyoming, the Republican leader, assailed the Senate, which he said had sent to the House two measures, the Lenroot-Anderson and the Capper bills, both seeking the same ends by "diametrically opposite methods." He declared he had every confidence that a bill covering rural credits would be reported "in due time," adding that meantime it was the duty of the House to pass the bill before it, the Strong measure, amending the Federal farm loan act, and facilitating the activities of the whole land bank system.

Tilt Between Wingo and Jones.

Immediately after the Strong bill was taken up, there was a personal encounter between Representative Wingo, Arkansas, ranking Democrat on the Banking Committee, and Representative Jones, Democrat, of Texas, over the division of time for debate. They were quickly separated and the incident was closed with expressions of regret by both members.

Throughout the day there were strong clashes in debate, attended by inquiries as to the status in committees of the Senate farm measures. Representative Anderson, a farm bloc leader, brought the question to a direct issue, asserting that the legislation had been before the Banking Committee several weeks and that no action had been taken.

"I challenge the attention of the House," Mr. Anderson said, "to the fact that this legislation is likely to fail because the Banking Committee seems unwilling to report it. It seems to have disappeared into some kind of a fog. It is now two weeks from the end of the session. The administration promised this relief to the farmers, and I believe the country should know where the responsibility for failure lies, if it is not passed."

No Fulfillment of Promises.

"Unless immediate action is taken," Mr. Anderson said, "there will be no fulfillment of promises which we have made to the people in reference to this question."

"We who are in a position of responsibility," he added, "should find a way to fulfill promises made by the President of the United States."

Representative Cramton, Republican, Michigan, said many members of the House joined with Mr. Anderson in his demand for action.

"It would be a distinct disappointment," he said, "if the Banking Committee fails to bring out farm credit legislation in time for action at this session."

In an effort to complete the bill, the House went into a night session, but after all amendments had been disposed of, it was apparent that a quorum was not present, and adjournment was had until today without a final vote on the measure.

Changes Made in Bill.

Several changes were made in the bill as it came from the committee, the most important being the elimination, on motion of Representative Anderson, of the section which would have authorized loans to farmers through agencies whenever it appeared to the Federal Farm Loan Farm Board that farm loan associations had not been formed, or the local national farm loans associations neglected or refused to serve properly the needs of its local territory. Mr. Anderson said it was not wise to "have agents running around soliciting loans," and the House agreed with him, 76 to 40.

Iowa Society Banquet Wednesday.

Judge William S. Kenyon of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, former United States Senator from Iowa, will address the third annual banquet of the Iowa Society of St. Louis at the American Annex Hotel at 6:30 p. m. next Wednesday. Iowans, former Iowans and their friends are invited to attend.

Pied Fiddler of Volstead Lures Bootleggers to Jail

J. L. Asher, Washington's Versatile Revenue Agent, Plays His Way to Evidence for 56 Raids.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Through the magic strains of "When Johnny Comes Marching Home Again" from the strains of a violin in the hands of J. L. Asher, Washington's versatile revenue agent, who for a week has been essaying the role of a modern pied piper of Hamlin, more than 80 alleged bootleggers have been uncovered recently and were arrested today after raids conducted simultaneously in every section of the capital. More than 56 individual raids were conducted, netting in addition to the prisoners, 3000 gallons of liquor of all sorts.

Switching his disguise from ash-cart driver and coal deliverer by means of which he recently collected evidence for more than 60 raids netting as many arrests, Asher last week donned the shabby, but gay clothes of a wandering minstrel, selected a harp-playing companion from the detective squad, George Bauer, and from their limited assortment of old-time melodies played their way into the hearts of Washingtonians and onto the trails of bootleg whisky.

A storeroom full of pint bottles and demijohns of whisky and wine collected by the minstrel revenue agents was sorted last night by prohibition chiefs and police and orders given the raiders for their drive today.

All afternoon the patrol wagons ran hurriedly between the fast traveling squads of raiders in the various police precincts, carrying prisoners to the station houses while Government trucks hauled in the gallons of confiscated liquors.

At one of the busiest station houses during the afternoon stood Asher, clean shaven and well dressed, an apparent neutral onlooker, calmly identifying prisoners, not one of whom, to all outward appearances recognized him whatever.

Their fingers worn by their unpracticed efforts on the violin and harp, Asher and Bauer, in their quest for evidence, later switched to a grind organ and monkey arrangement. Again they went into other sections as hucksters, the wagons making it more convenient to carry their ever increasing stock of evidence while the cabbage and potatoes covered the whisky and wine most conveniently.

In his garb Asher went several times over the same route traveled recently in collecting evidence for the raids of a week ago. His disguise, however, was complete and in several instances he obtained evidence from alleged bootleggrs arrested at that time.

Asher, who came to Washington, was unknown among the underworld here until news of his connections with the gigantic series of raids last week. Since, police have been kept busy sidetracking agents of bootleggers attemptin to "get a line on Asher."

Asher tells of many instances in his wanderings last week of the bootlegers discussing in his presence "this hell cat Asher." Police are guarding him closely and it is thought he will be sent to another section of the country now.

Lieut. O. T. Davis and Washington prohibition chief Ruby directed the raids. More than 50 police and 20 revenue agents took part in the clean-up, leaving headquarters in 12 automobiles.

ST. LOUISANS TO TOUR TROPICS ON SPECIALLY CHARTERED SHIP

Party of About 80, Headed by President Vesper of C. of C., Sail From New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 17.—Eighty members of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, their wives and friends, left here today for the tropics on the steamship Atenas. The steamship has been chartered especially for the trip, which will last three weeks, and will include Cuba, Costa Rica and the Panama Canal zone.

While the tour is mainly for pleasure, no business opportunities are going to be overlooked and friendly relations will be established in these countries, to which St. Louis is overlooking as part of the world export market of the future.

F. W. A. Vesper, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, Paul V. Bunn, general manager, head the delegation. "Latin America and the Orient will be a big field for St. Louis exports when the Mississippi River improvement projects are completed," said Vesper. "The great victory of the waterways advocates in amending the rivers and harbors bill, increasing the appropriations to $56,000,000 and preserving this figure in the face of Cabinet opposition, is an indication of the importance with which the valley cities regard water transportation, and the character of support they are giving it."

COUSIN WILLS $25,000 TO JULIAN K. GLASGOW

Bequests of $171,000 Made by Mrs. R. S. Voorhis, Granddaughter of Gen. Clark.

Julian K. Glasgow, secretary of the Ethical Society and the Public Question Club and former secretary of the old Civic League, residing at the Colonial Hotel, Grand boulevard and Enright avenue, was bequeathed $25,000 in the will of his cousin, Mrs. Julia Clark Voorhis, a former St. Louis woman, which was filed for probate in New York yesterday.

Mrs. Voorhis, who was a granddaughter of Gen. William Clark of the Lewis and Clark expedition, provided specific bequests of $171,000. One of these is for $10,000 for a memorial window in Christ Church Cathedral. Her family were among the oldest communicants of the cathedral. She died in her New York apartment last December, at the age of about 83, and was buried in Bellefontaine Cemetery here, with quiet services at the cathedral.

Mrs. Voorhis Born Here.

Mrs. Voorhis was born and reared here. She was a daughter of George Rogers Hancock Clark, son of the General. She lived with her mother for some time after her father's death, at 3212 Olive street, when that was a fashionable neighborhood. She also lived for a time with William Henry Glasgow, her uncle, whose daughter is Mrs. William S. McChesney Jr. of 4406 McPherson avenue.

Mrs. Voorhis was the widow of Robert Stevenson Voorhis, an attorney, from whom she became separated, and who died years ago. Their only child was Miss Eleanor Glasgow Voorhis, who died in New York in 1919 and was buried here. There is a room in the Missouri Historical Society quarters in Jefferson Memorial which is a memorial to Miss Voorhis.

Other Provisions in Will.

Other provisions in Mrs. Voorhis' will are: Legacy of $40,000 and the income for life from $25,000 to Samuel W. Maguire of Brooklyn for "having continuously devoted his time and service to three generations of my family;" $25,000 to each of three nephews, George R. Clark of Seattle, Wash., William G. Clark of Verona, N. J., and John O'Fallon Clark of Chicago; $20,000 to a niece, Miss Sadie C. Ellis of Honolulu; $1000 to the Rev. Ernest M. Stires of New York; all of her books, furniture, works of art, crests and historical relics of her grandfather, to Arthur J. Martin of Jersey City, N. J., who is named executor and directed to transfer the relics "to an association or associations in New York or St. Louis" as a memorial to her daughter.

Presumably these relics might be sent to the Missouri Historical Society. It is provided that the residue of the estate be divided among the legatees with the exception of Martin.

"Mrs. Voorhis went to live in New York nearly 40 years ago," Mrs. McChesney said last night. "Her mother's sister, Mrs. Jefferson Clark, who lived with her there, left her about $250,000. I suppose that Mrs. Voorhis' estate amounts to $300,000 or $400,000. Maguire, who got the largest bequest, had gone to nurse Jefferson Clark there. Maguire was a poor young man, but he made himself indispensable in the home. They agreed to send him to Columbia University if he would stay with them. He became a lawyer. We didn't know till the will came out that he had been married for 20 years."

POLICEMAN IN STORE WHEN IT IS HELD UP

Two Youthful Robbers Escape With $150 After Threatening Patrolman.

When two youths held up the Marcus Avenue Pharmacy, 2400 Marcus avenue, at 11:10 last night, they found, besides two clerks, Harold and Walter Davidson, and a woman and 10 men customers, Patrolman Otto Glaeser, the policeman on the beat, who was behind the prescription counter. Seeing the policeman attempt to reach his revolver, one of the robbers fired a shot at him, which broke a showcase glass. The youths escaped in a Ford coupe with $150 taken from the cash register. The policeman emptied his revolver at their machine.

The youths herded the clerks and customers in a corner at the point of revolvers. One of them appeared to be nervous. The other found Patrolman Glaeser, who was waiting at the drug store for the policeman who would relieve him. "I'll croak you if you make a move," the robber told the policeman. One robber made Walter Davidson open the cash register, from which he then took the money.

Glaeser tried to get his revolver and the nervous robber fired at him. The woman customer fainted. Then the robbers ran out. Apparently the same youths held up Charles Miller, proprietor, a clerk and two customers, in a drug store at 5200 Cates avenue, shortly before 11 p. m., taking $15 from the cash register.

Joseph Dolezal was behind the icebox in his meat market at 1330 Geyer avenue last night at 9 o'clock, when he heard two men order his wife to hold up her hands. He tiptoed into adjoining living rooms, obtained a revolver and, with leveled weapon, re-entered the store, commanding the robbers in turn to hold up their hands. They ran out. Dolezal did not fire at them.

Benjamin Brisset, manager of a Kroger grocery store at 1728 North Union avenue, was on his way to his home at 5223 Wells avenue at 9 o'clock, when two men strong-armed him. He broke loose, struck one of the men in the nose and ran a short distance to his home. He was carrying $150 of his firm's money, he said. Two men obtained between $40 and $50 from the Kroger store at 3018 Arsenal street at 5 o'clock, compelling the manager, Louis Haeffner, to go into a rear room.

C. G. SPENCER, TRAP SHOOTER, DIES IN SAN ANTONIO HOTEL

St. Louisan Was One of World's Professional Target Men and Championship Winner.

Charles G. Spencer, 49 years old, of 5903 Washington avenue, one of the world's leading professional trap shots, died in San Antonio, Tex., yesterday. The cause of his death has not been learned here. He had suffered several attacks of illness in the last two or three years. It was understood that he was found unconscious in a hotel room yesterday. He had gone to San Antonio on business, having been a representative of the Winchester Repeating Arms Co. for more than 20 years. The body will be brought here for burial.

Spencer was one of the few remaining adepts at shooting live pigeons in a way similar to shooting clay birds at the traps. He had the highest average ever made over a period of 15 consecutive years. For 17 years his average score was 97.17 per cent. Last year he won the professional title at the Great Lakes zone championship and the double championship there. He held the world's record for high runs, once having broken 565 targets in succession, until the ammunition gave out. He held the high average for professionals in 1918, 97.87 per cent.

Mrs. Spencer, a son and a daughter, survive.

CONFESSED SPY HELD FOR CRIMINAL LIBEL

Charge Against Albert Bailin Grew Out of Statements in Depositions Taken by Walsh.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 17.—Albert Bailin, alias Balanow, confessed spy and agent provocateur of various detective agencies, today was arrested on a charge of criminal libel preferred by Allen O. Myers, assistant general manager of a detective agency.

The charge grew out of Balanow's sworn statements during a deposition taken by Frank P. Walsh for the defense of 22 alleged communists facing trial at St. Joseph, Mich. Myers charges that Balanow libeled him when he swore that he had written a letter threatening to blow up the Woolworth Building and kill the Postmaster of New York by orders of Myers, who at that time was his employer.

Surrendered Immediately.

Balanow surrendered immediately after leaving the witness stand this morning, after learning from newspaper men that the warrant had been issued. Ed Nockels, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor, deposited $5000 in cash for his bail, and he was released.

Myers passed most of the day on the stand describing his work for the Burns agency and the activities of a former operative, Linderfeld, who, after investigating the Wall street bomb explosion for the agency, was arrested in Warsaw, Poland, as a suspect in that case.

Advised to Keep Silence.

Efforts of Walsh to question Myers about a trip he made to Russia a year ago or more on which he was supposed to have met Linderfeld failed when the witness said he had been instructed by Attorney-General Daugherty, through W. J. Burns, head of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice, to answer no questions about the European trip.

He testified that at the time of the trip he was working for the Government as a dollar-a-year man, and that his regular salary was paid by the agency.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE OFFICERS ARE CITED BEFORE COURT

New York Members Will Answer Demand That They Be Compelled to File Campaign Statements.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—William H. Anderson, superintendent, and four other officers of the Anti-Saloon League of New York State, have been subpenaed to appear before Supreme Court Justice Staly in Albany Monday, it was disclosed tonight by Col. Ransom H. Gillett, attorney for five citizens of Troy, who seek to have the league declared a political organization and compelled to file election campaign statements.

Those subpenaed with Anderson were: The Rev. C. W. Spicer of Gloversville; B. H. Fancher, league treasurer; the Rev. George C. Moor, secretary, and Orville S. Poland, superintendent of the law enforcement division of the league.

The Rev. David J. Burrell, president, may be called later in the week, Col. Gillett said. The officers have been directed to take to Albany all books, papers and records of the organization for 1922, showing sources of its receipts and disbursements, the names of its field workers and what ministers, if any, are on the league payroll; and the cost of circularizing candidates for office, and who received the circulars.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE MEN ARE ACCUSE

Leaders Said to Have Interfe With Prohibition Enforcement.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Interference with prohibition enforcement was charged against officers of the Antisaloon League and other organizations by Senator Shields, Democrat, Tennessee, in an address today in the Senate. He referred to speeches on prohibition enforcement by Dr. Baker, head of the league; Wayne B. Wheeler, its general counsel; Dr. Clarence True Wilson and others and asserted that in "fanaticism" for prohibition enforcement, they had gone beyond proper bounds.

Senator Shields referred particularly to a reported address by Dr. Baker in which he was quoted as advocating incarceration in jail for Federal Judges who, he said, were drunkards.

Prohibition "fanatics," he declared, had not scrupled against "villifying" Federal Judges, members of Congress and others and some, he said, appeared to regard the prohibition law as their own and not the people's.

Law enforcement was urged by Senator Shields, who, referring to agitation for light wine and beer, said he did not know what the movement contemplated, but he was against permitting use of any intoxicating beverages.

Declaring that bootlegging existed in a small way before adoption of the Volstead law, the Tennessee Senator said that since prohibition there had developed an aristocracy of bootleggers.

Prohibition has not been a failure, he said, advocating a bill by Senator Sterling, Republican, South Dakota, to have prohibition agents placed under the civil service, after examination and not by a blanket law covering all those now on the rolls.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls, or answers by mail, cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity, when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope

S. H. J.—The seventh wedding anniversary is the woolen one.

J. S.—Take the $20 note to a coin dealer to determine its value.

F. P. K.—Address the Department of Mines and Mining at the State House, Jefferson City, for this information.

R. A. W.—The evening newspapers published in Mount Vernon, Ill., are The News and The Register.

J. W.—We do not undertake to answer examination papers. You will find an answer to your question by thoroughly studying your American history textbook.

LITTLE BOBBY.—Entry blanks for the baby show at the Coliseum can be obtained at the headquarters of the Children of America Loyalty League, 907 Victoria Building.

HUNT.—The half cent dated 1833 is worth 5c to 10c; the one which is dated 1849 with small date is worth $5 to $10, with large date 5c to 10c.

SCHOOLBOY.—It is quite evident from your question that you have not been studying. Your question is thoroughly answered in the physiology textbooks.

GREENHORN.—The honey bee will not attack fruit which has not been already broken by some insect or bruised. If they are bruised or decaying they will then suck the juices.

T. W. C.—You seem to have your dance fairly well planned. The only suggestion we can offer is to have it a costume affair which will add to the fun and that you look up games in books at the Public Library if you think dancing will grow tiresome before the evening is over.

ECONOMICAL.—To dye the drapes mulberry, it would be necessary to first boil them until all traces of the blue has disappeared. This might injure the texture of the material, but we know of no other means of bleaching unless acids were used and this, no doubt, would do more harm. Dyeing establishments probably could do the work more successfully, but they contend it is always better to dye materials a deeper or darker shade. The prepared dyes on the markets are easily used and full directions are enclosed.

MINNIE.—French nougat candy is made as follows: ½ pound confectioners' sugar, ¼ pound almonds, blanched and finely chopped, confectioners' chocolate. Put the sugar in a sauce pan, place on range and stir constantly until melted; add almonds and pour on an oiled marble. Fold mixture as it spreads with a broad-bladed knife, keeping it constantly in motion. Divide in four parts and as soon as cool enough to handle shape in long rolls about 1-3 inch in diameter, keeping rolls in motion until almost cold. When cold snap in pieces 1½ inches long. This is done by holding the roll at the point to be snapped over the sharp edge of a broad-bladed knife and snapping. Melt confectioners' chocolate over hot water, beat with a fork until light and smooth, and when slightly cooled dip pieces in chocolate and with a two-tined fork or bonbon dipped remove from chocolate to oiled paper, drawing dipper through the top of each the entire length, thus leaving a ridge.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association.)

C. W. A.—You will have to pay the note or get someone else to go ahead with the building, if the contractor you had refuses to do so. Of course he is liable to you for damages. Consult a lawyer.

POST READER.—If the concern refuse to make good the defective piece of furniture, either return it or notify them that they will have it made good and hold them for the costs or repair.

JAMES.—We find no provision in the Illinois statutes preventing the tenant from vacating without notice, but under the common law, which in the absence of a statutory provision would govern the situation, the tenant would have to give one month's notice before vacating. In the meantime he need only pay the old rent, not the increased rent.

M. L. P.—If the company signed the contract agreeing to pay you by the day, you have a good claim against them for payment by the day, commencing with the date on which the contract took effect. In that case, if they refuse to pay you by the day, you can sue them. If we have misunderstood your question, please write again, stating all the facts clearly.

PENNY.(1) If you obtain the divorce in the State of Illinois you can marry one year from the date of the divorce decree. (2) You could go to another state and remarry immediately, but the Illinois courts would not recognize that as a legal marriage. (3) No, you could not do this. (4) You could be prosecuted for remarrying in this way and your second marriage would be illegal and void.

W. F. P.—If the landlord pays for the light, he can have same turned off for nonpayment of rent without any liability. He cannot hold the car unless judgment against the tenant has been obtained. The landlord cannot hold the baggage unless he has obtained a judgment or unless the rooms are in a house in which 10 or more rooms are used for the accommodation of guests. (This is under the Illinois law.)

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

L. M.—We do not know what you mean by "acid mouth."

R. R.—The "Little Sisters of the Poor" take care of the aged.

C. R. T.—Anti-syphilitic treatment should be pushed in this case. We advise seeing a physician.

GRATEFUL.—There is such service in the State. Call the Missouri Association for the Blind, Metropolitan Building. They can, we think, give you this information.

MOTHER.—You had better have a physcian see your children. The occurrence of the spots on the second child would suggest a parasitic condition.

C. J. E.—You can learn mechanical dentistry at St. Louis University School of Dentistry, Grand and Caroline; Washington University School of Dentistry, Leffingwell and Locust.

R. R. H.—(a) No remedy can be applied to correct this trouble. (b) This is normal under certain circumstances. For a more detailed answer write again enclosing stamped addressed envelope.

MOLLY.—There is some local cause for the peeling of the skin. It may be due to some cosmetic you are using. Use nothing but a good cold cream on the face for a week and see if this will not correct the trouble.

K. S. D.—Hair turning gray in one so young is an individual peculiarity, the cause of which is not known. It often is an hereditary tendency. Dyeing is the only remedy and is not advised. After all gray hair in a youthful person is very attractive.

Sadly missed by father, mother, sister, brother, brother-in-law, sister-in-law and all who loved her.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Josephine Ritter (nee Pelgen), who departed this life Feb. 20, 1920:

Today recalls sad memories
Of a loved one gone to rest;
And those who think of her today
Are the ones who loved her best.

Sadly missed by
HER FAMILY AND ALL WHO LOVED HER

In loving memory of our dear daughter, Mildred Goetsch, who departed this life two years ago Feb. 15, 1920:

Silently the shades of evening
Gather round our lonely door;
Silently they bring before us
The dear face we see no more.
So often we go to her grave,
Lingering there and trying to be brave.
But, oh, 'tis hard to bear
To go away and leave her there.

Sadly missed by PARENTS.

In sweet memory of my dear daughter, Annie Clohessy, who departed this life two years ago Feb. 18, 1921:

You were a flower too sweet for us,
Sent here but for a while;
God marked you when he gave you birth
And took you with a smile.
Depths of sorrow we cannot tell;
The loss of our darling we love so well.

Sadly missed by
MOTHER, FATHER, SISTERS AND BROTHERS AND ALL WHO LOVED HER.

My greatest sorrow came to me five years ago today.
Why hast Thou done this, Lord, yes, why?
I am at a loss to see, to know.
I do not understand today. Since five sad years have passed away.
But this I know in this I rest—
'Twas God who called, and he knows best.
And while I mourn your death,
A life so full of deeds of kindness and of love
Has found reward with God above.

In loving memory of our darling son, Arthur Pahl, who departed this life five years ago Feb. 14, 1918. Sadly missed by FATHER, MOTHER AND BROTHER, AND FRIENDS.

In sad, but loving, memory of our darling son and brother, Festus J. Dolan, who departed this life three years ago, Feb. 20, 1920:

There was an angel band in heaven that was not quite complete,
So God took our own dear Festus to fill that vacant seat.
Festus was our baby boy, pride of all our hearts at home.
But the angels floating lightly whispered softly,
Come, Festus.

Sadly missed by all the
DOLAN FAMILY.

Anniversary mass at Holy Name Church, Thursday, Feb. 22, at 8 a. m.

SHORT'S SPARK PLUG DISK is easily attached to the bottom of any plug, and gives 25 times more spark gap. A big spark means more power and easier starting. These disks greatly improve new plugs and renew old ones. Price, four for $1. SHORT'S THERMOSTATIC CARBURETOR uses the proper amount of fuel which is thoroughly atomized, gasified and mixed with all the air that is taken into the motor. This increases the mileage as much as 70 per cent. Cars can be used all summer without fans on the motors. Made in various sizes and models for cars and small tractors. Kerosene equipment sold separately. Price, Ford Carburetor for gas, complete, $16. SHORT'S ADJUSTABLE LIGHT PISTON. Piston wear is taken up, or rings changed as top of motor without opening the crankcase. The beveled spring ring holds all the rings together in one channel and prevents oil and gas leakage. The asbestos shims under the removable steel head protects the oil from excessive heat. The body of the piston is made in one piece with no cut to weaken it, and it is accurately ground finished. Price, for Ford sets, complete with first-class rings and piston pins, $20. W. I. Short, 3569 Lindell bl., St. Louis, Mo. (c)

HOSPITAL ATTENDANT HELD FOR CORONER

Inquiry Into Death of Man Who Said He Was Punched During Examination Is Continued.

A Coroner's inquest in the case of Thomas Hogan, 42 years old, a janitor at St. Francis Xavier's Church, who died at City Hospital Friday from an incision of the bladder, the cause of which has not been determined, was begun yesterday and will be resumed tomorrow.

Herbert Loescher, 20 years old, of 2803 Wash street, an attendant at the hospital, who was arrested following an ante mortem statement by Hogan that he had been punched in the stomach by a hospital attache, is under bond to appear at the inquest.

Hogan, who was taken to the city hospital Tuesday night following his arrest in a lunchroom at 703 South Broadway, where he had broken a window, was said by physicians to be suffering from alcoholism, and was assigned to the prison ward to be held on a charge of destruction of property.

Wednesday he complained of severe pains in his stomach, and later an operation disclosed that his bladder was lacerated. There was a bruise on his abdomen. In response to questions he said that one of the attendants present Tuesday night when his stomach was siphoned struck him because he refused to give his "pedigree." Later he signed a written statement to that effect.

Loescher, who assisted in handling Hogan when the latter arrived at the hospital, denied having struck the patient. Other attendants also denied having used any force on Hogan.

STORY OF A TAILOR WHO SAW THE LIGHT

Shop Looked Like a Wedding With New Lamps and Piece of Paper Was a Contract.

Eight suits for payment of contracts filed by the Municipal Electric Lamp Co., 1302 Olive street, in Peace Justice Miles' court yesterday, all of which were continued at the plaintiff's request because of the absence of attorney, led to a statement by A. Katz, a tailor of 923 Franklin avenue, of the manner in which he said he purchased four lamps from the company. Katz is one of the defendants.

The lamps sold by the company are double glass white shades, with reflective power. They are attachable to a socket, and the company says it gives a free light bulb with each lamp and installs the apparatus. Lamps are sold for $14.50 each, 50 cents being paid on signing of the contract and 50 cents each week until the total has been collected.

However, Katz declared, this procedure was not made plain to him. "I was standing in my tailor shop last Oct. 11," Katz said, "when a salesman for the company runs in and says to my clerk and me, 'Hello, boys, I want to show you a trick.' Then he shows the lamps with a great flourish, unscrews my bulb from the ceiling, connects his lamp and hollers, "What do you see?" 'Light,' I answered.

"Well, about that time I was called out of the shop, and in a few minutes, when I returned, the place was all lit up. This fellow had connected three more lamps. It looked like a wedding. Then he shows me a piece of paper and says give me $2 for deposit while you keep the lamps to see if you like them, and sign this paper so the boss will know where I left the lamps. I did.

"A little later somebody from the company came to collect on the lamps. I told him to take them back; I didn't want them. But he refused to take them and showed me a contract I had signed. I didn't know it was a contract; I can't read English."

Katz still retains the lamps, due to the lamp company's unwillingness to take them back, and owes $56 for them. Records at Justice Miles' court show that the company has brought suit against 47 delinquent purchasers since December, 1921. Louis Weill, treasurer of the organization, yesterday said the company sold about 6000 lamps yearly.

Katz's case will be tried next Friday at 2 p. m. His attorney has asked for a jury.

French Debt Collection Proposed.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Representative Herrick, Republican, Oklahoma, introduced a resolution today which would "direct President Harding to collect the war debt from France and would place at his disposal for the job the full powers of the nation, including the army and navy."

ALLEGED STOLEN RECORD LED TO MAN'S ARREST

Thief's Victim Got "Tip" That He Turned Over to Sheriff, at a Funeral.

The incessant playing of a phonograph record and an incident at a funeral resulted in the arrest Friday at his home of Charles P. Clemens, 33 years old, a farmer, near Clayton and Wood's Mill roads, St. Louis County, who is charged with burglary and larceny. He has a wife and five children.

On Oct. 26 last the home of George Sellenriek, at Bellefontaine, was robbed of a phonograph, some records and a few other articles of furniture. Sellenriek had about given up hope of recovering his things, when, last week, at a funeral, he heard a friend complain of a negro dialect record that a neighbor's children played incessantly on their phonograph.

Sellenriek recalled that such a record had been stolen with his phonograph, which aroused his suspicion, and he notified Sheriff Willmann. He and the Sheriff went to Clemens' home, but the latter saw them first and escaped across country in his auto truck. The Sheriff could not follow in his automobile, and gave chase on foot, but was outdistanced. A few hours later Clemens returned home and was arrested.

Sellenriek identified as his property a phonograph, the minstrel record that served as a clew in locating his things, and also some other articles of furniture found in Clemens' home.

Further search disclosed six hams that are alleged to have been stolen from a woman on the Olive Street road, and in a shed were found automobile accessories stolen Dec. 31 from an auto truck at Altheim.

Clemens refused to make a statement and was held in default of $5000 bond.

NO TRACE FOUND OF CREW OF CRAFT REPORTED TO BE SINKING

Piece of Plankings and Loose Spar Only Indications Discovered of Italian Vessel Off Virginia Coast.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Feb. 17.—A night and day search by two coast guard cutters and other vessels in the waters off the Virginia coast where the Italian steamer Moncenisio reported herself sinking Thursday brought to light only an indication of disaster. There was no trace of the crew.

The coast guard cutter Tampa reported today to her headquarters at this port from which she made a 450-mile run to the scene, said the steamship Johnson City found the only sign that might be of the Moncenisio, a piece of deck planking, freshly broken, and a loose spar. The Tampa herself was searching the waters at full speed in the hope that the crew, if they took to lifeboats, might be found, the message said. The cutter Seneca also was reported making a search.

ARMY MAN MENTIONED AS REILY'S SUCCESSOR

Maj.-Gen. Edwards and Congressmen Towner and Campbell Aspirants to Post.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
No. 20 Wyatt Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, retired, of Boston, who commanded a New England division in the World War, is believed to be the choice of Secretary of War Weeks for the post of Governor of Porto Rico to succeed E. Mont Reily of Kansas City, on the latter's retirement April 1. Others regarded as aspirants are Representative H. M. Towner of Iowa, chairman of the House Committee on Insular Affairs, and Representative Philip P. Campbell of Kansas, chairman of the House Rules Committee. Campbell was defeated for renomination in the last Kansas Republican primaries.

It is expected that Reily's successor will be named by the President before the end of the present Congress. Reily's resignation, conveyed to the President in a long cablegram received late yesterday afternoon, had been forecast during his recent visit to Washington. It was made known then that he expected to continue as the chief executive of Porto Rico only a few weeks after his return and then to submit his resignation on the ground of his impaired health.

Reily cabled that he was confined to his bed and could not hope to resume his official duties for several months. He felt, he said, that he should resign and look after his health.

Resignation Ends Long Fight.

Reily's resignation ends a fight that has been waged against him ever since he took office. He stirred up trouble with his inaugural address, in which he declared against any agitation by the Porto Ricans for independence and subsequent speeches and acts have added fuel to the flames. In the course of the controversy, indictments were returned against the Governor, charging misuse of public funds. The case was dismissed, but the fight against Reily went on.

Reily has always asserted that the opposition to him was due wholly to his refusal to submit to the dictation of the Unionist party in making appointments.

One of the leaders in the fight against Reily has been Felix Cordova Davila, resident commissioner of the Island in Washington, as a result of whose charges Representative Humphreys of Mississippi sponsored a resolution calling for a congressional investigation of his acts. This resolution, though not acted on, resulted in an airing of the Porto Rican situation in Congress.

Comment by Davila.

Commenting today on the resignation of Reily, Davila said:

"My sympathy is with Kansas City. It was a happy day for my people—the happiest they have known in a long time—when I cabled to Porto Rico yesterday that Reily had quit. Reily was awful. I knew from the first he would not last. He was so impossible.

"I had prepared another resolution submitting additional facts bearing on his conduct in the Island, but withheld it when I was told that Reily was about to be recalled.

"If the Islanders had their way they would have a Porto Rican as Governor, but they realize that this is out of the question at present. Either Representative H. M. Towner of Iowa, or Major-General Clarence R. Edwards would be acceptable as Governor. Who ever may be chosen Porto Rico will protfi by the change from Reily."

NEW ASSISTANT U. S. ATTORNE

W. J. Blesse Takes Oath as Successor to M. J. Whaley.

William J. Blesse, former Justice of the Peace in the Fifth District, was sworn in yesterday as an assistant to United States District Attorney James E. Carroll, following Blesse's presentation of a commission issued by the Department of Justice at Washington. He succeeds Matt J. Whaley, who recently resigned, and will be assigned Monday to general work in Carroll's office.

The apointment of Blesse was discussed recently in Washington by Carroll and the heads of the Department of Justice. Blesse was defeated for Republican nomination for Probate Judge here in the August primaries of last year.

REPORTS KROGER STORE HOLDU

Manager Says He and Two Clerk Were Lined Up, $130 Taken.

Three employes of a Kroger grocery at 3735 Cote Brilliante avenue were forced to stand in line at 11 a. m. yesterday while two unmasked men, one carrying a revolver, obtained $130 from two cash registers and escaped. Arthur McGallister of 1221 Montclair avenue, manager of the store, reported to police.

He said the men entered while several customers were present, but waited until the customers had departed before ordering the employes to line up. The armed man pointed his revolver at the employes while the other searched the cash registers.

RMY MAN MENTIONED AS REILY'S SUCCESSOR

aj.-Gen. Edwards and Congressmen Towner and Campbell Aspirants to Post.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
No. 20 Wyatt Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Majorneral Clarence R. Edwards, reed, of Boston, who commanded a w England division in the World
r, is believed to be the choice of retary of War Weeks for the post
Governor of Porto Rico to succeed Mont Reily of Kansas City, on the ter's retirement April 1. Others arded as aspirants are Repre-tative H. M. Towner of Iowa, irman of the House Committee
Insular Affairs, and Representa-
Philip P. Campbell of Kansas, irman of the House Rules Com-ttee. Campbell was defeated for omination in the last Kansas Re-blican primaries.

t is expected that Reily's suc-
sor will be named by the Presi-
t before the end of the present ngress. Reily's resignation, con-ed to the President in a long ca-gram received late yesterday aftoon, had been forecast during his ent visit to Washington. It was de known then that he expected continue as the chief executive of rto Rico only a few weeks after return and then to submit his ignation on the ground of his im-red health.

Reily cabled that he was confined his bed and could not hope to reme his official duties for several nths. He felt, he said, that he ould resign and look after his alth.

Resignation Ends Long Fight.

Reily's resignation ends a fight t has been waged against him r since he took office. He stirred trouble with his inaugural ad-ess, in which he declared against y agitation by the Porto Ricans independence and subsequent eeches and acts have added fuel the flames. In the course of the ntroversy, indictments were rerned against the Governor, charg-misuse of public funds. The case s dismissed, but the fight against ily went on.

Reily has always asserted that the position to him was due wholly to refusal to submit to the dictation the Unionist party in making ap-intments.

One of the leaders in the fight
ainst Reily has been Felix Cor-va Davila, resident commissioner the Island in Washington, as a sult of whose charges Representive Humphreys of Mississippi onsored a resolution calling for a ngressional investigation of his
ts. This resolution, though not ted on, resulted in an airing of the rto Rican situation in Congress.

Comment by Davila.

Commenting today on the resigna-
n of Reily, Davila said:

"My sympathy is with Kansas
ty. It was a happy day for my ople—the happiest they have own in a long time—when I bled to Porto Rico yesterday that ily had quit. Reily was awful. I ew from the first he would not
t. He was so impossible.

"I had prepared another resolu-
n submitting additional facts aring on his conduct in the isd, but withheld it when I was d that Reily was about to be relled.

"If the Islanders had their way
y would have a Porto Rican as vernor, but they realize that this out of the question at present.
her Representative H. M. Towner
Iowa, or Major-General Clarence Edwards would be acceptable as vernor. Who ever may be chosen, rto Rico will protfi by the change

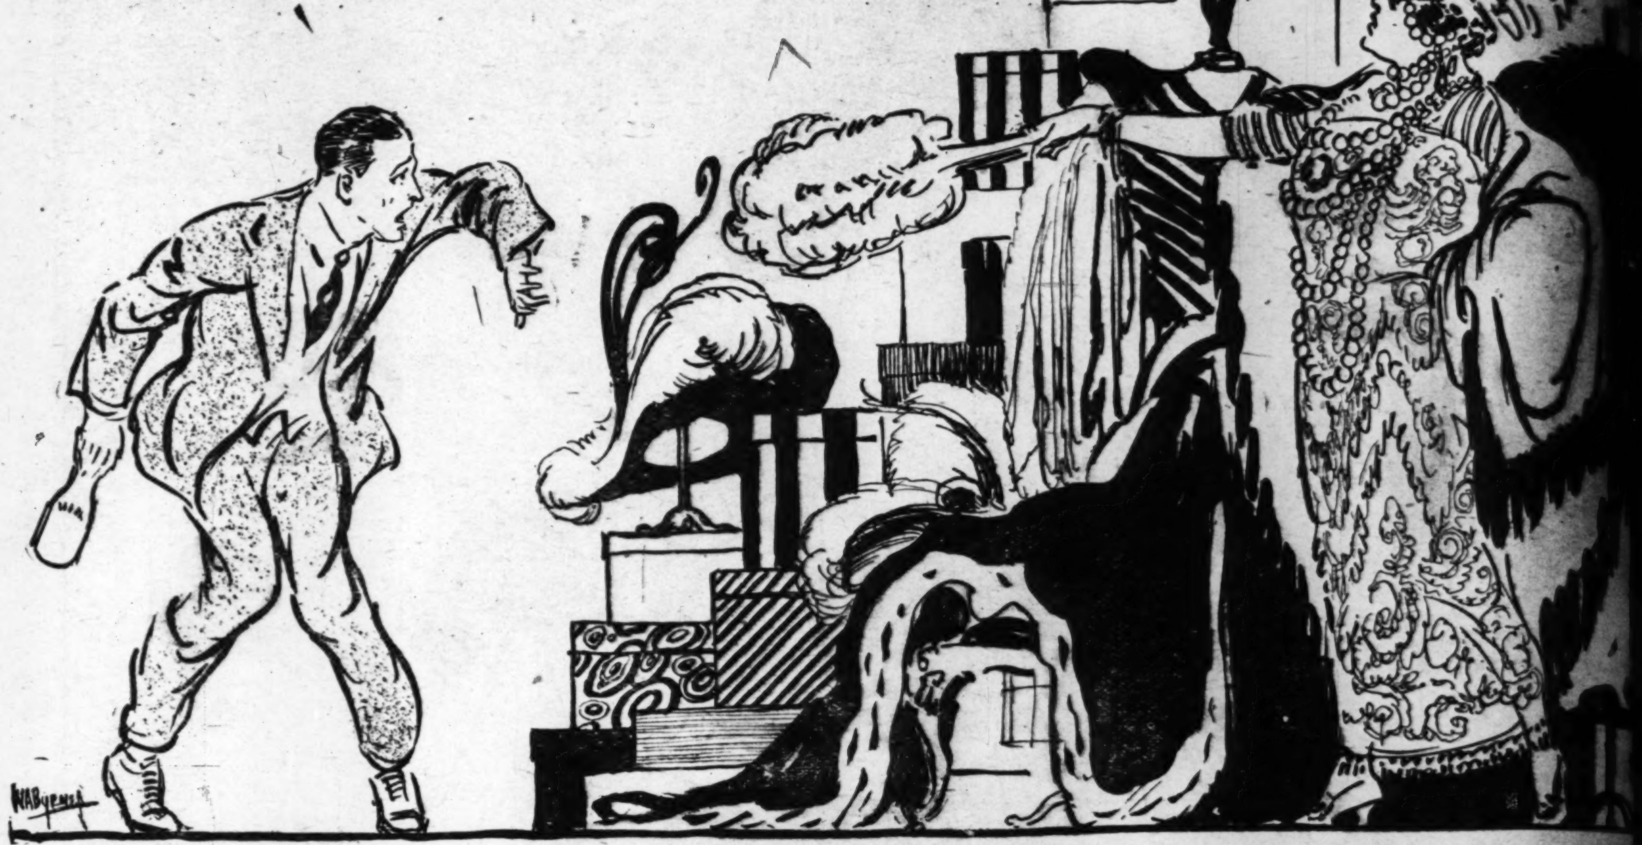
PRIZE WINNING PARIS BALL GOWN

This elaborate "creation" of Georges Barbere, distinguished French costume designer, was voted the masterpiece at the recent Bal de Grand Prix.

The World's "Best-Dressed" Woman



Mrs. Smith-Wilkinson's youthful spouse wants a new job—Though she spent a fortune for her 300 dresses and other gorgeous garments, Edward Henry says she let him follow in her train without a cent in his clothes—She paid him eight shillings a week to do gardening and the dishes at the bungalow, and offered him 12 shillings if he'd stay, but he couldn't see it—Now she's off to South Africa and he's in the market for a place as milliner or specialty dancer

THE husband of the best-dressed woman in the world says he will be the worst-dressed man in the world pretty soon, unless he finds a job. He is young yet and can do almost anything. Gardening, washing dishes, scrubbing floors, lady's-maiding—all these and many other duties he has performed since he married the best-dressed woman three years ago. He has done these things for his wife, being a dutiful helpmate.

But Edward Henry Smith-Wilkinson of Nottingham, England, hopes he may catch on somewhere as a milliner or a specialty dancer. Salary no object, just so it covers food, shelter and clothing expenses. The clothing item need alarm no prospective employer. Edward Henry is not at all like his wife in the matter of dress. Just any sort of respectable suit of clothes, with the customary trimming such as hat, boots (British for shoes), shirt and the like, will do for Edward Henry. Having served 36 months as the husband of the woman who spent so much on clothing for herself that she didn't have anything left for ordinary purposes, young Smith-Wilkinson will be mighty glad to get a job where he can see in the immediate offing a place to sleep, three square meals per diem and garments enough to keep him comfortable and within the law.

Mrs. Smith-Wilkinson, taking along 200 of her 300 dresses, so that she need not shock the natives save with marvel at her sartorial magnificence, has gone to South Africa. Mr. Smith-Wilkinson says he understands she is studying the latest styles down there. Beyond that he is silent as to his wife's mission. In fact, the activities or antics of his wife no longer entrain the interest of Edward Henry; he's through!

Yes, remarkable revelations percolate over from England. When Edward Henry, whose age is 28, just about half that of his wife, announced that he must have a job or perish, that part of the world which heard his pathetic appeal marveled mightily.

"What? Husband of a woman whose income is fabulous looking for a mere job?"

Exactly that. And now let Edward Henry tell us why:

"I look back on the life with my wife with positive terror. Nobody can imagine what I have been through. The only thing on which my wife would spend her money lavishly was dress. In ordinary ways she was exceptionally careful."

Mrs. Smith-Wilkinson at Ritz Hotel in London wearing her wonderful ermine coat.

That's what they call it in England—careful.

"She would grumble," continues Edward Henry in his statement to the world, "if more than a pint of milk was taken in one day for a household of four persons. Our total bill for food at the Nottingham bungalow used to be about 10 shillings a week."

Fancy that—something like $2.50 a week to feed four persons! Could you do it in St. Louis, for instance?

"I have known my wife," the statement proceeds, "to

So it seems Mrs. Smith-Wilkinson really [illegible] the fabulous income which she was supposed [illegible] along in 1920 and 1921, from her chain of [illegible] ance" hotels throughout England. A mere [illegible] of $500 a week would foot up to only [illegible] However, Mr. Smith-Wilkinson intimates in his [illegible] fession of marital infelicity that his wife's [illegible] shrank considerably in recent months.

"It was her habit," runs on Edward Henry, "[illegible] we stayed at expensive hotels, to say that she [illegible] took any breakfast, and so only one plate [illegible] would be brought to our suite. This I had [illegible] with her. The mother of the man-servant [illegible] bungalow, knowing that I had little to eat, often [illegible] send me pieces of cake and oranges."

And now, just listen:

"I got married only because my wife [illegible] and I felt sorry for her. She often told me she [illegible] never be able to live without me. She used to [illegible] her 'little bit of heaven.' Her temper at [illegible] terrible, and at the end, broken in health and [illegible] miserable, I came away.

"When I told her that I must go away she [illegible] increase the 8 shillings a week she paid me for [illegible] the garden to 12 shillings. But I had had [illegible] being married to 'the best-dressed woman [illegible] world.' I was through!"

Edward Henry took refuge in the home of [illegible] It was there, when waiting for the longed-for [illegible] he told the sad tale of his married life. [illegible] 8 shillings a week for being lady's maid, [illegible] other things to the so-called "Countess of [illegible] is cut off, the poor youth has only his army [illegible] the same amount. That, in American money, [illegible] than $2.

With his salary from "Madame Aladdin," [illegible] but another nickname for his wife, he had [illegible] a week; but as he had to buy more or less [illegible] himself, surreptitiously, outside the household, he [illegible] had enough left to buy himself decent clothing. [illegible] could do in the clothes line was to look at [illegible] gorgeous dresses belonging to his wife, and [illegible] likewise gorgeous bonnets, and her 100 pairs of [illegible] or perhaps shoes, and sigh.

Now, refuged with his aunt at the town of [illegible] not far from Nottingham, the striking husband [illegible] that he is getting better fed than has been the [illegible] any time since his marriage, excepting on [illegible] casions when Mrs. Smith-Wilkinson fed him [illegible] public because she wanted to make a [illegible] showing.

"At the Ritz, in London," said Edward Henry, "[illegible] expenses were about $450 a week. Yet when [illegible] turned to the bungalow at Nottingham we [illegible] meals of bread and dripping."

Dripping, translated into our own tongue, [illegible] gravy, so it is said. Bread and gravy diet [illegible] Edward Henry, after a reasonable testing [illegible] labors as scullery maid and kitchen gardener [illegible] an appetite not to be sated on bread and gravy.

"I was married," says the disillusioned husband, "[illegible] February, 1920, here at Matlock. My wife [illegible] the London shopkeepers didn't agree with the Lewis magnate. They felt that heaven was unkind to them, and they set about baiting traps whatever Mrs. Smith-Wilkinson might have when she returned to her own country. Their were unavailing, for it appears, after all's said and done now, that the lady made one stupendous splurge in Paris, and, to use an expression perhaps more direct than dignified, shot her bolt.

Now that the woman's husband, who didn't figure prominently in Paris, has made his domestic revelations, Paris is recalling the first occasion on which the "Countess of Monte Cristo Anglaise" made a public appearance in that gay city. A supper-dance was in full swing at Claridge's. Suddenly a dead silence ensued. Then was heard a composite gasp. Then was seen entering the banquet and dance hall a decidedly dumpy little woman of 50 or more years, wearing large shell-rimmed spectacles and arrayed more magnificently than was Solomon in all his glory.

Diamonds blazed and glittered from her every ample curve. Diamonds shone from her slippers, from her hosiery, from her hair, from her throat, her bosom, her wrists, her fingers. Diamonds, diamonds, diamonds! And the flaming crown of them in her hair was held in place by a huge yellow feather. Her gown was of the brightest yellow. Her stockings, also yellow, were banded with black.

Into cheers broke the awed beholders. Mrs. Smith-Wilkinson bowed graciously. It was the Queen, the Empress accepting homage of the hoi polloi. She fairly bubbled. She was radiant, all gold and yellow and gleamy.

Then the astonished gathering beheld in her train a satellite. He was a male satellite, of course. He was somewhat stooped, a youngish fellow, rather thin of face, in full dress and looking new to that sartorial part. He stumbled along in the wake of the Empress. They sat down at a table. The chef approached and kissed the hand of the queenly person. Then he took her order and that of the satellite, and for once Edward Henry got really a square meal.

The ceremony was repeated daily for the weeks of the Claridge sojourn. Edward Henry always brought up the rear, looking and doubtless feeling oddly out of place; but he always ordered a whopping huge dinner done to de luxe taste by the Gallic chef. Those were great days for the stomach of Edward Henry, though possibly he found it difficult to make his two dress shirts last out the season.

The ensuing few weeks at the Ritz in London were similarly magnificent; and then, as Edward Henry has set forth in his naive narrative already quoted, back to the bungalow and the bread and gravy!

The best-dressed woman in the world had faded out of public interest for some months past, until the other day when Edward Henry, who, by the way, is her third husband, denied indignantly that his wife had left him, declaring to the contrary that he had left her. Yes, even though she offered him a "raise" of 4 shillings a week to remain.

In a recent interview Mrs. Smith-Wilkinson tells of her three marriages. Her first husband was named Dunk. He established the first "bone-dry" hotel and discovered that a great many people liked a hostelry without a bar. Others were established and Dunk grew rich. Then he died. Mrs. Dunk kept the hotels and invested the profits in munitions stocks. Her fortune grew and grew. She lived in obscurity at Nottingham.

Her second husband was one Harry Sutherns, 24, who died four years after the marriage. "He was handsome, loving and kind," said his widow, "and he died in 1914. The story of my marriage to Sonny—Mr. Smith-Wilkinson, who undoubtedly was sent by heaven to be a prop and comfort to me in my declining years (though I'm only 46 now, you know)—is a bit of a romance in itself.

"Fifteen years ago I attended a charity ball in Nottingham. A beautiful little boy pointed a finger at me and asked: 'Who is that sweet-faced lady?' I was the sweet-faced lady. Edward Henry was the boy. He came over and kissed me. I married him 14 years later, when he was 25."

Snapshot of lion cubs hiking through the grass. They were captured alive.

A TAXICAB driver who turned lion hunter has come back to America with remarkable specimens and films after being in the wilds of Africa more than two years, during which time he used a flivver in hunting down big game. H. A. Snow was the public liveryman and boss jitney driver of Newark, Cal. His favorite hobby was natural history and when he could find spare time he was fond of going into the Sierras with other venturesome spirits on hunting trips.

Public-spirited citizens decided that Oakland, San Francisco's young sister, ought to have a museum of natural history. They asked the taxi man to begin collecting for them, and he became a professional Wild West hunter of the Sierras, Cascades and Rockies in good earnest. His flivver brought the members of his small party to the very edge of the inaccessible country; then they traveled afoot or on burro back. Snow is a tireless tracker and unerring shot, as fearless in mixups with wild creatures as when piloting his black craft through traffic mazes. He brought back to the Oakland museum much peltry and also complete specimens of grizzly and brown bear, pumas, wildcats, wolves, elk, mountain sheep, in fact, practically all surviving types of big game in the West. His son, Sidney Snow, developed skill in photographing the exploits.

Success of these journeys led to the formation of the African Expedition Corporation, thereby giving reality to the indefatigable hunter's dream of conquering the African jungle with American autos, firearms, taxidermy and movie cameras. The same group of men acting for the Oakland museum got behind him and financed the trip. In the liberal Western way, it was carte blanche to go around the world, penetrate the Dark Continent and stay on the job till he got what they wanted!

Like the previous home expeditions, Snow's was mostly a small family party, with only two or three outside assistants. Arrived in South Africa, he had to learn by experience. Oxen on the first trip northward were stung to death by the tsetse fly. There were untold sufferings and privations in the desert. Snow then retraced his steps. He decided to break through by way of East Africa, and, abandoning the orthodox method of caravans, used flivvers instead! He secured the co-operation of the Portuguese and British Governments and of native chieftains in carrying supplies of "gas" and oil to advanced stations ahead.

Before Snow, all hunting in equatorial Africa had been done afoot. Horses cannot live in this region on account of the tsetse. But why not send the "old family bus" against the junglefolk? argued the Oakland expert. No reason at all! Death flies can't bite autos, and as to what the big game would do to the peripatetic "tin cans," well, that remained to be seen.

In open country the auto experiment proved a big success. Pursuit was a pleasure jaunt as well as a hunt. It is true there were some narrow escapes. Once when alone in his speeding auto the nervy driver was startled out of his coolness by a lioness making a tremendous leap from the bush and landing on the back seat! A little less speed, and she would have landed on his neck.

As out of the tail of his eye he viewed his antagonist momentarily tangled [illegible] and one hand sought and cocked a revolver, his oth[illegible] failed—for the first time in his taxi care[illegible] the pilot wheel sufficiently. Bang! Crash!

The Tin Lizzie spilled itself with a tre[illegible] ter against a big tree, alike throwing ou[illegible] his strange "fare"—Snow unhurt, the lio[illegible] stunned. "What did I do," says Snow, in re[illegible] the incident. "I could hardly keep from la[illegible] the comicality of the adventure, but I [illegible] bring down my big revolver and plug her—[illegible] without making another move!"

One of the most thrilling feats was round[illegible] photographing a herd of "bull" elephants in a [illegible] jungle overgrowing the bowl of an extinct [illegible] crater. The African elephant is a good deal [illegible] than his East Indian cousin, is undomestica[illegible] still remotely herds in "stag" parties of 20 to [illegible] dividuals, constituting the most terrify[illegible] most devastating and most destructive ph[illegible] non of wild nature. In their stampede [illegible] volcanic crater elephants cut a swath [illegible] the jungle like that of a destroying cy[illegible] everything, trees and all, bent double [illegible] prostrate or uprooted. Luckily, Snow [illegible] his staff were outside the immedia[illegible] but here's the story of their [illegible] with one of the herd leaders [illegible] followers:

dy can describe a kill in a motion picture title, and then flash the victim. Elephant hunters have brought out of Africa plenty of film of that kind. But the double shooting—movie camera step by step with the gun hunter—has seemed impossible in the case of the very largest game until the pair of Californians—animated by the same spirit that animated the long line of American pioneers from Daniel Boone down—achieved it.

Lastly, the complete beauty and thrill were secured by new technique. Again iron hearts, iron nerves! After some of the experiences just recounted, 'twould seem as if a good night's sleep within the welcome protective campfire were indispensable. Not so the Snows.

No, the quick-fading beauty of careful photography had to be seized and captured. In the coolest hours twixt midnight and dawn, the negative of each preceding day's hunt was developed and fixed.

For this purpose, an auto caravan truck, containing developing rooms, rainwater, chemicals, dryer and all, accompanied the expedition. The movie laboratory was stationed in each camp, and the work was done on the spot. By thus working fresh negative in the night time—day development at the 125 degrees temperature would just have melted the celluloid—and by guarding the results preciously, more than 100,000 feet of excellent film were secured, of which a selection of one-tenth—the high points and the thrills—was made for exhibition.

There were many others beside film labors. More than 50 species of African fauna were collected and the peltry preserved for the museum. An idea of the number of specimens may be had from the fact that an adult male and female, a baby of each sex, and a half-grown animal of each species, were collected. There were visits to the diamond fields of Kimberley, exploration of vast natural rookeries, patient filming of jungle intimacy at water courses and of simian life in the forest; even the depicting of the famous humpback whales of the South Atlantic and the teeming millions of jackass penguins that inhabit the littoral.

The Wild West's conquest of Wild Africa was thus a notable achievement, and the more extraordinarily so that, instead of being a great organization backed by big movie concerns, it was the individual work of two pioneering hunters—one with the gun, the other with the camera.

A PREHISTORIC WOMAN WHO HAD A PRETTY FOOT.

BONES of a prehistoric woman, believed to have been a tree-climber, have been found in the bed of the River Cam, England, and are being submitted to expert opinion in London.

The bones were brought to the surface by a dredger within a quarter of a mile of the famous Fenland Inn, "The Five Miles From Anywhere; No Hurry!"

"The whole district is one vast forest of buried oaks, which were in existence many thousands of years ago, before the Fens were formed, and it is hoped to recover the complete skeleton.

"The find is a most interesting one," said a fellow of the Royal Society to a representative of the London Daily Express.

"The leg bones are undoubtedly those of a woman, but they are of extraordinary conformation. Whoever she was, she had a pretty foot."

"If alive today, she would be a short, deep-chested creature, covered with hair, and with long, apelike arms and prehensile toes.

"Her home would be a rudely built platform of sticks, with a family likeness to a glorified crow's nest. From this, excursions would be made among the tree tops, she and her mate swinging themselves, monkey-fashion, from bought to bough.

"When on the ground, her gait would be that of a monkey, with the arms swinging to the knees."

GREATEST EXPLOITS OF CELEBRATE ETECTIVES

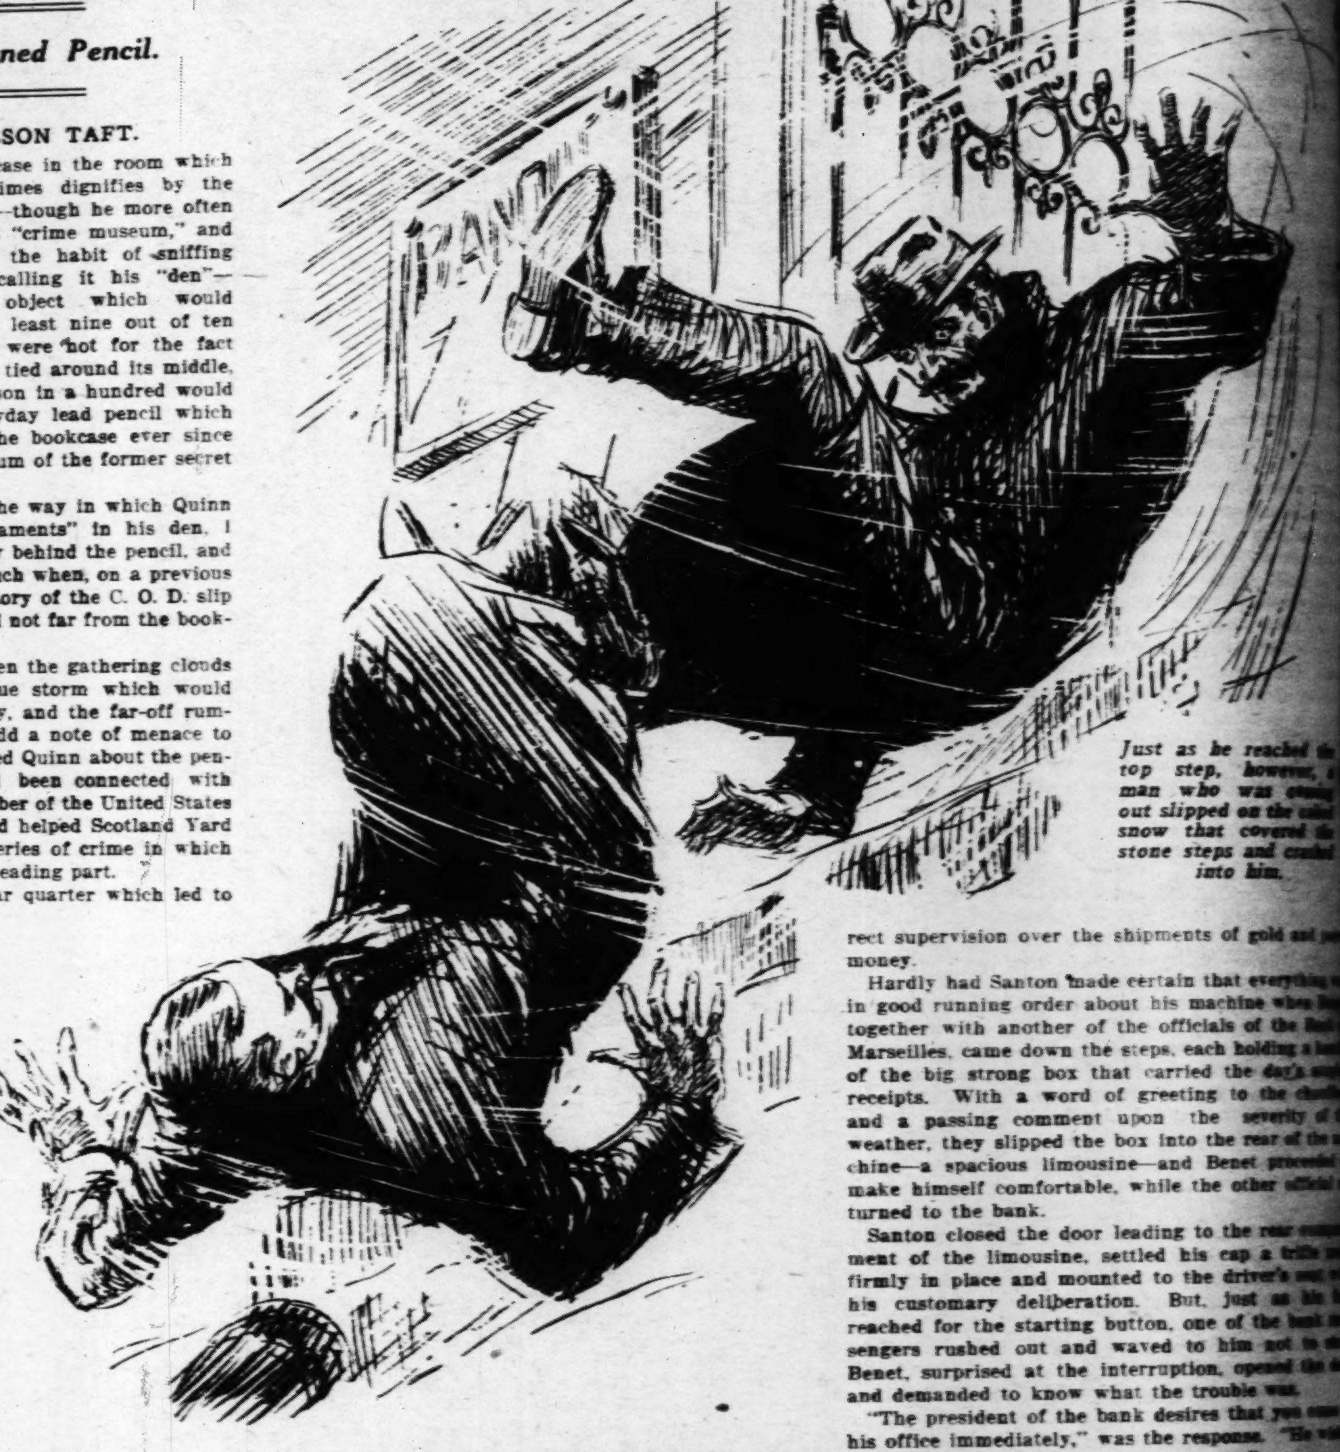
VIII—The Ribboned Pencil.

By WILLIAM NELSON TAFT.

ON TOP of the bookcase in the room which Bill Quinn sometimes dignifies by the name of "library"—though he more often refers to it as his "crime museum," and Mrs. Quinn is in the habit of sniffing disdainfully and calling it his "den"—there reposes an object which would probably escape the eye of at least nine out of ten casual visitors. In fact, if it were not for the fact that a tiny bit of red ribbon is tied around its middle, it is probable that not one person in a hundred would ever notice the ordinary, everyday lead pencil which has held its place on top of the bookcase ever since I first entered the private sanctum of the former secret service man.

But, as I was familiar with the way in which Quinn had selected the various "ornaments" in his den, I knew that there must be a story behind the pencil, and Quinn himself had hinted as much when, on a previous evening, he had related the history of the C. O. D. slip which was framed upon the wall not far from the bookcase.

One sultry summer night, when the gathering clouds gave promise of a long overdue storm which would sweep away the heat of the day, and the far-off rumble of the thunder seemed to add a note of menace to the approaching coolness, I asked Quinn about the pencil, inquiring whether it had been connected with one of the exploits of some member of the United States Secret Service or whether it had helped Scotland Yard to solve one of the many mysteries of crime in which that organization had played a leading part.



Just as he reached top step, however, man who was coming out slipped on the snow that covered the stone steps and crashed into him.

"Was it like the million-dollar quarter which led to the discovery of the gigantic smuggling scheme you told me about some time ago, or did it figure in a mysterious murder, like the statuette of Isis?" I asked.

"A little of both," Quinn replied, as his eyes settled reflectively upon the tiny bit of red ribbon. It was here, evidently, rather than in the pencil itself, that the clew reposed. "There was a robbery connected with it, it is true, but the biggest portion of the mystery had to do with one of the most amazing murders ever solved by the Paris police. Did you, by any chance, ever hear of the Santon case—or possibly the papers may have featured it under the title of the Marseilles Bank robbery?"

I shook my head. Neither of the titles Quinn had used stirred any answering chord in my memory.

"Well, maybe they didn't pay much attention to it on this side," declared the retired detective. "As it happens though, I was on the continent at the time in connection with an underground bit of diplomatic work and the details of the case are just as clear as though they happened yesterday. That's how I managed to get hold of the pencil. One of my friends at the Bureau de la Surete secured it for me after the trial was over and I can assure you that it is one of the most interesting pieces in my collection."

"Why assure me," I asked, "when you can just as easily spin the story that lies behind the pencil—or is it the ribbon?"

"It was both of them," Quinn answered, "but, in order to get the events in their proper sequence, it would be better to cut back, as they say in the movies, to noon of a certain day in midwinter when the case first presented itself. Or, possibly, we might start even farther back than that, for Jules Santon had been a trusted employe of the Bank of Marseilles for a number of years, and every day, without fail, he had driven the car of which he was the chauffeur up to the side entrance to take the iron-bound box containing the surplus supply of gold and notes to the express station."

* * * * * * * *

This Santon appears to have been a typical bank employe—honest as the day was long and without a thought during his working hours of anything save the institution which he served. Like so many other men of his class, his appearance was unobtrusive almost to the point of insignificance and the officials of the bank would as soon have suspected the president of criminal inclinations as they would Jules. All of which only served to make the events which took place on this day in midwinter the more startling.

Precisely at the accustomed hour, Santon drove the bank's car up to the rear entrance, where it would be safe from prying eyes, locked the machine with his usual care and stepped out upon the sidewalk in the face of a stinging storm of snow and sleet which was sweeping over the city. Shivering, he turned up the collar of his great coat and pulled his cap well down over his head to give himself as much protection as possible from the cold blast that swept around the corner. Had anyone been watching they might have been edified by the care which Jules took of the bank's car, in spite of the weather. He examined each of the tires in turn, made certain that his batteries had sufficient water and even tested his emergency brake before going up the steps that led to the bank. It was almost as if he had desired to indicate his presence to someone within.

But would Jules Santon, a low-salaried chauffeur, have any ulterior motive in connection with his usual work of taking large sums of money to the express office? Had he wished to do so, he could have stolen hundreds of thousands of francs upon many previous occasions and there had never been the slightest reason to suspect him.

The car Santon drove was used exclusively by Monsieur Benet, one of the bank officials, who had direct supervision over the shipments of gold and money.

Hardly had Santon made certain that everything in good running order about his machine when together with another of the officials of the Marseilles, came down the steps, each holding a of the big strong box that carried the day's receipts. With a word of greeting to the and a passing comment upon the severity of weather, they slipped the box into the rear of the chine—a spacious limousine—and Benet proceeded make himself comfortable, while the other official turned to the bank.

Santon closed the door leading to the rear ment of the limousine, settled his cap a trifle firmly in place and mounted to the driver's seat his customary deliberation. But, just as his reached for the starting button, one of the bank sengers rushed out and waved to him not to Benet, surprised at the interruption, opened the and demanded to know what the trouble was.

"The president of the bank desires that you his office immediately," was the response. "He to see you upon a matter of importance."

Benet stepped out of the limousine and told to take his place inside the car and guard the box until he returned, then mounted the steps a time. Just as he reached the top step, however man who was coming out slipped on the that covered the stone steps and crashed into him, of them rolling down to the pavement, although tunately, neither was injured.

"A thousand pardons, monsieur," exclaimed stranger, scrambling to his feet and brushing coat as he spoke. "I was in such haste that I look where I was going and I apologize most for an accident which I should have avoided."

"Not at all," was the response from the bank "I was in a hurry myself and, as neither of to have been injured, I don't think any harm sulted. Possibly it will teach me to walk up covered steps with a little more deliberation future." And with a nod to the man who had with him, Benet continued on his way into the

Hardly had he reached the vestibule when the messenger who had summoned him stopped him more with the announcement that it would not be essary for him to come to the president's office time as the matter on which he had been called been disposed of. Offering an ejaculation under breath, Benet retraced his steps to the waiting chine and, with an admonition to Santon to hurry, more settled himself into the soft, upholstered lons of the limousine. The cash box was, he instinctively, in precisely the same place he had it and Benet thought no more of the matter reached the express office, where, as was the box was opened for the currency to be checked. There, to the utter amazement of everyone was found that instead of being filled with gold and bundles of bank notes of large the box contained nothing but four bags of so packed that they would give the same of weight as the money, but would not the box was moved!

Benet stood, his eyes staring, his face

> THE stories in this series deal with the exploits of 12 world-famous detectives, presented in narrative form, but with all the details of their solutions of baffling crimes precisely as they occurred. They are built around the experiences of such men as William J. Burns, Chief of the United States Secret Service; Supt. John Shore and Inspector Kendall of Scotland Yard; Capt. Grant Williams, chief of the Bureau of Missing Persons of the New York police; George S. Dougherty, Deputy Commissioner of Police in New York; Inspector Byrnes and Dr. Balthazard, the famous European criminologist. Through the entire series runs the vein of serial interest supplied by the reminiscences of Bill Quinn, lately of the United States Secret Service, who tells these stories in his den.

bank was informed immediately of the loss and disappearance and as soon as news of the reached police headquarters Dr. Balthazard, one most famous criminologists of Europe, who to be in Marseilles at the time, was put in of the case, with complete supervision over the detectives. great expert on crime smiled a trifle grimly. I hope you find him in that way," he I am inclined to doubt it. From what I told of the case, I believe that the solution of lies a good deal farther back than the very disappearance of this chauffeur, who has an record and could have made away with of money before this if he had wished to do so. No my friend, we are dealing—not with the ordinary employe of the bank—but with men of brains, men who realize that the most important step with any crime is that which is taken before the crime is committed, not at the actual moment of its completion."

Balthazard circled the building and as he chanced to glance upward to the second floor, his eye caught something which made him pause for an instant.

"You mean"——

"I mean that I think this Santon was nothing more than an innocent accomplice, even if he were as much as that. Somewhere about the car we ought to find a clew that will tell the whole story. Hello—what's this?"

As he spoke, Dr. Balthazard turned to the rear of the limousine, where a large motor trunk was carried, supported by two heavy steel bars. The trunk was evidently stoutly made and had been waterproofed to withstand the rain, but, from one of the lower edges there was beginning to trickle a tiny stream of thick red liquid which spattered down upon the snow beneath and stained it the unmistakable color of blood.

Securing a wrench from the tool box, one of the gendarmes forced the lock which held the top of the trunk in place and, throwing back the cover, displayed the body of a man which had been jammed into the inclosure. The face was staring upward. But the features were unmistakably those of Jules Santon, the missing chauffeur.

At Dr. Balthazard's order, the body was carried into the express office and there the criminologist examined it thoroughly, finding that death had been due to a wound in the back, administered by a sharp weapon similar to a stiletto.

"There's no doubt that this man is Santon?" Dr. Balthazard asked Benet.

"Not the slightest in the world," replied the bank official. "I've seen him every day for the past 15 years or more and there cannot be the slightest doubt as to the identity of the body."

"And you are sure it was the same man who drove you here from the bank?"

"Of course," was the answer. "The car arrived at the same time and Santon waited for me on the sidewalk, as he always does."

"How do you know it was Santon?"

"Well, when it comes down to that, I couldn't be certain of it," Benet admitted, "but I would swear that the man was of Santon's height and general build although, of course, on such a day as this his coat collar was turned up and his cap was pulled down around his eyes."

Dr. Balthazard nodded reflectively.

"Just as I thought," he said. "They stage-managed the affair exceptionally well. This man," he explained to the astonished official of the bank, "has been dead for at least four hours. It is, therefore, manifestly impossible for him to have driven you here about an hour ago. What happened was that he was killed, probably just after he had taken the car from the garage, and his body was stuffed into the trunk in order that its premature discovery might not lead to the failure of the entire plan—which, of course, was founded upon robbery rather than murder."

"But how could anyone have opened the box and substituted the pebbles for the gold and bank notes?"

"That," Dr. Balthazard replied, with a grim tightening of the muscles around his eyes, "is what we will have to discover, and I don't mind admitting that I don't expect it to be as simple a matter as the location of Santon's body. If it had not been for the fact that the trunk was not completely waterproof we might easily have overlooked the most obvious of hiding places—just because it was so obvious. It stands to reason, however, that we still have to search for a man answering Santon's general description, so far as build and carriage are concerned. It was this man who drove you here today, and, if I am not mistaken, he was the brains of the entire outfit, for it was he who handled the most delicate part of the operation, where the slightest slip would mean instant discovery.

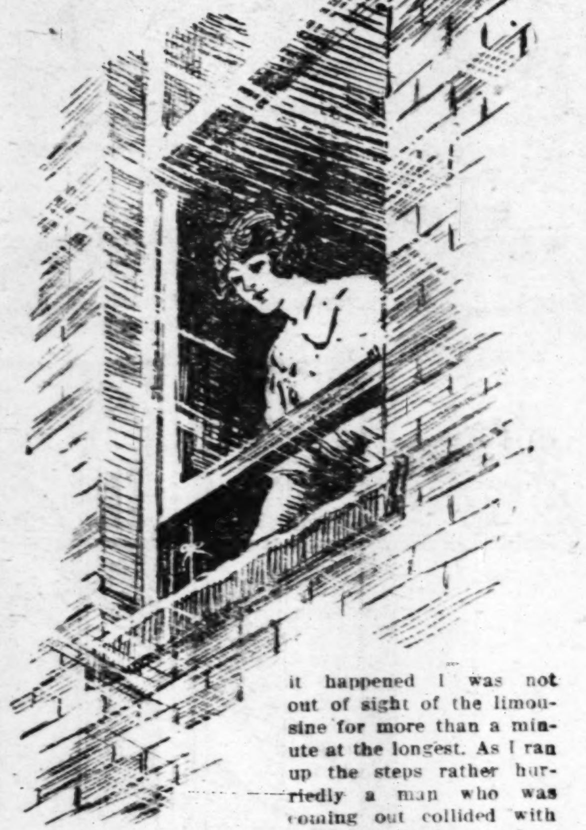
"Now," the criminal expert continued, switching the subject abruptly, "I want you to tell me everything that occurred from the time you locked the box inside the cashier's cage at the bank up to the time that you opened it here. Don't overlook any details, no matter how trifling they may appear, for it is the little things that loom large in a case of this kind."

Rapidly Benet sketched what had taken place, telling how he had personally snapped in place the padlocks after he had put the money in the chest, how he and another of the bank officials had carried the box to the limousine and how the messenger had summoned him just as the car was about to move.

Here Dr. Balthazard interrupted him with the inquiry: "Was the man who called you someone whom you knew?"

"No, as I recall it, his face was not familiar to me. But that's not to be wondered at, for we have recently added a number of new employes, especially in the messenger department, which is used as a proving ground for honesty. These men do not ordinarily come into contact with money and they are therefore not open to the temptations which beset other members of the staff."

"Go on," the criminologist directed. "What happened after you left the car and went to the president's office? How long were you away from the machine and who guarded the money in the meantime?"



"I told Santon to watch it," was the answer, "but as it happened I was not out of sight of the limousine for more than a minute at the longest. As I ran up the steps rather hurriedly a man who was coming out collided with me and we both slipped on the snow. When I had finally been brushed off by the stranger, who was profuse in his apologies, I went up the bank steps again—only to be met by a messenger who told me that it wouldn't be necessary for me to go to the president's office, after all."

"Was this messenger the same one who had summoned you a few moments before?"

"I'm not certain, but believe he was. His face made little impression upon me as I was somewhat shaken up by my fall and I was naturally in a hurry to have the money safely delivered. There was a trifle more than half a million francs in the box, you know, and that is considerably in excess of our usual daily shipment."

"Yes, I know that," Dr. Balthazard declared, "and I think a number of other persons must have known it also. The details of the whole affair were worked out too cleverly to have enabled the extra-sized shipment to have been merely a coincidence. How long would you say that you were away from the car altogether?"

"Not more than five minutes at the outside—and I probably wasn't out of sight of the machine more than half a minute."

"That didn't matter," the criminologist growled. "As long as you were outside of the machine and the man who was impersonating Santon was inside, with no one to watch him, all he needed was three minutes at the longest to open the box, take out the gold and notes and substitute the bags filled with pebbles which he had secreted in advance, probably under the cushions of the limousine.

"Now, the principal point that puzzles me about the affair is how the gang learned of the extra large shipment of specie to be made today. That, together with the incident of the uniformed messenger points to the fact that they must have had accomplices inside the bank—though it is perfectly possible for the messenger to have been someone who slipped in just for the vital five minutes, knowing that there were a number of strange faces around the corridors and taking a chance that he would not be detected. But that wouldn't explain the inside information which must have been given the criminals. We will have to look for that within the walls of your own institution."

Without another word Dr. Balthazard slipped into his overcoat and jamming his broad-brimmed gray hat securely on his head, buffeted the wind on his way back to the Bank of Marseilles taking careful note of everything that he saw on the way. Nothing out of the ordinary caught his eye until he came to the bank itself. It was almost the closing hour when he arrived, and even the most careful examination of the front of the big stone building failed to reveal anything that appeared to be in the least suspicious.

The Bank of Marseilles stands on a corner, flanked on the two sides farthest away from the street by narrow alleyways, in one of which the psuedo Santon had parked his car. Dr. Balthazard circled the building twice before, as he chanced to glance upward to the second floor, his eye caught something which made him pause for an instant. Immediately he continued upon his apparently aimless stroll and finally entered the front door of the bank, where he requested that his card, which he carefully slipped into an envelope, be taken at once to the president. A few minutes later he was ushered into the presence of this official, an

Tubes under the Hudson River from New York to New Jersey will have two roadways and will be nearly two miles long—Elimination of gases from automobile exhausts presents new ventilation problems — Tubes will be lined with 115,000 tons of cast-iron and 130,000 cubic yards of concrete — Precautions to safeguard men working under constant air pressure :: ::

THE greatest engineering work of its kind, now under way, is the construction of the double tube vehicular tunnel which will connect the New York and New Jersey banks of the Hudson River. It is designed mainly for automobile and motor truck traffic. The length of the tunnel from portal to portal will be 9250 feet, or nearly one and three-quarter miles. The tunnel as planned and the engineering problems involved are thus described by J. Bernard Walker in the

The tube begins with a great bulkhead containing a man lock and a material lock.

The purpose of the man lock is to enable men to pass safely from ordinary air to air under pressure and vice versa. A man entering the tube passes into the man lock, which now has ordinary atmosphere. He waits in the lock while air is pumped into it until the pressure equals that in the tunnel; that is, fifty pounds to the square inch. Ten minutes is about the time required for this. The man then goes through an opened door into the tunnel. An opposite process takes place when men leave the tube. The passing from pressured into ordinary air is the dangerous thing. The men wait for half an hour while the pressure in the lock is gradually lowered.

This is done building at a venient tance—say about every 800 feet back from the tunnel heading—a series of bulkheads of steel and concrete, 12 feet thick and keeping the chamber under air pressure. n order to pass the men and the materials in d out of the working chamber, it is necessary to de airlocks in which the air is raised from the heric pressure to that of the working chamber, and vice versa. At the front end of the chamber is the shield, which is a great steel cylinder 18 feet long and 31 feet in diameter. It consists of an outer and inner ring, braced together by longitudinal and transverse diaphragms, and further stiffened and ngthened by two vertical and two transverse diaphragms, which extend for its full length and divide nine separate rectangular pockets. The shield slightly larger diameter than the finished cast-iron , and its after portion overlaps the tunnel. shield, which, with its hydraulic machinery, about 400 tons, is shoved forward about 30 at a time, by means of 30 hydraulic jacks, which t up circumferentially in the outer ring structure shield. These jacks have an ultimate, combined ng power of at least 6000 tons, and by varying pressure in the jack the shield may be guided so maintain the proper line and grade. The com- cast-iron tunnel forms an absolutely solid abutment for the thrust of the hydraulic jacks. After a ard movement of the shield the next cast-iron of the tunnel is erected by means of a swinging aulic erecting arm, which picks up the segments the cars on which they are brought forward, and them successively into place, where they are up to the existing structure.

jecting from the upper part of the forward end shield is a steel hood, forming a protective roof, , under which the laborers with pick and excavate the material and shovel it into a hopper which delivers to a traveling belt, from which it is transferred to muck cars and taken out of the tunnel. Another opening is shown at the lower face of the shield, through which also material may be excavated into the tunnel.

For continuous and rapid operation, which is necessary in a work of this magnitude, there is a special three-deck traveling, working platform. This is a massive structure of steel and timber, which extends the full width of the tunnel, and runs by means of rollers upon tracks, carried on stout brackets at the sides of the tunnel. On the floor of the tunnel are three tracks for the operation of the cars which bring material into and out of the working chamber. The muck cars come in on the center track and are loaded at the inner end of the belt conveyor. Over the center track is an elevator on which the cars loaded with cement are lifted to the top platform. Here the cement is dumped through a hopper into a mixing machine, which is fed with the right amount of water to produce the grout with which the outside of the tunnel is grouted up. The grout is fed by hose to holes drilled for the purpose through the shell of the casing, where it fills up any voids between the casing and the surrounding material. The cast-iron segments are brought in on small flat cars, and picked up and put in place by the hydraulic erecting arm to which reference has already been made.

To prevent accidents, due to blowouts caused by the pressure of the air within the working chamber overcoming the inward pressure of the silt, it will be necessary to dump in the river bed for the whole length of the tubes, a great bed of clay and riprap, which will be about 10 feet in depth and will approximate about 200,000 cubic yards of material.

As an engineering work, the building of this tunnel has attracted wide attention; not alone because it exceeds all other tunnels of the kind in its magnitude, but because of the unprecedented problem presented of maintaining a pure and wholesome atmosphere in a tunnel nearly two miles in length, into which would be discharged continuously great volumes of poisonous gases from the large number of motor-driven vehicles which will use the tunnel.

The inaguration of this work was preceded by an unusually thorough examination of the special problems, both of construction and subsequent operation, which were presented. If the tunnel was to secure and maintain the confidence of the public, it was necessary to place the question of its safety for those who should use it, beyond any question of doubt; for, although elsewhere in the world vehicular tunnels have been built and used by motor-driven vehicles, as in the case of the Blackwell and Rotherithe tunnels under the Thames River, London, and the tunnel beneath the River Elbe at Hamburg, Germany, none of those tunnels handled an amount of traffic comparable to that which would seek the Hudson River tunnel. The carbon-monoxide in the gas-engine exhaust is a gas that becomes fatal if it exceeds a certain percentage of the atmosphere into which it is discharged; and it was realized by the engineers that the problem of providing means for diluting and removing these gases must be solved immediately and beyond any question of doubt—that this question of purity of the tunnel air was, in fact, the outstanding problem in the whole scheme.

We have described in past issues of the Scientific American the very thorough investigation which was carried out by the United States Government under contract with the commission at the suggestion of Mr. C. M. Holland, the chief engineer of the New York State Bridge and Tunnel Commission and the New Jersey Interstate Bridge and Tunnel Commission.

There were two main problems; first, to determine the amount and composition of the exhaust gases that would be discharged into the tunnel, and the second, to determine the proper dilution to render these gases harmless. The investigations to determine the amount and composition of the gases were carried out at the Bureau of Mines Experiment Station at Pittsburg, under the direct supervision of Mr. A. C. Feldner, supervising chemist of that station; and the determination of the proper dilution to render the exhaust gases harmless was made at Yale University under the direction of Dr. Yandell Henderson, consulting physiologist. It was upon the results of these experiments that the plan and scope of the ventilating plant of the tunnel was determined.

It was decided to ventilate the tunnel by four vertical shafts, each provided with powerful blowers for driving fresh air into the tunnels, and exhaust fans for withdrawing the mixed air and gases. These shafts are located one on the land near each end of the tunnel, and the other two at the pierhead lines on each side of the river, the distance between the latter being 3375 feet. It was decided that there should be no longitudinal movement of the air, since this would have involved a velocity of nearly 75 miles per hour, with a serious increase in fire hazard, before the products of combustion were withdrawn. Instead of this, a transverse system has been provided, by which the gases will be encountered at once by the fresh inflowing air, and withdrawn locally and with the least possible delay. This has been achieved by dividing the interior of the tunnel by two horizontal planes, one for the roadway and the other for the roof, thereby forming three separate chambers, or ducts.

The central and largest duct forms the roadway chamber and is reserved for the traffic. This provides a head room of 13 1-2 feet and a clear width of 20 feet, which is sufficient for two lines of vehicles. The lowest opening of the three is the fresh-air duct, which is connected with the air blowers in the vertical ventilating shafts. At frequent intervals on each side of the roadway, there are openings from this duct into expansion chambers located in the curb, and through these a continuous stream of pure air is discharged. From these chambers it issues through a slot to mingle with and dilute the gases the instant they leave the exhaust. The upper duct is connected with the powerful exhaust fans in the ventilating shafts, and into this duct there open frequent slots in the roadway chamber roof, through which the vitiated air is drawn off from the tunnel. The total amount of fresh air to be supplied to the tunnel permanently is 3,600,000 cubic feet per minute, and this will serve to limit the carbon-monoxide to four parts in 10,000 parts of air, a dilution which renders the air completely innocuous. The enormous quantity of air which will be poured into the tunnel is rendered necessary by the fact that the estimated hourly capacity in both directions is 3800 vehicles, which represents a daily capacity of 46,000 vehicles and an estimated yearly capacity of 15,000,000.

The actual work of boring and constructing the tunnel will cost approximately $19,000,000, and to this there will be several millions of additional costs for roadways and terminals.

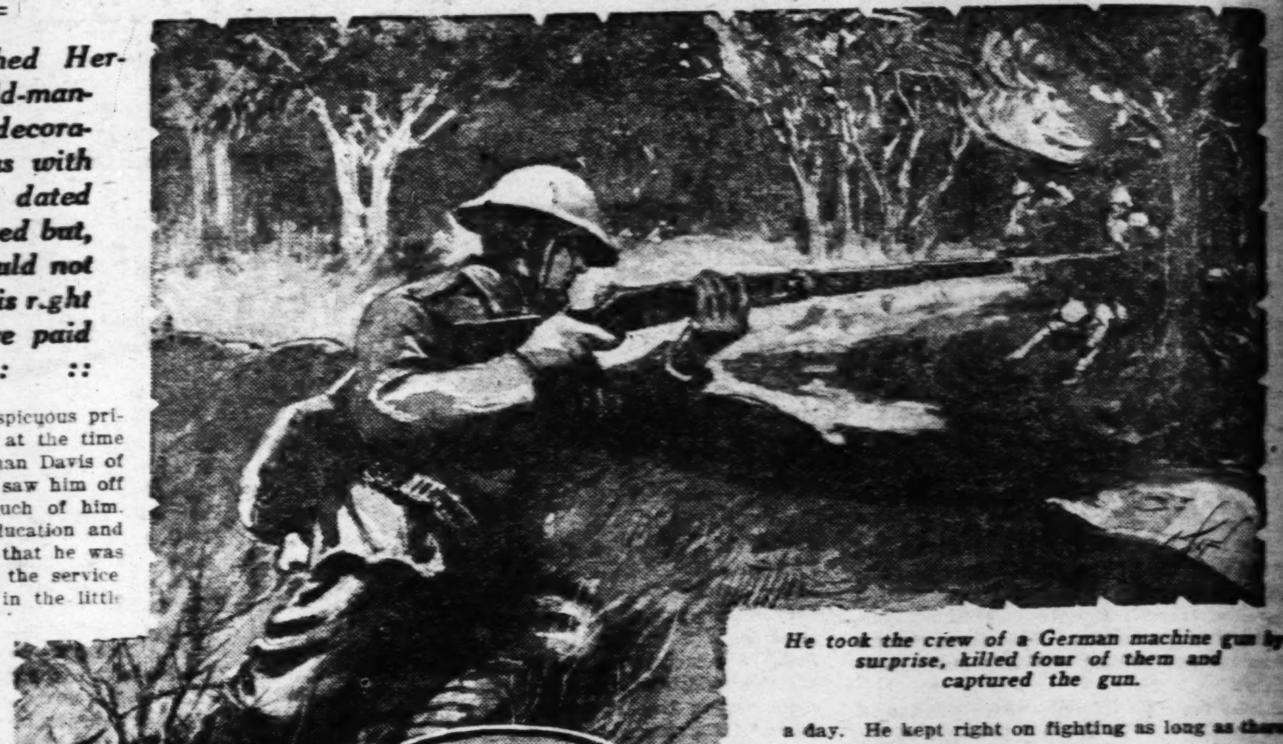
The tunnel, with all the facilities of a city traffic thoroughfare, will link closely the greatest steamship terminals in America, along the New York side of the Hudson, with the immense railroad concentration centers in Jersey City. It is expected to quicken greatly the movement of the nation's incoming and outgoing freight. It is not as yet possible to say just when this great tunnel will be put into operation. When the actual work of boring began last year it was under a contract stipulation that it should be completed in three and one-half years.

An additional six months at least would be needed for wiring, ventilation and other necessary equipment and the completion of approaches. The lowest estimate of the time required for this gigantic undertaking forecasts the opening of the tunnel to general traffic in 1926.

For many years it has been apparent that some such device as this tunnel was necessary to speed the movement of the immense interchange of traffic between the New York and the Jersey sides. Under present conditions the movement is necessarily slow because of the dependence on ferry boats and lighters in carrying this freight. Not only will the tunnel be a time saver on every load carried, but it will greatly increase the gross facilities. By making it possible for trucks to pick up the goods on one side of the river and take it to its destination on the other, the new system will eliminate much laborious, tedious and costly loading, reloading and transferring of freight on both sides of the river.

Arkansas' Greatest War Hero, A "Belated Casualty," Fought Death Unaided Because Pride Sealed His Lips

Tuberculosis finally vanquished Herman Davis, the small, mild-mannered soldier who won 11 decorations while serving overseas with 29th Division—The disease dated back to the time he was gassed but, even when penniless, he would not ask for the help which was his right—Then highest honors were paid to the dead :: :: :: ::



He took the crew of a German machine gun by surprise, killed four of them and captured the gun.

THERE wasn't a more inconspicuous private in the American army at the time of his enlistment than Herman Davis of Big Lake, Ark. People who saw him off to the war didn't expect much of him. He had hardly any book education and was small in size—so small that he was twice rejected before he finally got into the service

In the minds of those who knew him in the little Arkansas community where he grew up, he was "plain Herman Davis," a country boy with no claim whatsoever to distinction. The neighbors liked him well enough, for he was mild-mannered and gave no offense, but the liking appears to have been mixed with tolerance. He didn't "amount to much," and never would.

So it was thought.

Herman Davis went to France and came back with 11 medals for distinguished service. He proved to be the greatest war hero produced by his State and one of the greatest produced by the whole country. When Gen. Pershing was asked by a Liberty Loan committee, after the war, to make up a "roll of valor," with the names and deeds of 100 representative American heroes, he included the name of Davis and an account of the exploit that won him the Distinguished Service Cross.

Davis came through the war without a visible wound. The records show that in all his service he took no time off for hospital treatment.

If this story could have a proper story-book ending, it would show Davis back on an Arkansas farm, prospering. The actuality is different. Herman Davis died Jan. 5, in a Memphis (Tenn.) hospital. He died a pauper, leaving a wife and two children.

After his death a collection was taken up for them in a moving-picture theater at Blytheville and $40 was realized.

Davis suffered no wound that could be seen. He was gassed. The effects brought on tuberculosis, and from that he died, more than four years after the end of the war. He was, in truth, a "belated casualty."

Such, in brief, is the story of Herman Davis, who received 11 decorations for bravery in battle from the United States, France, Italy and other countries and died penniless. The outline can be filled in somewhat from the recollections of Senator Caraway, from whom Davis was renting a little farm when he enlisted.

Caraway recalls that Davis left school to help support a dependent mother before he had reached the fourth grade. His father was dead. He married. The call of country, when the war came, was superior to the claims of his family. He went overseas with Company I, 113th Infantry, Twenty-ninth Division.

"He must have won his medals by sheer heroism," said Caraway, "for he was so small and insignificant looking that probably he was the last man in the company that anybody would have noticed. He couldn't have got anything by 'pull.'"

The records tell what he did in the war.

"While acting as company runner near Molleville Farm, Oct. 10, 1918, Private Davis single-handed attacked a German machine-gun nest which was harassing the left flank of his company and preventing its advance. By a skillful and fearless approach to the position he took the crew by surprise, killed four of them and captured the gun.

HERMAN DAVIS.

"This notable act of courage and coolness enabled his company to continue its advance at a critical period of the fighting."

For the act thus officially described, Private Davis was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross. Among his other decorations were the French Medaille Militaire and the Croix de Guerre, with palm and gilt star. The star was added for the feat which culminated in the killing of the four German machine gunners.

Davis served with his company in the Center Sector, Haute-Alsace, from July 25 to Sept. 22, 1918, and in the Meuse-Argonne offensive from Oct. 8 to 30. He didn't think the gassing he received was of sufficient moment to warrant his leaving his company even for a day. He kept right on fighting as long as there was fighting to be done.

Once the war was over, Davis, like most of the American soldiers, was as anxious to get out of it as he had been to get in. Consequently, when he was discharged he did not report the fact that he had been gassed. He feared he would be sent to a hospital, when all that he wanted was to get home to his family.

Arrived home, he went back to the uneventful life he had led before the war. Senator Caraway got him a job as a guide at a hunting club near his home. This paid him $25 a month. He was again "plain Herman Davis." He rarely wore his medals.

Last July the effects of the gas began to tell heavily on his lungs. He made a hard fight. The same pluck that he had shown at the front sustained him. He seems to have had a fierce pride that forbade him to apply to the Government for the treatment to which he was so richly entitled. Had there been a visible wound on his body when he left the service, his case would have come to the attention of the Veterans' Bureau and aid would have been offered. So far as the records show, Davis never asked for help of any kind. The bureau apparently knew nothing of his case till friends presented it, shortly before his death.

It was not until December that Davis, with the devils spawned by gas tearing at his lungs, had to give in. Friends sent him to a hospital for former service men at Memphis. Here he died, after an operation without an anesthetic. In death, Herman Davis was accorded all the honors that it was possible for his friends to bestow. Senator Caraway eulogized him on the floor of the Senate. At Blytheville, his body lay in state. On his uniform were the medals that his modesty had kept hidden. The flag he died for was draped on the casket. Near by, the unwinding of a film at a picture house was stopped while the spectators bowed their heads in tribute to a hero in real life.

The body was taken to the little town of Manila, Ark., where he once lived, and buried there after a service at the Methodist Church. A letter from the Captain of his company, C. C. McMahon of New Jersey, was quoted. McMahon wrote: "Although one of the smallest members of our company, he was the bravest."

Senator Caraway has been assured by the Veterans' Bureau that the full compensation permitted under the law will be awarded the widow.

INSECT DAMAGE IN THE UNITED STATES INCREASES

WARFARE against the insect pests grows in intensity, and despite the efforts of scientists, the total damage increases as new kinds of these enemies multiply and spread throughout the country. This situation was revealed by the annual report of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. Although the direct insect attack on crops has not been stopped, great progress has been made in the control of the indirect attacks made by these pests in carrying infectious diseases from plant to plant.

"Much of the failure in controlling some of the physiological diseases of potatoes and other cultivated crops," the report says, "is now known to be due to failure to recognize the fact that plants might be infected and capable of transmitting the diseases without showing external symptoms. Researches have now thrown much light on a field in which scientific workers previously were almost helpless."

The direct attacks by the corn borer, the Japanese beetle, the cotton boll weevil and the pink bollworm have not been combated with such success, the report revealed. The corn borer holds the ground previously gained, although a benevolent parasite has been introduced from France which laboratory studies indicate may prove of immense value in destroying various species of borers.

The Japanese beetle continues to spread at the rate of five miles a year and larger jumps may be made any time. It is expected that it will spread throughout the United States despite control measures. Using the airplane to spread poisons is a method that gives promise in the fight against the boll weevil.

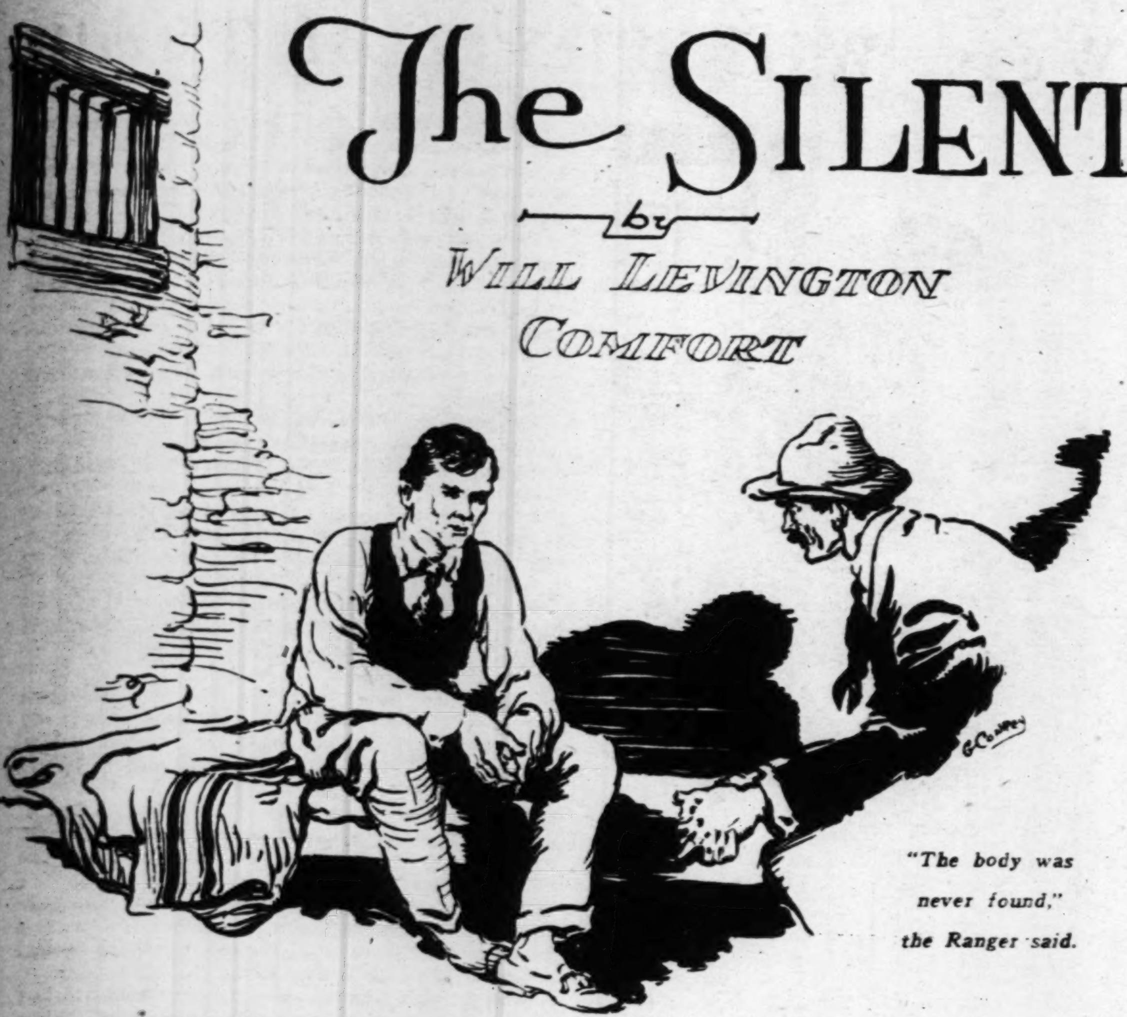
But the pink bollworm which has gained a foothold in Texas, Louisiana and New Mexico is regarded as an even more serious pest. In all probability it would have won the fight but for the vigilance of a Baltimore inspector of the department.

A passenger from Brazil landed with 50 packages of Brazilian cotton seed which he intended to take to the cotton section of Mississippi for planting. The Baltimore official, however, discovered these seed and found that living pink bollworms infested every package. If they had been let loose in Mississippi, officials believe that they would have quickly covered that portion of the cotton belt.

The SILENT SPRING

by

WILL LEVINGTON COMFORT



"The body was never found," the Ranger said.

A QUIET afternoon hour in Didsey Dreir's cafe in Bolima. Old Mul Akers was there and Tollier Dip. Didsey himself was present; also a tall stranger, who sat apart at a table in the shadows. This stranger didn't appear to have the remotest interest in the talk of the others, which was mainly about a former citizen of Bolima who had disappeared—a young man they called David, who had brought a lot of raw gold to town one morning, saying he had found a rich lode on the other side of the foothills. This young David had promised to let his fellow citizens of Bolima in on diggings adjacent to his claim. He had "sold" some very rich mineral for currency of the realm and left for San Diego to get a pack and work outfit, but he hadn't been heard of in several months.

Mul Akers now spoke: "Davey didn't look like he just come in from the mountains when he comes here with his first stack. I hears Mr. Rob Travis say in the assay office that Davey's stack don't look like no gold he's seen on this side of the border"——

"Gold is gold," said Didsey.

"She sure is," said old Mul. "An' [illegible]re scarce and retirin' by nature; but there was crus[illegible] already done on the stuff Davey brings in, not one-man hammers, but machine work. There's some big mines over in Mexico that transport their stuff half-cleaned like that from the mountains to the mills"——

"Our Davey!" said Tollier Dip. "You hints that he's been robbin' a Mexican pack train, an' I had my heart all set that he had found old McConachie's lost lode over in Haunted Valley."

"I'm sayin' as what Mr. Travis says," Mul answered, patiently. "Also Mr. Travis says: 'Dave Ilcomb was in a hurry when he was here, and kept pullin' up his shirt collar to cover a bullet scar in his throat.' That scar might have something to do with a man bein' peaked—like Davey looked.

"Then over at Bidyard's, where Mr. Travis boards, he happens to hear someone bring up the old subject of the Transcon train robbery, and how the man holdin' up the day coach was shot in the neck by a ranger from Little Top."

"But the train gang run off the bandits outside that night, and there wasn't a dollar taken from the express or mail cars," said Tollier Dip. "The man inside, workin' on the passengers of the day coach, didn't get away with no three jack loads of rotten ripe ore."

The tall stranger now came forward from the shadows and diffidently showed the badge of a forest ranger.

"Excuse me, gentlemen," he said, his words slightly muffled and impeded. "My name is Billings. I am stationed on Little Topnot and I'd like to sit in to this conversation."

"Which is accorded," said Dreir.

"What sort of a looking young man was this Davey you speak of?"

"He wasn't tall, exceptional," Didsey began.

"Nor short, either," said Tollier Dip.

"He was smooth-faced and innocent," Didsey resumed, "and could look up into your face winnin'like and amiable. He wasn't handsome"——

"He wan't bad-looking, either," said Tollier Dip.

"Could he shoot?" Ranger Billings inquired, suddenly.

"Dave Ilcomb could shoot," said Tollier Dip. "Didsey, you're not forgettin' as how he knocked the last shoe button off a rattler's tail in Lucas' backyard"——

"The young man I have reference to could shoot," said the Ranger, clearing his voice. "He wasn't tall and he wasn't short. As to his being amiable, I couldn't state, because he had a mask on at the time—I refer to the bandit on a Transcon day coach eastbound on the Ragged Wren grade," said the Ranger.

Chairs drew nearer.

"You was on that train?" asked Tollier Dip.

"I was on that train," said the Ranger. "I was in the back seat of that particular coach. The masked young man came forward filling his pouch and kidding the passengers along, as he took what they had. When he was a little less than half the way through the coach I lifted sudden from the seat and let drive one shot, which he ducked successful. Also, he fired back, making it advisable for me to loll behind the last seat."

"Then you kidded him from behind the seat you had clim' back of," said Tollier Did. "That is, accordin' to the papers"——

"Which is correct," said the Ranger. "Neither of us had drawn blood by this time. I was figuring to get him before he got to me, and the bandit was figuring the same. His figures worked out. He didn't wait for me to begin. This that buzzes a little when I talk," indicating his upper lip, "isn't a birthmark. It was from one of that bandit's shots. His other shot I took to myself about as close to the place where I wear the ranger's badge as a man can assimilate a .45 slug and prosper much afterward."

"But you got him after that—according to the papers," breathed Tollier Dip.

"Yes, I registered in his neck, after I had been sentenced to three months in the hospital."

There was another silence before the Ranger added:

"Of course, there isn't any comparison as to which of those bullets hurts the most now."

"It don't look so bad, Ranger. It was only at first I thought you had a hairlip," said Dreir.

Mul Akers eased the tension:

"I never could get it straight in my mind how the bandit got away that night, hard-hit as he was; and about the fellow who helped him"——

"The man who helped him was Roger Dryden, the bank robber of Pasadena, on his way to serve a 10 years' sentence at the pen in Barclay," said the Ranger. "He was sitting in the middle of the car, manacled to Deputy Sheriff Drinkwater, when the bandit comes along and releases him on general principles. This Dryden appears to be the sort who pays cash for a favor. I was on the floor by this time, but they tell me Roger Dryden fought his way out of the car for two. They ran onto a couple of horses outside, and haven't been heard of since. All who saw the hold-up man after my last shot say that he couldn't possibly survive that hole in the neck and live."

"If it was Dave Ilcomb who held up that train, he lived," said Mul Akers. "And, as I was sayin', Mr. Rob Travis sees the remains of that hole in the neck you speak of."

"What you goin' to do about it, Ranger?" Tollier Dip inquired.

"That train robber spoiled me," the Ranger answered, slowly. "I feel called to be interested in his case."

"I wouldn't like to be Dave Ilcomb, not with that fellow after me," mused Tollier Dip, after the Ranger had backed out of the cafe.

Three weeks later Didsey Dreir stared at the front page of yesterday's paper from Los Angeles, and what he saw there caused him to announce to those present:

"Gents, you'll sure have to excuse me, abrupt. I'm takin' the stage for Pasadena in exactly 12 minutes."

On the same day Ranger Billings sat at the door of his station as the sun went down and stared away off toward the sea. The legs of his chair dug into the disintegrated granite of Little Topnot's crest, over 8000 feet high, and commanded a hundred miles of surrounding scenery. Back and a little north, Big Top himself hunched up nearly 3000 feet higher.

Billings had always had a laugh at life, but the laugh was gone. His upper lip was a broken thatch. It didn't grin when the rest of his face did. Also, there was a girl in Iowa waiting to be sent for, but no girl could live with that sitting opposite at her table—not on a ranger's salary.

The Ranger opened yesterday's paper, which his assistant had just brought up from the postoffice. After one long look at the front page, he called:

"Put on what you've got handy, Jake. I'm riding down trail before dark to get a stage for Pasadena, where they need me tomorrow, whether they know it or not. They caught Roger Dryden in New York five days ago, and he arrives in Pasadena tonight."

Next morning Billings sat with Deputy Sheriff Drinkwater and the recaptured bank robber, in the latter's cell at the Pasadena jail.

"You've changed, Ranger," Roger Dryden remarked, with his tired smile. "That mustache. When I saw you last you didn't have enough upper lip to—excuse me, if the subject's painful"——

"You're changed yourself, Mr. Dryden," Billings said

Deputy Drinkwater's mood was jovial and proprietary as he explained:

"Roger's been in the hands of a face specialist in New York—been peeled and reefed tight, so he looks like a movie queen, all but them gray eyes. They're just as old and dangerous as ever, Ranger. The face scar we've been looking so hard for is gone. That face surgeon"——

"That face surgeon will get a case of poison ivy one of these days," Dryden said, without feeling.

Drinkwater left the cell for several minutes.

"I'm curious to know how they happened to get you in New York?" the Ranger began.

"I was mugged here after the bank affair—prints sent all over, offering reward," Dryden said. "In New York I got one of those ideas of going straight. A scar on my cheek left me wide open. A face specialist cleaned me up. He took $600 cash from me for his operation, then turned me over for the $1500 reward"——

"Staggers a man's faith in the human family—a chap like that," said Ranger Billings.

Dryden glanced at him with a queer, dry smile, but saw that the Ranger more than half meant what he said.

"What did you come for, Ranger?" Dryden asked.

"I haven't been able to forget that holdup gent we met on the Transcon."

"There was one good kid," Dryden said, sadly. "I'd like to have known him better."

"You mean that masked young person is dead?"

"I didn't know there was any doubt about that," Dryden said.

If there was a secret back of Dryden's words there was not a flick or quiver of a tissue in his face to betray what he knew.

Billings hated a thief, but he hated the face specialist sort more, right now. Dryden faced 10 years' oblivion at Barclay. If the hold-up party wasn't really dead, and Dryden was quietly insisting he was, to keep a pal more safely at large—well, this was the sort of thing Ranger Billings fell for, in spite of his disfigurment and the secret ache in his heart about the girl waiting in Iowa.

"Of course, after he had taken the pains to free me, I couldn't leave that kid," Dryden was saying. "I saw he was hard hit from that last shot of yours—hard hit and leaking. The rest of his bandit crowd outside had been driven off by the postoffice clerks and express messengers, but we found two loose horses. One horse was the kid's. The other belonged to the bandit they got outside. We hadn't ridden far before I had to stop and tie the kid onto his saddle. I had to tie up his neck, too. Later I heard him whispering—whispering for me to go on, that he was done for. When I stopped a while after that, he had made good on those last words. I couldn't get the lariat loose, so I left him, saddle and all. But his horse followed mine, loose."

"The body was never found," the Ranger said.

"It was dark, a couple of hours before daybreak. It was a pebbly hollow I left him in—like an arroyo."

"Could you go there again?"

"Only by luck," Dryden said, quietly. I didn't know the country."

Billings rose to depart.

Roger Dryden's hearing was set for 4 the same afternoon, in Judge Baker's court on the sixth floor of the Sequoia Building. Didsey Dreir was there from Bolima, Judge Baker, Drinkwater and two other deputies, a court clerk or two, Ranger Billings and four or five men from the hills. The proceedings were rushed through. The Ranger scarcely listened. The slight, natty figure of the bank robber standing between Drinkwater and another deputy, held his eyes. Now he saw Roger Dryden slowly turn his way.

Presently, just behind him, a body whipped up from the seat and a voice above his head called quietly:

A Story of the West, With Plenty of Thrills

"Come on, pal. I've got every gent in the house covered."

It was a voice that Ranger Billings knew, that kidding, bantering voice he had heard in the day coach of the Transcon train. A hand was laid on his shoulder, and the same voice said:

"Be good, Ranger. I always did like your style and would hate to have to put you on sick report again."

Billings saw Drinkwater and the deputy on the other side of Dryden with hands raised. Dryden ducked under the arms of the two deputies and was running low up the aisle. The train robber's voice finished a sentence for Billings alone:

"Not a man in the house but I'd rather puncture than yourself, Ranger. Let's keep this quiet and gentlemanly—only rapid."

It was so rapid, in fact, that Ranger Billings didn't lift from his daze until it was over and he heard Didsey Dreier's hoarse voice close to his ear:

"Our own little Davey of Bolima"——

Dryden and his rescuer had slipped softly out of the double doors into the hall. A roar from the deputies, a rushing forward to find that the doors were fastened. They gave on their floor bolts, but the outer knobs were held together. The entire body of men in the courtroom rushed back through Judge Baker's private office and out into the hall by another door, to find that David and his Jonathan had caught an elevator down.

"Yes, sir," Didsey Dreir was saying, back in Bolima the next morning. "It was a handcuff that fastened that outer door—a steel handcuff slipped over the two knobs and locked."

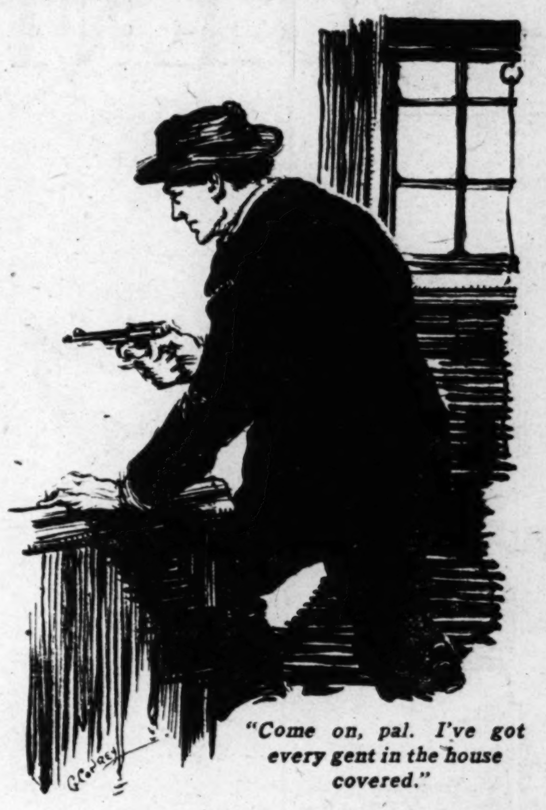
"They'll never get one without the other," Tollier Dip remarked, impressively.

The morning papers from the city had given themselves full-heartedly to the story of Roger Dryden's delivery by his pal. The old story of the Transcon holdup was retold.

A real man hunt was on. A thousand dollars reward was posted for Dave Ilcomb, and another fiften hundred for the twice-escaped bank robber of Pasadena. The two getaways of Dryden and Ilcomb, their adamantine loyalty to each other and the novelty of Dryden's second capture through a face specialist, furnished details of a big summer story from a newspaper standpoint. Billings had taken part in the man hunt at first, but Drinkwater and his sort didn't wear well afield. The Ranger was mainly riding alone, these later days, and one of his rides took him to a ridge overlooking Haunted Valley. Far below was an old cabin, built by a miner named McConachie, 40 years before. A rumor connected with the valley, so persistently as to become tradition, was that somewhere about was a ledge of gold, wonderfully rich. Just as persistently hung about the cabin a story that old McConachie's ghost was wont to return.

Billings had been on this ridge before, and had happened upon a silent spring. He had counted on finding it again this night, but dark closed in and he was forced to make a dry camp. In the morning gray the position of the spring opened up like a mathematical example one has struggled over the night before. Billings was letting himself down a ravine toward it when he heard voices. Two men, at least, were on their way up to the spring, as he was on his way down. One of the man-hunting parties, he thought. His left foot darted out to stop a small boulder that had started to slide, and in that position he stood stock still. He would wait until they filled their canteens and vamoosed. It was still half dark in the bottom of the ravine. Minutes passed before a voice reached him:

"Sure I can make it! Back at dark, with coffee, beans and pork. You can lie up safe here. No one comes to this spring."



"Come on, pal. I've got every gent in the house covered."

A weak murmur of a voice answered, and then a laugh from the first—a laugh Billings had come to know.

"I'll take a chance. . . . Not on your life, I won't stop for a big feed over there in Caliente. I'll be hurryin' back here to our own poison-oak tree for our party. So long, pal."

A full minute after that, Ranger Billings reached his hand slowly down and picked up the loose boulder under his left foot. He placed it safely on a ledge, where it couldn't slide, and wiped his forehead with his sleeve. His enemies had been delivered into his hands—twenty-five hundred, counting both rewards, and the old score settled. . . . Dryden lying up, starving to death—Dave Ilcomb forced out of cover for food!

Twenty minutes later, Billings was less than 40 feet lower down from the point where he had first heard voices, but he knew now exactly where his man lay, like a stag in his form, deep in a brush of ferns 20 feet lower still. He waited for a ray of actual sunlight to penetrate the ferns. From time to time he heard a moaning breath.

"Hello, Dryden," he said, at last, as close as one in the same room.

"Hello"——

"Don't draw, young fellow. It's suicide to draw. What's the matter—hurt, hungry?"

"Lost, mister—lost!" came a sudden wail.

Billings chuckled inaudibly. Dryden still had a shift to work to cover Dave Ilcomb's tracks.

"Now, that's too bad," Billings said, indulgently. "Excuse me for being suspicious, but I noted that you reached for a six-shooter."

The Ranger hopped down from his sheltered seat and a minute later Dryden's gray eyes steadied upon him from the deep shadow of the ferns.

"Hello, Billings," he said, quietly. "Your voice was familiar, but I didn't place it for a minute."

"Where is your partner, Dryden?"

"Tell me. That's what I want to know most. Dave and I lost each other four days ago."

Billings sat down close to Dryden's head. The face, so round and filled six weeks before in Pasadena, was darkened and wasted now.

"Dryden," the Ranger said, quietly, "I'm forced to conclude that you're unreliable about Dave Ilcomb's whereabouts. I'm recalling how you said in Pasadena that Dave was dead. And now your mind wanders about them four days, because I was sitting up yonder when your pal leaves for a day's jaunt to Caliente."

The only change in the other's face was an added weariness.

Billings filled his water bag, then bent over and started to help the starving one to his feet.

"What you goin' to do, Ranger?" Dryden asked, dully.

"I'm takin' you up the ravine a piece, where my horse is. I'll have a whole lot of fun with you up there, slicing bacon and pouring coffee for a man who hasn't fed himself lately."

Fifteen minutes later, Billings had watered his horse and was blowing into life a one-pan fire. Coffee water was on to boil.

Roger Dryden spoke:

"Excuse me, Ranger, but I'm eating when Dave comes in tonight, and not before. If you heard what he said as he was leaving, you must have marked that he wouldn't stop in Caliente for a feed, only to pick up what he could and hurry back."

"You won't have breakfast with me?" the Ranger inquired, his eyes fixing themselves upon the wasted face.

Dryden shook his head.

"I don't see how I can relish the flavors of bacon and coffee under such circumstances," Billings muttered, putting the cover on the coffee can, and bundling up the pork in its canvas sack.

"Sorry," said Dryden, "but you go ahead and have your breakfast. You won't bother me. Why, Billings, you go as long without grub as we have, and grub don't matter any more. I'm in training for a regular hunger strike."

It wasn't easy after that for Ranger Billings to carry out his half-formed idea to rope Dryden securely and leave him here, while he rode over to Caliente to head off Dave Ilcomb. Billings just couldn't bring himself to coil his lariat around a man half-dead from starvation, who wouldn't eat until his pal came. All the time, the thought was gnawing at him, too, that Dave Ilcomb would run into somebody else's hands on his way, or meet recognition over there in the desert town. The thousand-dollar reward for the train robber looked mighty good to Billings in connection with the stake he could pull down from bringing in Dryden. Also, the idea of bringing both the boys in gave a fascination to the idea of his writing a letter to the girl in Iowa. But his heart failed, and that was the end of it.

Dryden was strangely clear-headed but hopeless, like a man ready to die. He seemed not to hold the slightest grudge against Billings, but there was a deep aching bitterness in his mind against the face surgeon in New York.

"That's the sort of guy they leave wide open in this man's world," he muttered. "You can be a yellow polecat, and get by with it."

Billings saw the point, all right, and it didn't make him feel any more comfortable.

"Why, Dave was on an honest-to-God job over in the big town, holding onto a rivet hammer, six or seven hours a day, going steady and straight. I had to get the scar cut out of my cheek or run the risk of arrest every time I passed a bull on the street. Dave and I agreed that I'd better have that operation. You see, he was masked for his last job on the Transcon. He felt pretty safe, too, because the word was out that he was dead. But he never felt safe for me."

"Was he with you when you were arrested in New York?"——

"No," Dryden answered. "I didn't see him afterward. He was on his job. They picked me up on the street and railroaded me west that night. Couldn't get a word to Dave. He must have got his news from the afternoon papers and followed on by the next train. It was as much of a surprise to me as to anyone else—what he pulled off in the courtroom at Pasadena."

That day was like half a summer to Ranger Billings. He strolled off in the thicket and munched a bacon sandwich by himself. He smoked up a week's supply of cigarettes. He came to share the dull hopelessness of Dryden, but his mind was confused while the other's was clear. All through the afternoon he studied the agony of the starving one; not the agony for food, but an agony that called upon heaven and earth for some way to warn his pal. Billings saw the sweat come to Dryden's wasted face, as he listened—looked down toward the spring and listened. Billings also studied the mysterious thing called fidelity—the first and last article of Roger Dryden's code.

The Ranger realized he was taking a longer chance every minute now. If not prevented, Dryden would surely signal the instant he heard his pal down by the spring. That would mean a pistol duel. Billings had had about all the pistol stuff he cared for with a master like Dave Ilcomb, and yet he couldn't bring himself to force a gag into Dryden's mouth, as the shadows of afternoon lengthened, any more than he had found it possible to rope him early in the day. One idea troubled him until he spoke:

"Your pal's making a little circle to the left, trying to locate where you are," the Ranger went on. "Tell him to come up here and have his supper."

"But Dave's been starvin' just as you have. How's he fit to foot it the 20 miles to Caliente, there and back, when you can't get up?"

Yellow day still lay upon the peaks, but evening was deep in the valley, and dim upon the slope where they camped. Billings now heard the tribute of one bad boy for another.

"You saw Dave keep his feet in the day coach. Why, that kid couldn't die, unless he let go himself. He wasn't fit to go to Caliente, any more than I was. Only he's game. That kid's so game, Ranger, he freezes you, and he's just as square as he is game!"

Dryden was shivering in the night cold. Billings brought his saddle blanket and put it over the little man.

"Your blood's all whitened out, Mister," he said, gently. "I can't start a fire with your pal coming in. It would draw his shot from the brush. I've been feeling a need for the last hour or two to keep out of range from below."

Dryden's hopeless eyes stared down toward the spring.

"Dave told me it was only 12 miles over to Caliente and back," he muttered.

Billings heard a faint crackle down by the spring, evidently before the sound reached the other's ears.

"Dryden," he said, bending over the other in the dusk, "I'll have to ask you not to make any noise, not to make any answer—if we should happen to hear your partner down by the spring."

"What would you do if I did?" Dryden said, a little breathlessly.

The Ranger drew a gun.

The other laughed with scorn. "Anybody would think I was afraid to be put out of my misery," he said, pushing himself softly up from the ground.

He was looking into the Ranger's face —a queer, leisurely scrutiny. Suddenly his mouth opened and the yell was out:

"Back, Dave—danger—Ranger!"

Billings laughed softly. "You did hear him, then, a minute ago. You've sure got a poker face, young fellow. What are you so busy with under your blanket?"

He bent forward with a swift movement and caught Dryden's hand. A rock was in it the size of a duck's egg.

"Uncomfortable lying on—was it?" Billings asked. He saw a faint grin on the other's face in the dusk.

"Worked it loose under the blanket? Poor little tool—meant to mash my head in, but I don't blame you, Roger."

The other seemed scarcely to hear, every roused faculty intensely concentrated down slope toward the spring.

"Your pal's making a little circle to the left, trying to locate where you are," the Ranger went on. "Tell him to come up here and have his supper."

The face that looked up at him now from the blanket was harder than anything Billings had seen that day—the face of a man who didn't fear death, but both hated and feared the double-cross.

"That's what I said," Billings repeated. "I'd have managed different if I hadn't expected you to signal when you heard your pal below. Call to him again who's here, and we'll cook up a little banquet for three. I've been trying to make myself believe I was in the deputy sheriff business, but it won't work—not after dwelling with you all day"——

Dryden shoved his face up still closer to the Ranger's. It was luminously gray, sick, frightened, grim with torturing hope.

"Honest to God?" he said, hoarsely.

"Just that," said Billings, and added: "Tell him I'll go down to help him up here with his packs, if he likes."

* * * * * *

It wasn't exactly a merry party. The Ranger had to watch that the two didn't shock themselves to death from nourishment. Dave's mind was inclined to ramble a little over his coffee cup. The two had lived five weeks on less than 10 days' rations, hiding in the rocks on this slope, never far from the Silent Spring. Dave Ilcomb had been able to elude his pursuers up to this time, because he was familiar with every notch and groove of [illegible]

The next afternoon Billings arose, reached for his saddle and walked out where his horse was tethered. When the saddle was on and the duffel packed, he halted a minute before going back to the whitened fireplace where the two sat up waiting for him. The Ranger's hand moved up to his face and his eyes grew mournful. He wasn't pleased with himself and no nearer than before to writing that letter to the girl in Iowa. He had a man's idea that he had to do a lot for that girl that a man working on Government pay couldn't do—to make up for the way he looked.

"I've just got time to ride over to the station before dark," he said. "I may be back this way in 10 days or two weeks—just for a call. You'll be here, doubtless for two or three weeks more"——

"Yes, Ranger," said Dave. "At least that long. It's safer right here by the spring than anywhere else. It's so safe here in this ravine that she's kept a secret for 40 years"——

The Ranger turned to him, queerly.

"Why, Ranger," Dave went on. "You couldn't turn a trick like you've turned for us and get away with just a thanks and come again. We're goin' over into Mexico a little later, where they'll let us alone and we'll have a chance to grow up and not be stunted by hiding in cramped places. Roger and I ran onto a queer secret here at the spring. We've been starvin' to death all these days on Treasure Island. . . . Yes, Mister Billings, be calm. We've found old McConachie's lode, and she's richer than anybody ever said she was. It's no good to us—not for years, anyway, until Drinkwater and his crowd forget. We couldn't dispose of a nickel's worth, but we might be silent partners. . . . In other words, Ranger, McConachie's lode is yours. Some day we'll let you know where we are over the border. And if you get too clotted with dividends, and we're on a fruit ranch and might need some insect poison"——

Billings went down the trail with them towards the spring. A half-hour later he rode very thoughtfully away toward the station on Little Top. Two months after that, a girl left Iowa and came to live in a new cabin overlooking Haunted Valley and by the Silent Spring.

Good Bye Gray Hair

New Kind of Comb Helps Restore Gray Hair to Its Natural Color!

No streaks—no mussiness—no bother of any kind. Use it as you would any ordinary comb. $10,000 guarantee that it will help restore the true ORIGINAL color to your hair, no matter what shade it may be.

NO longer is there any excuse for gray, faded streaky hair! For scientists have just perfected a remarkable new invention which not only helps you to regain the true, natural and original color of your hair —but which, in addition, provides a means of restoring gray hair without the least danger of streakiness!

This new discovery is in the form of a comb. You use it just as you would use an ordinary comb. Simply run it through the hair. But as you do so, watch from day to day, how the gray begins to disappear—how the beautiful natural color of your hair begins to return. See how your hair gradually acquires a beautiful, even, uniform tone—with every hair the exact color it was years ago!

It Cannot Streak

Up to now, the best known method of restoring gray hair was by dipping an ordinary comb in the liquid and applying it to the hair. But this method had one serious disadvantage.

The teeth of an ordinary comb will hold only a very small quantity of liquid. Frequent dipping of the comb was necessary, and this meant unequal distribution of the liquid on the hair. That is why this method almost always resulted in unsightly streaks and uneven shades. And, surely, nothing will more quickly spoil one's whole appearance than freakish-looking hair.

But how different is this marvelous new invention! It completely does away with even the slightest chance of streaking the hair. It is called the Tru-Tone Comb, and is constructed on certain scientific principles which permit the comb to hold exactly the right quantity of the marvelous liquid Tru-Tone, and uniformly distribute it on the hair.

Tru-Tone is a clear, colorless liquid, which actually repigmentizes gray hair. Already Tru-Tone has been used by thousands of people with splendid results—but when it is used with the wonderful Tru-Tone Comb even better results are secured.

No More Gray Hair!

As you draw this remarkable comb through your hair each hair is given an even share of Tru-Tone. There is no danger of applying too much or too little. Each and every hair gets exactly the right quantity—and the result is beautiful hair, possessing the same even color of youth.

You will be amazed to see how really beautiful your hair becomes. And it will look so natural that even your dearest friends will not suspect that you have done anything to restore your hair.

How It Works

Never before has any gray hair restorer brought such splendid results as can now be had through usage of the Tru-Tone Comb. All you need do is run this marvelous invention through your hair just as you would an ordinary comb. The Tru-Tone Comb is so scientifically constructed that it holds just the right quantity of the marvelous liquid Tru-Tone, so that each hair gets its proper share. Here at last is a method of regaining the natural color of your hair—without streaks.

$10,000 Guarantee.

No matter how long you have been gray—no matter how many other methods have failed to restore the color to your hair—the marvelous Tru-Tone outfit is positively guaranteed to restore every hair to its true original color without streaks—without bother—without the slightest inconvenience on your part. Foods That Are Good for What Ails You

BY A DOCTOR

Many common fruits and vegetables, physician says, are preferable to medicine—Thus, onions have curative properties for nervous troubles, insomnia, coughs and croup, while as a "spring tonic" use carrots—"If lemons cost a dollar apiece, they would be regarded as one of the greatest remedies in the world"

"THE value of vegetables and fruits, especially so far as purifying the system and preserving the health is concerned, should be familiar to all. If we in our boasted modern civilization understood and applied one-half the instinctive knowledge that the so-called savages and animals use in regard to the curative property of vegetables and fruits, we could dispense with doctors and dope."

So declares John P. Naughton, M. D., in the Los Angeles Times. He explains how all the elements that the body needs may be found in the different foods.

"The human body is composed of 20 chemical elements; of which 15 are well defined. All these elements must be present in a healthy man.

"The mineral elements derived from fruits and vegetables, for the formation of bone and other tissue, and the process of digestion and nervous discharge, are very important, and are commonly overlooked by most people.

"How many people know that onions, one of the most common and yet most potent vegetables, are sulphur carriers, of which the body needs daily two or three grams?

"The medical value of onions is manifold. They dissolve uric acid and absorb poisons. For nervous troubles they are a tonic and should be eaten in quantity, without other vegetables.

"The tonic effect is milder, and I need not say better, than strychnine, which is often used by medical brethren in nerve troubles. Cases of nervous prostration have been cured by a diet composed largely of onions. For insomnia a two-mile walk and a supper of baked onions and rye bread have cured many cases when bromide and chloral have failed.

"The winter medicine that occupied a prominent place in the old-fashioned household was onion syrup. Even today the country nurse pins her faith to it. Many a case of sore throat, cough and croup has been cured with it when opium, codein and other poisons not only failed, but made the condition worse.

"Onions, when cut, absorb impurities in the air; therefore, they act as disinfectants. The impurities that they take up make them unfit for food, so a cut onion should be used at once or thrown away, never saved for flavoring something tomorrow. If parsley is eaten with onions, the odor of the onion will not affect the breath.

"If you feel the need of a 'spring tonic' and have about decided to take some bottled dope, don't; use carrots instead. Carrots are rich in iron and increase the red blood cells. They also tend to clear the complexion. As a hint to brain workers, it may be said that they contain much phosphoric acid.

"In the chemical analysis of brains of different individuals, it has been found that the brains of the idiot and other mentally deficient persons are lacking in phosphorous, while those of greatest mental power contain the most phosphorous.

"Cereals, nuts, beans and especially carrots are rich in phosphorous, in a form easily assimilated, and will not cause autointoxication, as will fish and other foods.

"Carrots should be eaten raw, but finely grated and ground. They may be eaten as a salad, with lettuce and dressing. They are especially recommended for nervous patients and those suffering from asthma.

"Lettuce is excellent for cooling the nervous system and for sleeplessness. It has an action similar to opium, yet leaving no bad after effect. It should be eaten green, not white, as the green juice in the lettuce is the medicinal part.

"Celery has remarkable medicinal qualities. It is serviceable in counteracting conditions that lead to rheumatism, neuralgia and nervousness, taking the place of iodides, salicylates and acetanilid, a few of the many drugs given for these troubles.

"The tough, cellular part should not be swallowed, as it is indigestible. It should be chewed until all the juice is extracted, and the pulp returned to the plate. The green leaves of celery are also excellent for nervousness.

"Beans, spinach, dandelions and raw cabbage contain iron and phosphorous and benefit anemic people. Spinach and dandelions act directly on the kidneys and keep the system clean. Asparagus also has a beneficent action on the kidneys. A little more exercise and more vegetables in the diet will cure 90 per cent of the so-called kidney pains and aches that we hear so much about.

"Lemons have been appreciated, but only partially. If they cost a dollar apiece, they would be regarded as one of the greatest remedies in the world.

"In the treatment of rheumatism, liver troubles, colds and fever, they have been used for years. The medicinal value of the lemon is destroyed when combined with sugar, and they never should be used in combination.

"The daily use of the juice of a half-dozen oranges will be pleasant and safe medicine for any catarrh.

"Rhubarb will relieve constipation, if taken without sugar.

"Tomatoes are a stimulant for the liver. They should be peeled and eaten raw.

"Pineapple is a complete medicine chest in itself, especially for derangement of the stomach, as the juice contains a digestive principle very much like pepsin and is recommended as a cure for dyspepsia. No pulp should be swallowed, for the tough, woody fiber is indigestible and should not pass into the stomach. The juice only should be swallowed. The juice is also excellent for sore throat and croup. The pineapple should be eaten without sugar.

"Beets are blood makers and should be eaten raw.

"The apple is the most valuable of all fruit. The old saying, 'an apple a day keeps the doctor away,' comes pretty near being a true proverb. As a means of preserving health and prolonging life and for sterilization of the lower bowel, the apple stands at the head of the list of fruits. It has a better action on the liver than calomel and contains valuable brain food. The best time to eat apples is in the morning, without anything else.

"An exclusive diet of apples is effectual as an antidote to the alcohol habit. The desire for alcohol is fostered by autointoxication, and the malic acid of the apple overcomes this. One who is addicted to alcohol usually has little desire for fresh fruit and vegetables, preferring meat and highly seasoned food. This abnormal appetite can be overcome by substitution of fruit and vegeables, especially the apple and grape, and the taste for intoxicants will disappear.

"Unripe fruit should be avoided, as it is unsuited for the human system.

"It is customary to indulge in a full meal, leaving the fruit to crowd in on top of it, often causing discomfort, while a little fruit at the beginning of the meal tends to prevent overeating. Fruit should never be eaten at a meal of mixed food."

THE RIBBONED PENCIL

elderly man whose eyes showed the strain under which he had been laboring ever since the report of the robbery had reached him.

After introducing himself and explaining the reason for his visit, the criminologist inquired how many new employes had been taken on by the bank within the past six months. A memorandum was forthcoming on this point and Dr. Balthazard studied it with extreme interest.

"What window is that which overlooks the alleyway just off the boulevard, the one at the left-hand corner of the second floor of the building as you enter?" he asked.

The president's eyes closed in thought for a moment, and then he replied:

"That must be the office of the assistant cashier. Most of his time is, of course, spent upon the floor of the bank, but he has a considerable number of details to attend to which necessitate a private office in a more secluded part of the building."

"Are these details connected with correspondence?" Dr. Balthazard asked.

"Yes, a good many of them are. He handles most of our mail business and practically all of our letters go out over his signature. But you are certainly not suspecting him for a moment! He has been here since he was a boy—rose from the rank of a messenger and worked his way up because of his exceptional ability. At one time he was receiving teller—a position which would have enabled him to make away with practically as much money as he wished, had he been dishonest."

"No, I am not interested in the assistant cashier," was Dr. Balthazard's response, "but I am distinctly interested in his office, especially since I see by this list that he has a stenographer whom you employed less than two months ago. If you have no objections, I think we will stroll over to the room occupied by the assistant cashier, for I have an idea that his new secretary may prove to be worthy of our attention."

Closely followed by the president of the bank, Dr. Balthazard moved silently down the corridor that led to the room at the left-hand corner of the second floor, and, without knocking, entered with a suddenness that caused the young and distinctly pretty girl who sat at the desk inside to jump perceptibly. But the criminologist's eyes rested on her for only the fraction of a second. Then they traveled toward the window and a look of satisfaction flashed across his face.

"Your name is Marie Lechant?" he asked.

The girl looked up, startled, and her hand moved furtively toward the side drawer of her desk. As she failed to reply, the president of the bank instructed her to answer all questions, adding that the man who asked them was present at his request.

"Yes," came the response, in a somewhat sullen tone, "that's my name."

"You mean it's the name you go by here," Dr. Balthazard snapped, and a second later he knew that his chance shot had gone home, for the girl paled perceptibly and her hand that remained in sight trembled.

"Now," the criminal expert continued, "I want to know what happened to that pencil that was propped up on the window sill not less than 10 minutes ago. No, I don't mean that one on top of the desk—the one with the red ribbon tied on it, the one which you forgot to take down after it had served its purpose in notifying your confederate that an extremely large shipment of money might be expected today!"

As he spoke, the criminologist moved quietly forward and, before the girl's hand could reach into the drawer at her side he had dragged it open and seized her bag, which lay on top of the papers within. Opening this he discovered what he had hoped to find—the lead pencil around which there had been tied a tiny bow of red ribbon.

* * * * * *

"And that," Quinn concluded, "was really the end of one of the most amazing cases in French criminal history—a case remarkable not only for the precision with which it was planned and the clockwork accuracy with which it was carried through, but also because of the fact that the entire mystery was solved within only a few hours after Dr. Balthazard took hold of it."

"What do you mean, the end?" I asked. "How could the discovery of the ribboned pencil lead directly to the man who had been responsible for Santon's murder and the robbery of the bank?"

"It didn't," Quinn admitted, "but the mere fact that the girl who had displayed the signal forgot to take it down led Dr. Balthazard to her and she, in turn, broke down under cross-examination and gave the police the names of the men with whom she had been working. All three of them—the messenger, the stranger who had collided with M. Benet and the man who had impersonated Santon—were rounded up within a week and the Bank of Marseilles lost less than $1000 out of the $100,000 that had been stolen."

A liquid marcelle in 20 minutes

And in 20 minutes
your mirror shows you a new head of hair—marcelled and curled as you like it best; with a natural wave that no artificial beauty-parlor process could possibly duplicate.

Naturally Curly Hair in 20 Minutes with Marvelous New Spanish Liquid

Delightful elixir of Spanish herbs makes any hair soft, lustrous and wavy—and keeps it so!

Mr. Ryerson's Personal Story of His New Discovery

NATURALLY curly hair—soft, wavy and lustrous! Is there anything more gloriously beautiful in all the charms of womanhood? Yet how few women—how sadly few—may claim this crowning glory!

Lovely Curls

All my life, as an investigating chemist, it has been my dream to find a perfect curling and hair-dressing fluid. And I've been working at it ceaselessly close on to nine years. All told, I've spent a fortune in experimenting; testing all known curling methods, and rejecting them as unreliable, inefficient, often harmful.

But perseverance has finally brought a reward greater than I had ever dare hope for. We have at last compounded a curling fluid which not only curls the straightest head of hair, but beautifies it, too. A marvelous hair and scalp tonic which increases the growth and "life" of the hair as it curls and waves it—adding new silkiness, new softness, new thickness and beauty.

I consider this liquid our greatest beauty discovery—greater even than the English Beauty Clay which we brought to this country last year and introduced to one million American women.

It is a colorless fluid compounded from the purest herbs of Southern Spain—a delicate elixir which makes any head of hair naturally curly and wavy—a delightful hair balsam which, when combed into the hair or used with your favorite curlers or curling iron, creates the prettiest and most natural-looking marcelle you ever saw.

I have never known another liquid of such magic potency. Even after a shampoo, when the hair is often stubbornly straight and unruly, it performs the miracle of making the hair behave—making it obey the commands of comb or curling iron—staying put where you want it—besides producing immediate and captivating curls, ringlets and water-waves.

No more necessity now for resorting to the harsh and harmful baking process of waving the hair. This new product—called "Liquid Marcelle"—sounds the doom of dangerous "permanent wave" methods. Simply comb a few drops of Liquid Marcelle into your hair—then twirl the hair a bit with the fingers, or put up on your favorite curlers. When you are ready to dress, you are staring at a wealth of curls and waves.

No matter whether your hair is long, short or bobbed; whether dry or oily; blonde or brunette, Liquid Marcelle will solve your curling and hair-dressing problems. It will keep your hair rich in sheen and softness; gracefully wavy, dainty and charming ways.

A Matchless Marcelle

The remarkable introductory offer I have made in the next column means not one cent of profit on our initial distribution of Liquid Marcelle. But I believe that once you try Liquid Marcelle, you will use it permanently. Which will make our present sacrifice of immediate profit well worth while.

Free Distribution $3.50 Bottles

(ONLY ONE TO A FAMILY)

I AM SO enthused over the things I know "Liquid Marcelle" will do, that I am anxious to give it a wide public distribution quickly.

Liquid Marcelle is made from very costly ingredients—and can be compounded only in small quantities at one time. So $3.50 is a fair retail price for it—which is the price we shall establish when we distribute it through the drug stores later on.

Wavy Bob

But right now, we are anxious to make friends for it as rapidly as possible in all parts of the country. So we have decided to distribute the first 10.000 bottles at the net cost of production and handling—without one cent of profit. We have figured this down to $1.87, which includes preparing and compounding the herbs, bottling, packing and shipping the finished liquid. But this offer, it must be understood, is open to only one member of any single family.

You need send no money. Merely sign and mail the coupon below. When the postman brings your bottle of Liquid Marcelle, pay him $1.87 plus a few cents postage. And remember, the Century guarantee insures your satisfaction, as always. If you are not more than delighted with the results, you may return the bottle and its unused contents at the end of a five-day trial and we will refund your money in full by return mail

Like your arm—your intestines grow weak without exercise

—then disease begins

YOU know how the muscles of your arms and legs get soft and flabby without exercise.

Hidden in your body is another set of muscles—more vital to your health than almost any others—which suffer in exactly the same way. They are the muscles of the colon or large intestine.

Like a set of powerful clamps

The colon is like a piece of hollow tubing about four feet long. Into it drain the waste products of the body—dead cells, poisonous refuse, waste from food which the body cannot use.

Unless this waste is gotten rid of regularly, it turns to deadly poisons which soak into the blood and flood your whole system.

The muscles of the colon are nature's provision for removing it. Like a set of powerful clamps, they contract in rapid succession and so force the contents of the colon along and out of your system.

How modern life weakens these muscles

It is no exaggeration to say that the weakening of these muscles is the greatest single cause of disease and sickness today.

The reason is simple: our bodies are built for coarse, raw foods which exercised these muscles and gave them real work to do. But modern civilization demands a more delicate, concentrated diet—and as a result the intestinal muscles grow weak and flabby. That is why 6 out of every 10 Americans are suffering from constipation today. That is the basic cause, doctors say, of half the ills which afflict us. And so the first thing that doctors want to know—no matter what you consult them for—is: Are your intestinal muscles acting regularly to free you of these poisons?

What this does to the muscles of your arm, Fleischmann's Yeast does to the muscles of your intestines—gives them normal, healthy exercise

The simple food that is restoring health to thousands

Drugs and cathartics will make the muscles contract, it is true, but they do it by nervous irritation. That is not exercise. Each time it happens, it leaves the muscles weaker than before.

The only way to relieve constipation permanently is by exercising these muscles as nature intended.

Everywhere physicians and hospitals are prescribing Fleischmann's Yeast today—not as a medicine, but as a fresh corrective food which gives the intestinal muscles regular, natural exercise.

Every cake of Fleischmann's Yeast consists of millions of tiny living plants, which mix with the waste products in the colon, softening them and increasing the bulk of the waste. This greater bulk gently encourages the muscles to act, and at the same time strengthens them by offering just the resistance they need.

Your own physician will heartily endorse this principle of regularly exercising the intestinal muscles as the only way to relieve constipation and all its evils.

Fleischmann's Yeast is in no sense a purgative and does not produce immediate violent action.

It must be eaten regularly to secure lasting results.

Eat at least 2 or 3 cakes a day—plain or dissolved in water, milk or fruit juices—preferably half an hour before a meal, or the last thing at night. If you eat it plain, follow with a glass of water. Get several cakes at a time—they will keep in a cool, dry place for several days. Be sure you get Fleischmann's Yeast. All grocers have it.

Thousands of girls have built up a fresh clear skin ~

by using these simple treatments

ARE you discouraged with your complexion—Discouraged because elaborate applications seem to have no effect in giving you the clear, beautiful skin you long for?

Thousands of girls today are using the famous Woodbury skin treatments, with the result that in a short time they are able, by natural methods, to build up an entirely new complexion.

No matter what the condition of your skin—it can be changed. Each day your skin is changing in spite of you! Old skin dies, and new skin takes its place. By giving this new skin the special care it needs, you can free your complexion from faults that have troubled you for months, or even for years.

Danger in an oily skin

PERHAPS you have the type of skin that has always been too oily. An oily skin is not only unattractive in itself—it is especially liable to infection from dust. Use the special cleansing treatment given below, and see how easy it is to correct this trouble.

A sensitive skin needs special care

A SENSITIVE skin is difficult to take care of because it is so easily irritated. A skin of this very sensitive type will lose its freshness and delicacy if it is not properly cared for. Use the special Woodbury treatment for a sensitive skin—and almost at once it will commence to be less irritable—less easily roughened or inflamed.

You can rouse a sallow skin

A PALE sallow skin is a skin that is asleep. If your skin is of this type, it needs a more stimulating treatment. The tiny pores and blood vessels need to be roused—awakened. Use the special Woodbury treatment for rousing a sallow skin—and see what a difference it will make in your whole appearance. That look of lifelessness will disappear—day by day your skin will gain in brilliance and color.

Complete treatments for each different type of skin are given in the booklet "A Skin You Love to Touch," which is wrapped around every cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap. Get a cake of Woodbury's today, at any drug store or toilet goods counter. Begin your treatment tonight!

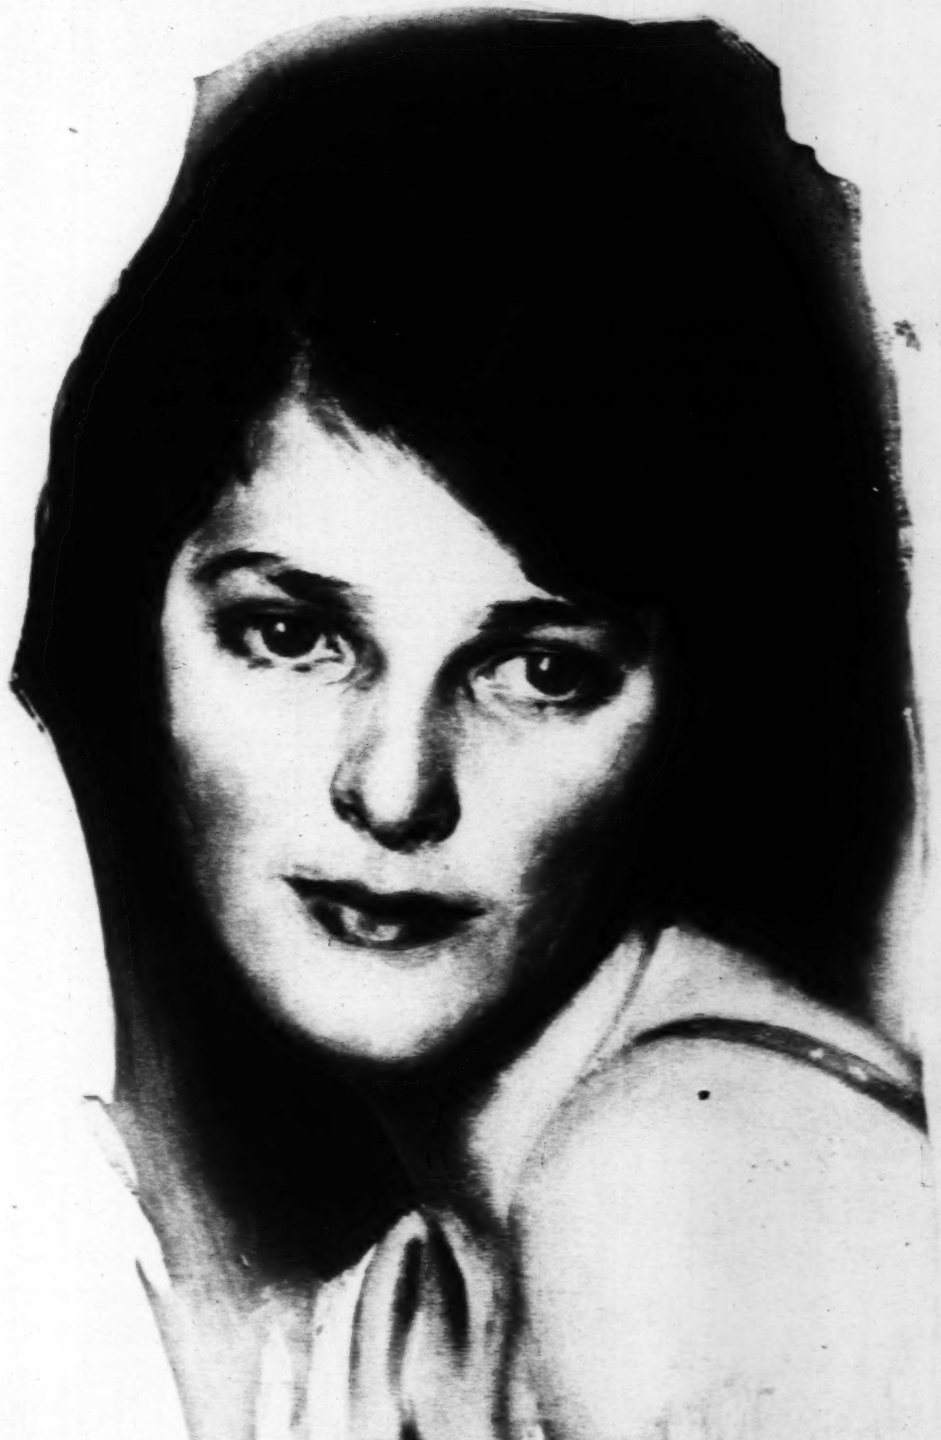
The same qualities that give Woodbury's its beneficial effect in overcoming common skin troubles, make it ideal for regular toilet use. A 25 cent cake lasts a month or six weeks for regular use, including any of the special Woodbury treatments. Woodbury's also comes in the convenient 3-cake boxes.

For 25 cents we will send you a complete set of the Woodbury skin preparations

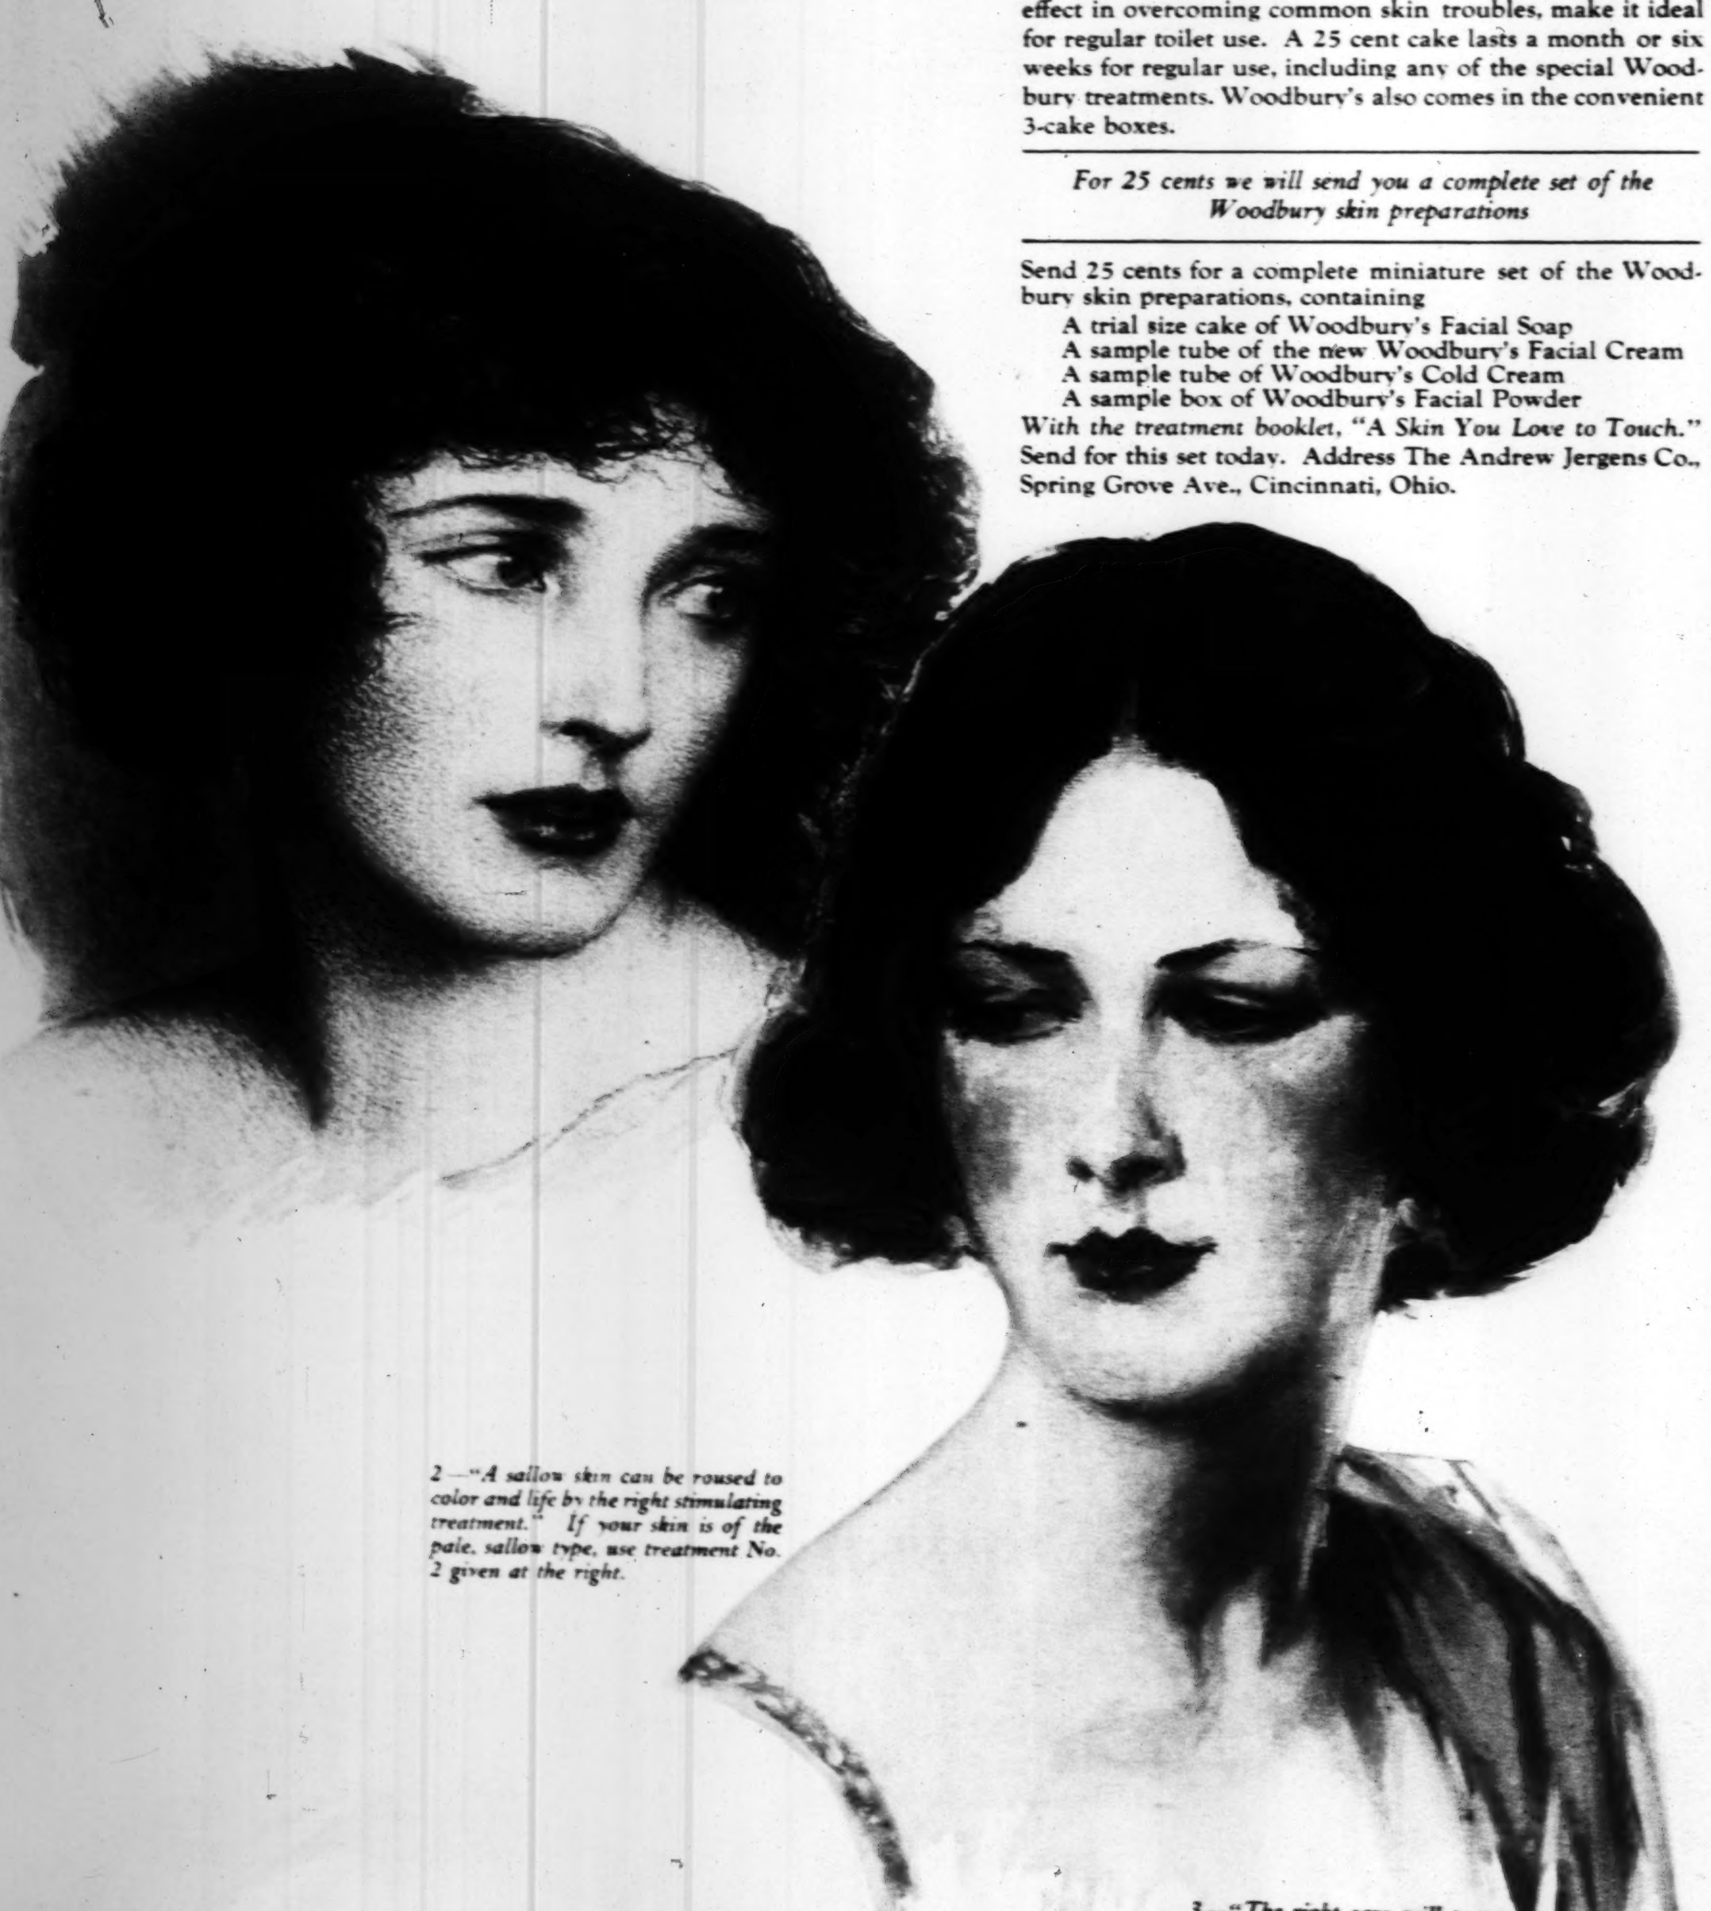
Send 25 cents for a complete miniature set of the Woodbury skin preparations, containing

A trial size cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap
A sample tube of the new Woodbury's Facial Cream
A sample tube of Woodbury's Cold Cream
A sample box of Woodbury's Facial Powder

With the treatment booklet, "A Skin You Love to Touch." Send for this set today. Address The Andrew Jergens Co., Spring Grove Ave., Cincinnati, Ohio.



1—"An oily skin is especially liable to skin disorders, because it is easily infected by dust." If your skin has a tendency to be too oily, use treatment No. 1 given below.



2—"A sallow skin can be roused to color and life by the right stimulating treatment." If your skin is of the pale, sallow type, use treatment No. 2 given at the right.

3—"The right care will prevent a sensitive skin from becoming rough and irritated." If your skin is of the sensitive, easily irritated type, use treatment No. 3, given at the right.

Your skin probably belongs to one of these three types ~ Are you giving it the right treatment?

1. For an oily skin—

FIRST cleanse your skin by washing in your usual way with Woodbury's Facial Soap and luke-warm water. Wipe off the surplus moisture, but leave the skin slightly damp. Now, with warm water work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap in your hands. Apply it to your face and rub it into the pores thoroughly—always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with warm water, then with cold—the colder the better. If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

2. For a pale sallow skin—

ONCE or twice a week, fill your basin full of hot water—almost boiling hot. Bend over top of the basin and cover your head with a heavy bath towel, so that no steam can escape. Steam your face for thirty seconds. Now lather a hot cloth with Woodbury's Facial Soap. With this wash your face thoroughly, rubbing the lather well into the skin with an upward and outward motion. Rinse the skin well, first with warm water, then with cold, and finish by rubbing it for thirty seconds with a piece of ice.

3. For a sensitive skin—

DIP a soft washcloth in warm water and hold it to your face. Now make a warm water lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and dip your cloth up and down in it until the cloth is "fluffy" with the soft white lather. Rub this lathered cloth gently over your skin until the pores are thoroughly cleansed. Rinse first with warm, then with clear, cool water and dry carefully.

Get a cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap today—begin your treatment tonight! Within a week or ten days your skin will show marked improvement.

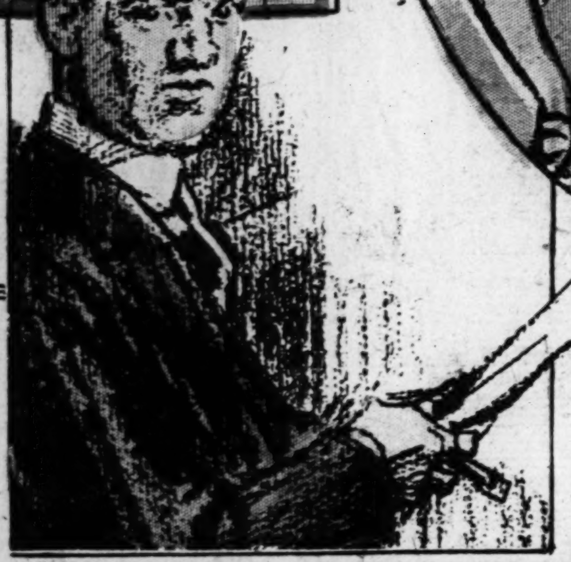
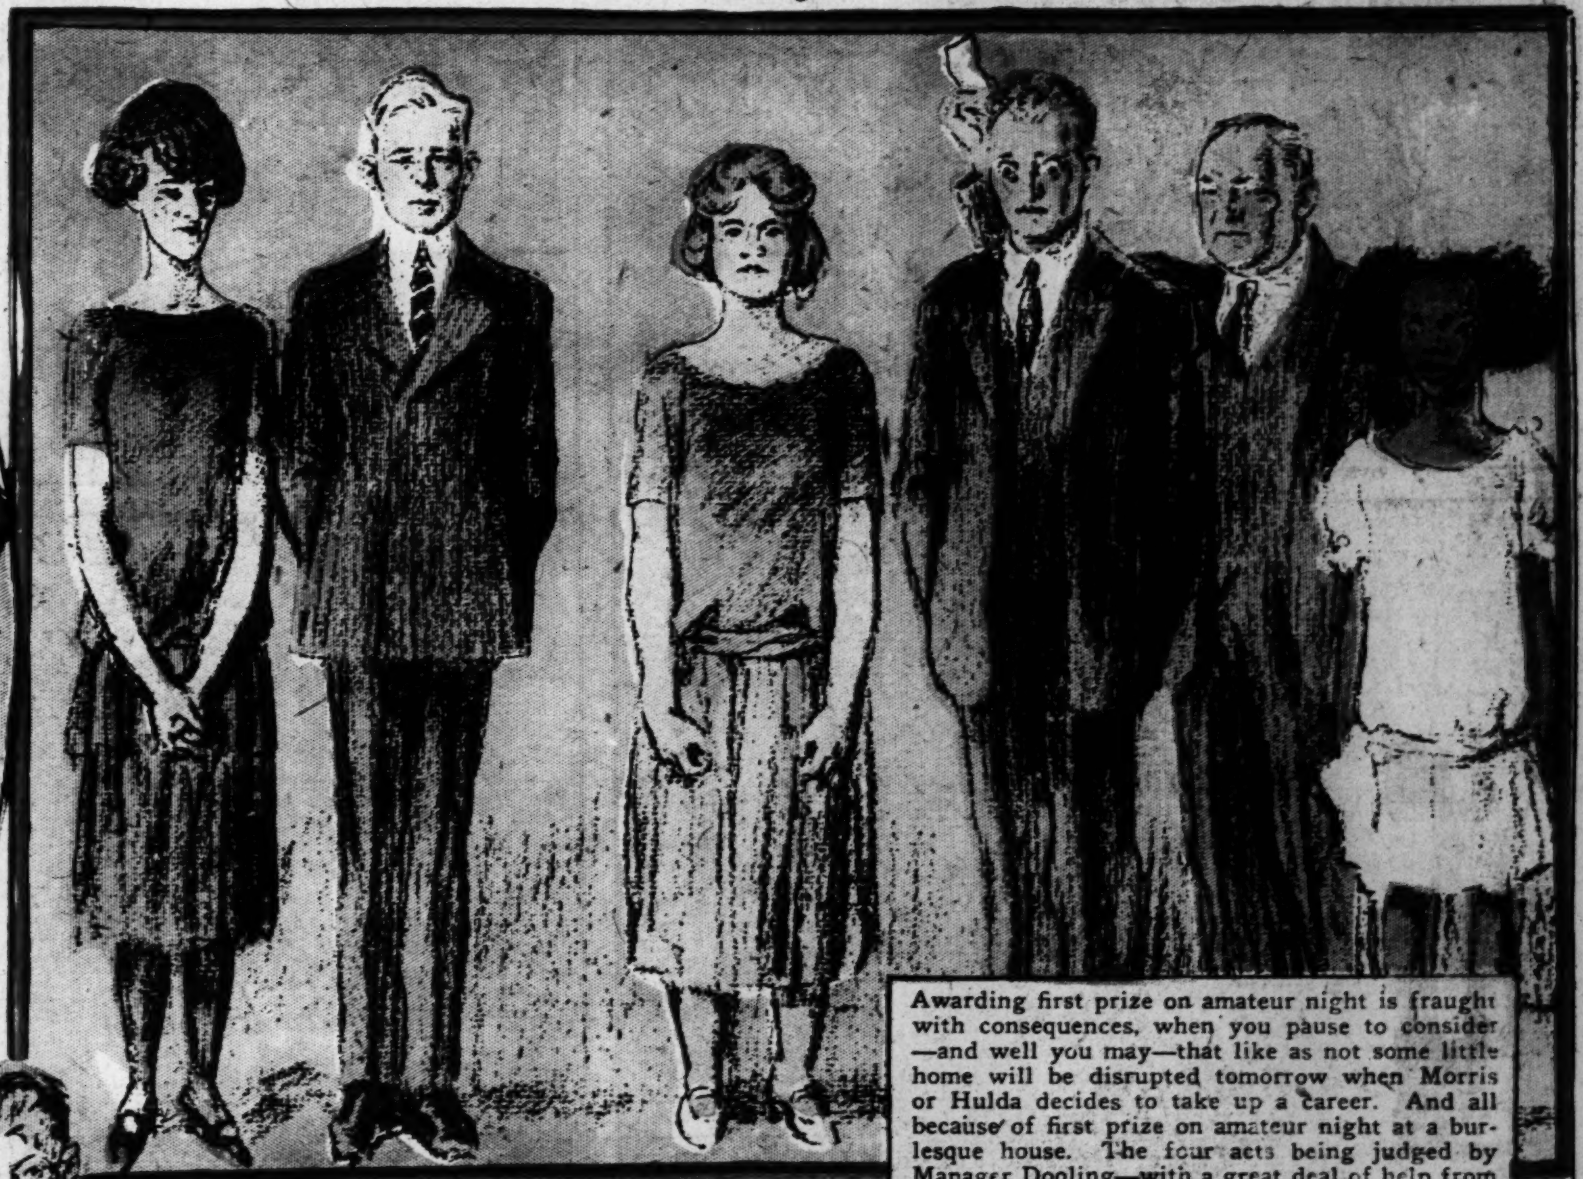
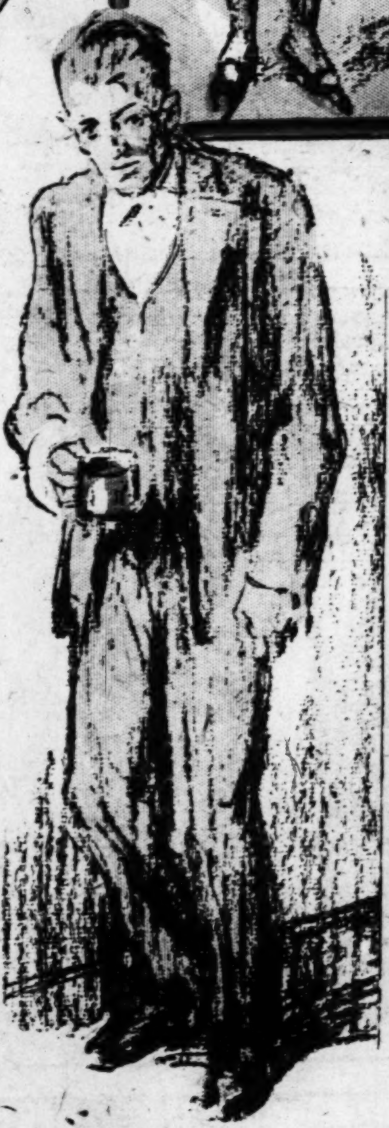
Exponents of fancy and bizarre ballroom dancing being very fancy and just too bizarre for words. The shallow stage is making Miss Mahoney just a wee bit nervous. Twice now she has danced her way in among the footlight bulbs.



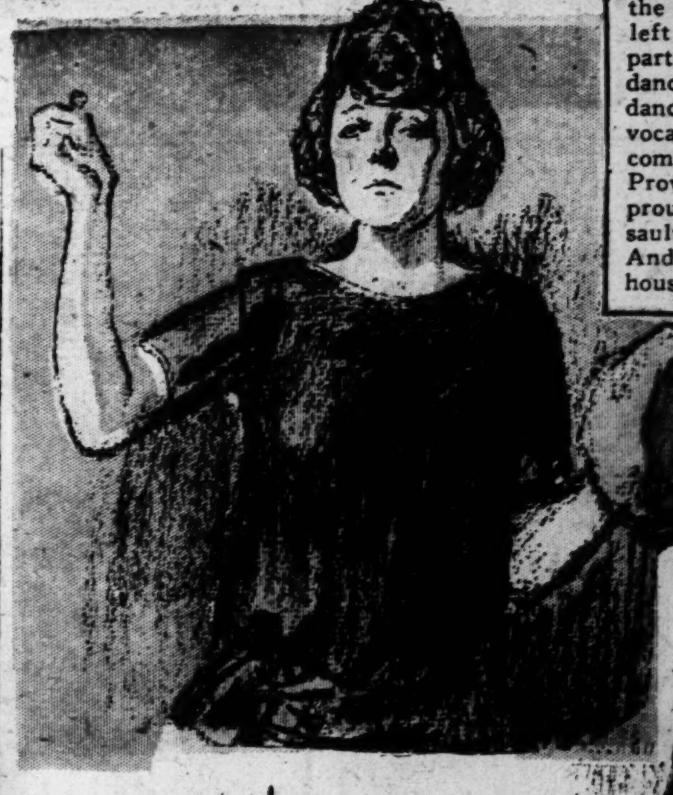
"Come on, boys, give her a chance!" The master of ceremonies appeals to their better natures.



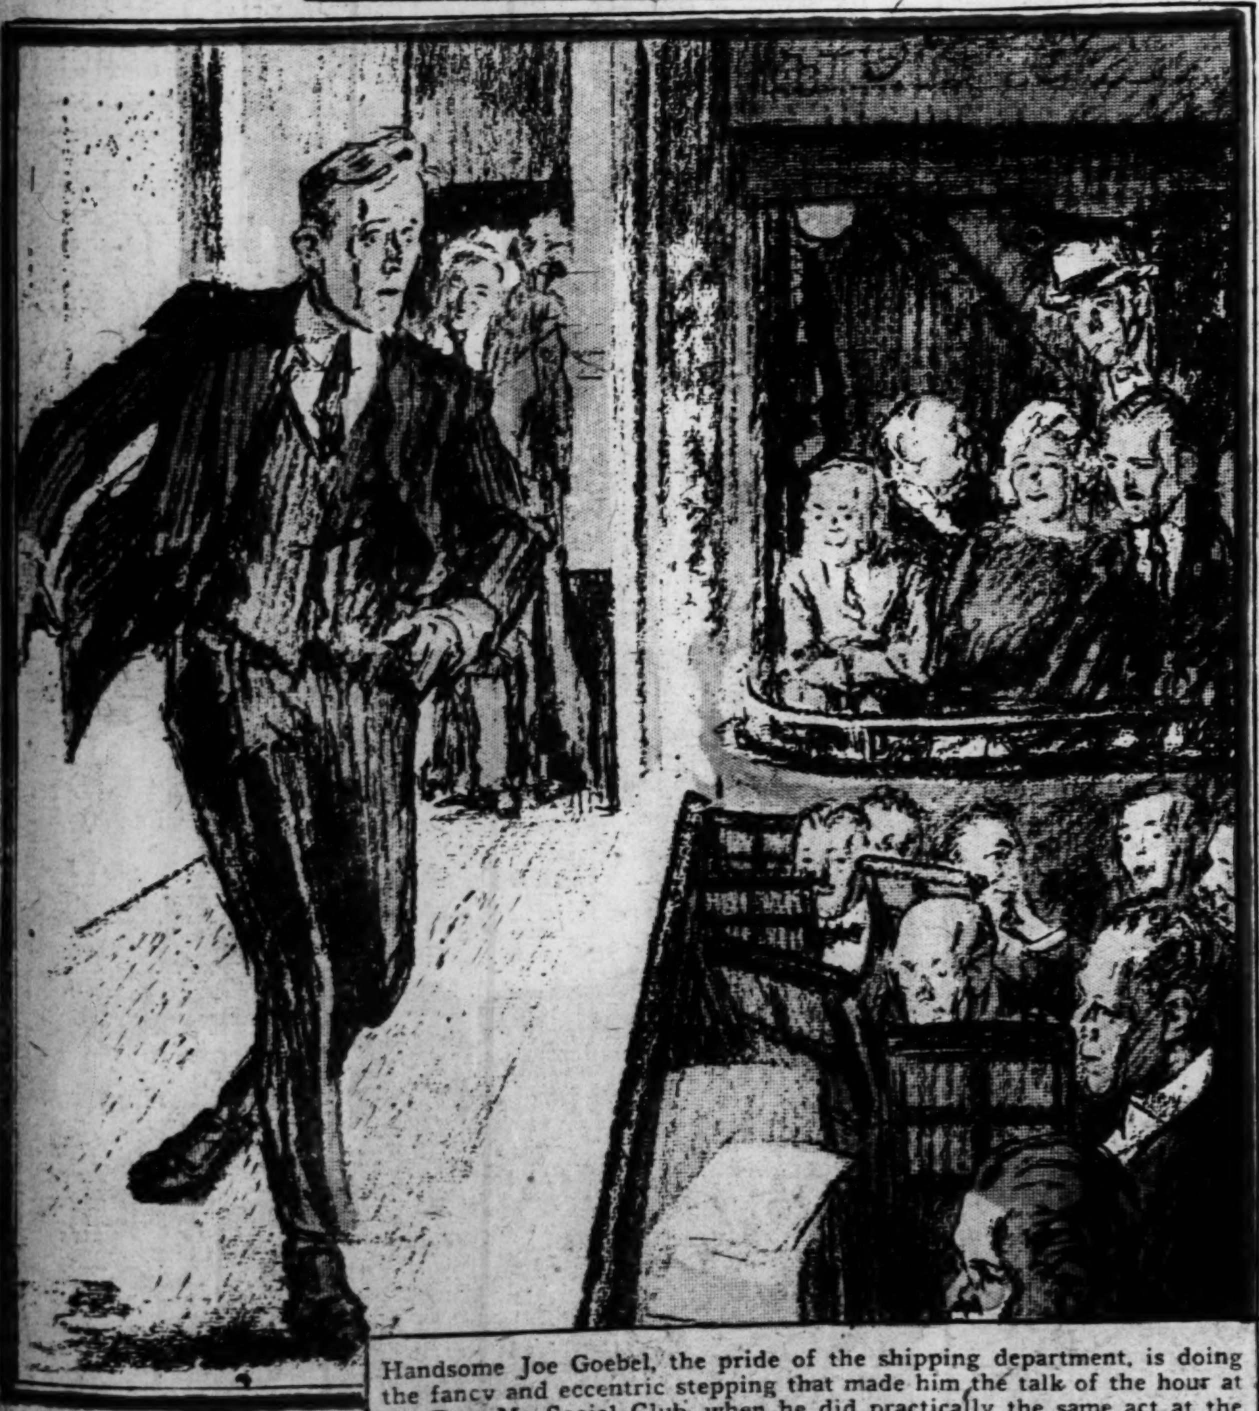
Awarding first prize on amateur night is fraught with consequences, when you pause to consider—and well you may—that like as not some little home will be disrupted tomorrow when Morris or Hulda decides to take up a career. And all because of first prize on amateur night at a burlesque house. The four acts being judged by Manager Dooling—with a great deal of help from the audience—are, reading, as they say, from left to right: Miss Louise Hennessy and her partner, Mr. Olaf Olesen, in eccentric ballroom dancing (the audience felt it was very eccentric dancing); Miss May Poppelsky, in a casket of vocal gems if you please; Mr. Jack Broilstein, in comic sayings and riddles, and little Mattie Prowl of the chocolate belt. Mattie did herself proud with "The Sheik of Alabam'," and a somersault at the finish will probably get her first prize. And from tonight on Mattie will be spoiled for household duties.



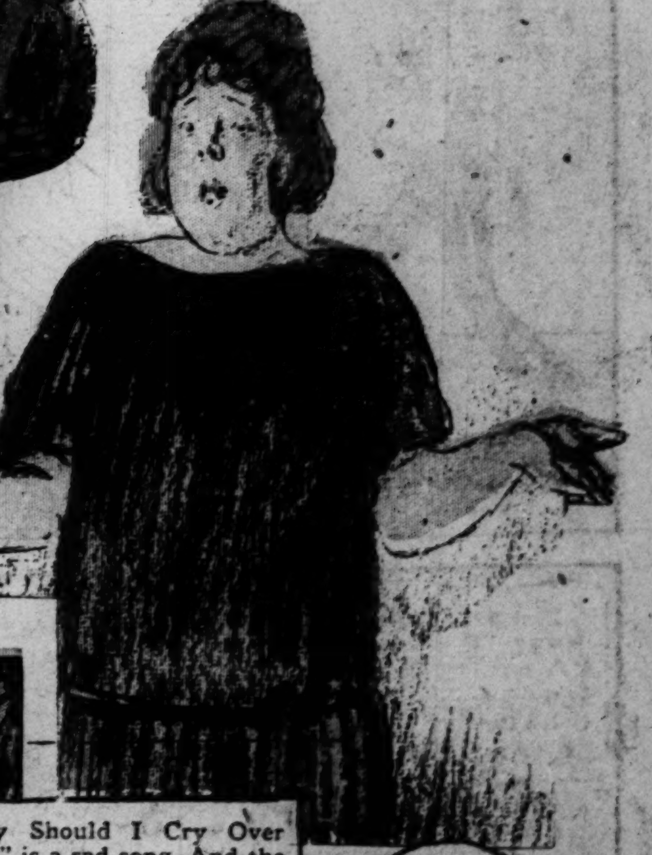
Stage hand with tin cup, picking up coins.



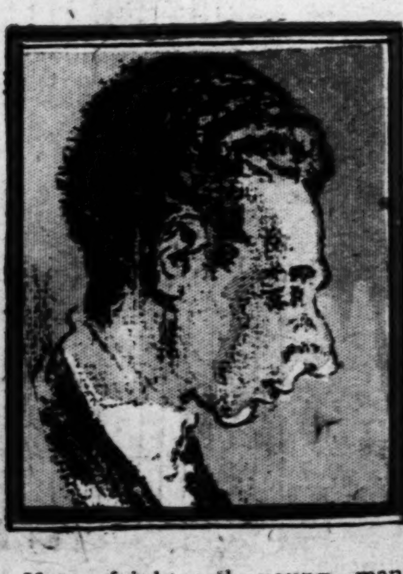
Beautiful lady slummer in Box B, about to throw money on the stage. The quarter will land just back of the trap drummer, but then, you know, it's the thought that prompts the deed that really counts, etc., etc



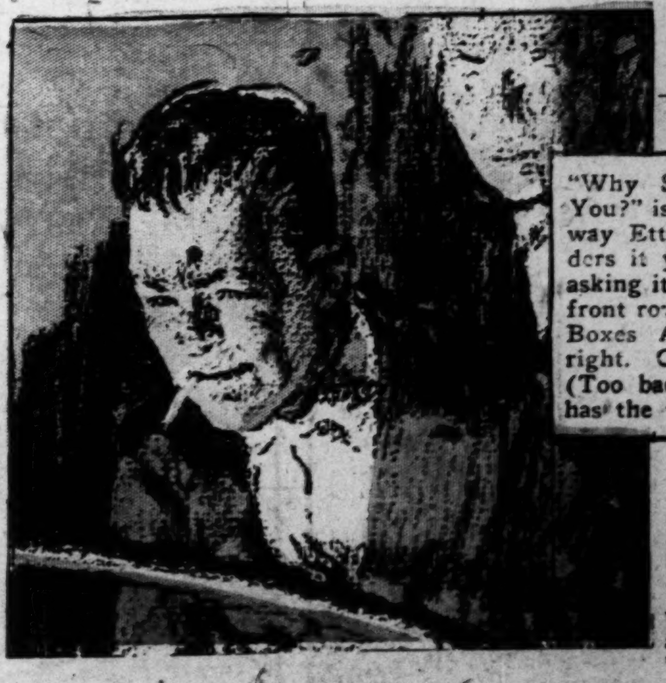
Handsome Joe Goebel, the pride of the shipping department, is doing the fancy and eccentric stepping that made him the talk of the hour at the Past Me Social Club, when he did practically the same act at the semiannual ball. He's not going quite as big tonight. The music probably.



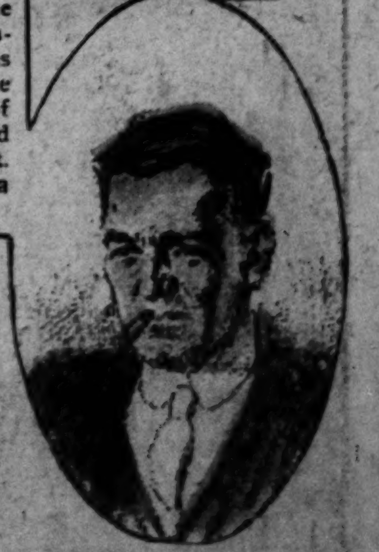
"Why Should I Cry Over You?" is a sad song. And the way Etta Marie Bates renders it you'd swear she was asking it of every man in the front rows, to say nothing of Boxes A and B, left and right. Oh, the pathos of it. (Too bad the fool orchestra has the wrong key).



Very frightened young man about to render a ballad about red roses and mem'ries and a face so fond and true.



"The hook for you, Percy! Give him the hook!"



The cynic. "Aw, these guys ain't amateurs—they get 'em from an agency that supplies amateurs!"

SOMMER SETTLES SUIT FOR $20,000; $8500 TO LAWYERS

Man Who Lost Sight in Explosion in 1917 to Be Paid by Continental Portland Cement Co.

NET BENEFIT TO HIM WILL BE $10,500

Attorneys' Connection With Case Was on Basis of Half of All in Excess of $3000 Offered to Him.

Joseph Sommer of 7137 Vermont street, who lost his sight in an explosion in a St. Louis County quarry Aug. 6, 1917, has settled his suit, pending for more than six years, against the Continental Portland Cement Co. The company will pay Sommer $20,000, from which he must pay his lawyer's fees and certain expenses of the case. A stipulation withdrawing the suit was filed today with Circuit Judge Hall.

The lawyers, who handled the case on a contingent basis, will receive $8500. Their agreement with Sommer was for one-half of whatever he should obtain in excess of $3000, the sum which the company first offered him to settle out of court. The expenses which he must pay are estimated at about $1000, leaving him about $10,500 for himself and his family of four.

$25,000 Award Was Reversed.

The case was about to come to trial, following a reversal by the Supreme Court, last August, of a verdict in Sommer's favor for $25,000, one-half of the amount asked for in his suit. The Court's action, taken chiefly on the ground that the amount was excessive, had the apparent effect of putting Sommer back, six years after his injury, at the point where he started. This aspect of the case attracted wide attention, and was taken as an illustration of the law's delays, and of the need for a workmen's compensation law in Missouri.

However Summers as gained this much—he had obtained from the Supreem Court a statement of the sum which the court would consider reasonable. That sum was $20,000. The company's counsel, in considering the prospect of a new trial, seems to have considered it likely that a jury would award Sommer $20,000. By the settlement now made, the company saves the expenses of another hearing.

Previously, the highest amount the company had offered in settlement was $3000.

Has Wife and Three Daughters.

Sommer's family consists of his wife and three daughters, Marie, 15; Ida, 11, and Christina, 6, the youngest having been born since he lost his sight. In the long period of his disability and impecunity, Sommer has made a living by peddling shoestrings and thread, and the oldest daughter has worked at washing tile in a factory. Last fall, and particularly at Christmas, the publicity given to the case brought many gifts of money and helpful articles, including a radio set, to the Sommer home.

The amount Sommer will actually receive, $10,500, if invested on a 6-per-cent basis, would yield the family $52.50 a month; if invested in Government bonds for the sake of absolute security, it will yield less.

Sommer's counsel, who negotiated the settlement, were Glenn Mohler and the firm of Leonard, Sibley & McRoberts.

Original Suit in 1917.

Sommer's original suit against the Continental company was filed Jan. 20, 1917, and was for $50,000, his allegation being that the accident was due to the negligence of the company, for which he was working at the time. By April, 1917, the case progressed to the point where Sommer was permitted to sue as a poor person. From that time until January, 1919, the case was delayed by efforts to get service on a powder company, and by discussion of proposals for settlement out of court. Dilatory motions for the company carried the matter along until Oct. 21, 1919, when the case went to trial, resulting in the verdict for $25,000. The company appealed to the Supreme Court, and the usual delays of that tribunal, lengthened by a transfer from Division 1 of the court to the court en banc, filled the time until the reversal last August.

Cleveland Man Shot to Death When He Answers Door Bell.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 19.—Carl Metta, former Federal Prohibition Agent, was shot to death at the door of his home this morning. Metta answered the door bell and was shot three times after a brief conversation with his assailant, dying almost instantly.
